Wife Preservers

Remove soot marks on brick fireplace fronts by scrubbing with a wire brush dipped into a paste made of water and an ordinary gritty cleansing powder. Follow this with a clear water rinse.

Household Hint

If you are living in a cottage in the country temporarily, and heat or cook with a kerosene range, never use gasoline instead of kerosene. It would be extremely dangerous because gasoline is much more flammable than kerosene, so using it in a stove designed for kerosene is taking a great risk. Even when you use kerosene, you should be very cautious.

Recipes That Use Egg Whites

By ALICE DENHOFF

HERE are some suggestions for making use of left-over egg whites.

Nut Marguerites, 14 of them, are the pleasing result of a recipe that uses one egg white. Beat egg white until stiff; gradually beat in a few grains salt, and 3 tbsp. sugar. Fold in ½ c. chopped nutmeats and tsp. vanilla. Mound one tsp. of mixture on each of 14 crisp crackers. Garnish each one with whole nutmeat. Bake on ungreased cookie sheet in 325 F. oven for 15 min.

Elegant Confection

Graham Cracker Torte, a really elegant confection comes next. Sift together ⅛ c. sifted flour, 2½ c. sifted flour, 2½ tsp. baking powder, and ½ tsp. salt. Prepare 1½ c. finely rolled graham cracker crumbs (16 crackers). Cream ½ c. shortening; gradually add one c. sugar. Add ½ c. finely chopped coconut and tsp. vanilla. Add flour mixture, alternating with ⅔ c. milk, mixing thoroughly. Beat 3 egg whites until stiff but not dry; fold in carefully. Pour into 2 8-inch waxed-paper-lined layer cake pans. Bake at 375 F for 30 min. Cool slightly before removing from pans.

When cool, cut each layer in crosswise halves. Spread whipped cream or boiled frosting between and on top of the 4 layers, and garnish with coconut.

Two egg whites plus a package of gelatin and there you have a quick but nifty dessert, a nice chocolate pudding.

Prepare one package lemon or lime gelatin according to directions on package, using 2 c. water. Chill in refrigerator until mixture has partially thickened. Beat with rotary beater until light and frothy. Beat 2 egg whites separately until stiff but not dry; fold into whipped gelatin. Pour into 1½ quart mold; chill until firm. Nice on its own, but even nicer when topped with crushed berries or a gooey chocolate sauce.

PORTRAIT OF A SLEEPY SLEUTH

CLEOPATRA, 10-month-old assistant to King County Sheriff Harlan E. Callahan of Seattle, certainly doesn't look very formidable while sleeping. But the sheriff's office says appearances are misleading. Cleo is being trained by deputies, who accustom her to gunfire by setting off fireworks nearby. The fact that she tracks her quarry without usual baying makes her more formidable. (International)

English Girl Travels 4000 Miles To Attend West High

Doreen Hateley, 14, has come a long way to attend West High School—and she "really loves it here." In fact she traveled 4,000 miles to enroll in the Hilltop school. Doreen arrived in Columbus just recently from merrie old England, where she lived practically all of her life.

Last year her mother, Mrs. Walter Hateley visited America for three months, returned to England and reported to her family the advantages offered in the United States, whereupon her husband made plans to come to America.

Doreen explained the procedure before embarkation at Liverpool for New York, including procuring of immigration papers at London, X-ray, medical check-ups, vaccinations, etc.

"Like to return to England?" we asked her. She immediately responded, "I love it here, but I would want to go back to England for an occasional visit."

A native of Smethwick, Birmingham, Doreen is typical of many teen-agers in England, she thinks.

Attending the village school there, Doreen explained that co-education is not followed in the "ordinary" schools.

"Boys go to school in the top block (story) and girls, like myself, are schooled in the first block in the same building," the English lass said.

Does she like West School? Her answer is a definite affirmative. "The students these first few days at West High are all so cheerful, friendly, helpful and obliging," she said.

Boys and girls are not only segregated in school at her former school, but on the playground as well.

It's 13 months of school for the English boys and girls, save for holidays, such as Christmas and Easter. School hours are from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Final examinations are held and these results are entered as the final school record of each course. Students are ranked, from top to low, in lieu of grades, Doreen said. Women teach the girls, and the men teach the boys in her school.

"I never had heard of baseball until two weeks ago when I came to West High," she admitted.

Rugby football is played on a large scale in England, and rounders, hockey and table tennis are also popular sports. Inspection of students' shoes, dress, nails, hair, etc., begins the school day, in some classes. About 40 students are found in over-crowded school rooms.

No lockers are available to students in her English school, but here "all is so convenient" she said. "In England our desks, the tops of which lift up, are used for lockers," she added.

No homework is required of English boys and girls. "You see," she added, "in England we find little time to do homework. We all help our families make a living."

All bookish education in the academic subjects is developed right in the school room. Students leave their books at assigned desks in the school room, and never take them home.

Teen-agers, for recreation, have their diversions at Y's, similar to those in America.

"I had never heard of chili—much less tasted it—until a couple of months ago," Doreen said, "and the ice cream and chewing gum over here are so much better."

Horses, farms and cowboys are thought by many English boys and girls as characteristic of America.

Popcorn eating in theaters was unheard of by Doreen until she saw her first show in Columbus. "In English movies I've attended, smoking is permitted," she observed.

Bus service is different from ours. "Depositing streetcar tickets in receptacles upon boarding the car is new to me," she said. "In Britain we get on, take a seat and the conductor comes around to collect fares and punch a hole in the ticket," Doreen said.

Doreen was all primed to see the Statue of Liberty when the boat neared New York harbor. In fact she was told that many hours before docking, the well-known lady might be observed, welcoming her to America.

"I sat up all night, so that I wouldn't miss seeing her—and about 3 a. m. I learned that we had just passed the goddess with the torch but her lights were out. The electric power had gone off."

This black-out did not dampen her spirits; for soon she found a people who accepted her with open arms — Hilltoppers are like that!

Vote For the School Levy

By Myron T. Seifert

Hilltoppers, along with the other sections of Columbus, will have an opportunity to vote on a 4-mill levy, come Tuesday, November 8.

No other part of the city manifests a more cooperative spirit than the Hilltop. Here, we are more than part of a great city, we are as one, acting as a unit on all matters affecting this community—particularly that of our boys and girls.

A short time ago the new superintendent of schools, N. G. Fawcett, who has a profound interest in Hilltop schools, outlined the minimum needs of the Columbus schools in a talk before the West Parent Teachers Association. His address met with the universal approval of the local Parent Teachers Association group, which was the first Hilltop organization to endorse the greatly needed 4-mill levy.

Other local organizations have indicated an interest and desire to back the levy, and The Hilltop Record, along with other papers of the city, will support this all important move to its limits.

The issue needs no defense, since the schools of this city have always been operated on a conservative basis; however, the voters are entitled to an understanding of the facts that prompt this decisive matter, and the Record will carry additional editorials, between now and November, bringing to its readers an analysis of the public school set-up in the Columbus schools—and their needs.

Head New Hilltop Lions Club

The officers of the newly organized Hilltop Lions Club are pictured above. The members of the club will be honored at a charter presentation and banquet on Sunday, Oct. 30, at 6:30 p. m., in the main ballroom of the Neil House.

Melvin Jones of Chicago, founder and secretary-general of the International Association of Lions Clubs, will present the charter.

The officers are, seated (left to right) Jack Schmelzer, lion tamer; Richard Laird, secretary; George Schaaf, president; Rex Lynch, first vice-president, and Herb P. Young, third vice-president. Standing (left to right), John Keefer, treasurer; Carl J. Schmelzer, short-term director; John Grassie, short-term director; Dr. R. M. H. Wilson, long-term director, and Chubby Distelhorst, tail-twister.

SEASONED AND SAUCED

Have you ever thought about the difference a flick of a spice box, or a bit of chopped onion can make in the personality of a vegetable? These and other such tricks will lend interesting variety to all of your garden favorites.

Start with melted butter, it's flattering to all vegetables, and season to suit the vegetable you are serving. Some good combinations include green beans with a nippy horseradish butter, golden carrots with mint butter sauce, lemon buttered peas and shredded cooked cabbage sprinkled with grated American cheese. Experiment with other combinations and you are sure to discover many interesting ways to serve vegetables.

Acorn squash halves are always good baked until tender, then served with butter and salt and pepper. For something deliciously different try Butter-Spiced Baked Squash. You'll like the combination of a spicy sauce and crunchy nuts with the bland squash flavor. You'll say it's an experiment in good eating. Here's the recipe:

Butter-Spiced Baked Squash

3 medium acorn squash
2 teaspoons salt
½ cup butter, melted
4 tespsoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon nutmeg
½ cup chopped nuts

Wash and cut squash in halves crosswise. Season with salt. Combine spices, chopped nuts, and melted butter and blend. Spoon a little of butter mixture into each squash half. Place in a covered baking pan with the bottom of pan covered with a little hot water. Bake in a moderately hot oven, 400°F., for 1 hour, removing cover for last half hour of baking. Serve with extra spice-butter mixture. Serves 6.

Odd Fact

Mrs. Clara Barton Succumbs In Mass.

Funeral and burial were held Sunday in Worcester, Mass., for Mrs. Clara Barton, 83, who died there last Thursday. A relative of Clara Barton, founder of the American Red Cross, Mrs. Barton is survived by a son in Columbus, Leslie Raymond Barton, 95 Whitethorne-av. Two other sons, Fred and Clifford, and a daughter, Mrs. Allen Bixby, all in Massachusetts, also survive.

Student Helpers At West Get Office Experience

By Myron T. Seifert

Actual business office routine experience is afforded West High girls, as they perform numerous tasks in the junior and senior offices.

Typing, checking attendance reports, filing cards and information, taking telephone messages, running errands, and a great many other responsibilities are delegated to these girls. They help in the office only at study periods.

Selected by virtue of their grades, personality, and recommendation of teachers, Mrs. Louise Perry and Jeannie Mayhew, senior and junior office clerks, respectively, find girls who are dependable, courtecus and proficient in their work.

Senior high clerical office appointees this term include:

First period, LaDonna Distelhorst and Ellen Page. Second period, Marilyn Tingler, Phyllis Plank and Dot Penny. Third period, Lavina Souslin and Shirley Schroeiff. Fourth period, Shirley Billingsley and Faith Fry. Fifth period, Margie Ackor.

Sixth period, Donna Carter. Seventh period, Patty Pryor and Rita Konkler. Eighth period, Margie Smith and Shirley Shroyer. Ninth period, Sandra Rose and Joan Dew.

Junior high office monitors are: First period, Adele Ziegfield, Sandra Betsch, Donald Linn, Nyla Grabill, Patty Sands, Jobyana Pitt. Second period, Ronald Raike, Carol Elliot, Linda Hall, Marda Cannon.

Third period, Ron Kirkpatrick, Judy Armbruster, Donna DeFever, JoAnne Bryant. Fourth period, Jonn David, Margaret Reep, Janet Bussey, Mary Kimball. Sixth period, Carolyn Smith, Betty Ellingsworth. Seventh period, Barbara Williams, Nancy Thoelcke.

Eighth period, Robert Faistle, Patty Manus, LuAnne Hartley. Ninth period, Rickie Hutchinson, Sally Kendall, Patricia Thompson, Donna Mayhew.

Basketball was originated in Springfield, Mass., in 1891.

Glenwood Center News and Notices

Glenwood Recreation Center will sponsor a weiner roast and dance Wednesday, Oct. 19 at the park. A bonfire will be started at 6:30 p. m. and at 7:30 the dance will begin. Those attending are asked to bring their own weiners and other food. The park, in conjunction with the parents, will furnish the hot drinks.

Glenwood has also scheduled a hallowe'en party for children twelve years and under for Friday, Oct. 28 at 4 p. m. Prizes will be awarded for the best-costumed boy and girl.

Boys age 10 to 14 may sign up at the post with Dick Koontz for the Glenwood pre-season basketball league. There will also be a pre-season basketball league for boys 15 to 18 and 18-25. If interested in playing in any one of these leagues call Ra. 7416 and ask for Jerry Giroux or Dick Koontz. They may also be contacted in person at Glenwood after 2 p. m.

For girls, ages 14-17, there will be a volleyball league beginning the last week of October in the evenings. Any girl interested call Pat Matthews, Ra. 7416 after 2 p. m. Girls' basketball teams will also be organized in November. Girls between 14 and 18 should contact Pat.

Activities for children include shuffleboard, deck tennis, ping pong, badminton and volleyball, and can be played at Glenwood daily from 4 p. m. to 5:30 p. m. Other games are checkers, dominoes, pegity, pick-up-sticks, hearts, chinese checkers, pollyanna and caroms. A varied crafts program will include wood-burning, metal tapping, drawing, painting and leather craft. A story hour will also be held for smaller children.

Hilltop women may take advantage of the center from 2 to 3 p. m. daily for sewing, cooking or crafts. Access can also be had to any sports activity or instruction. For further particulars, contact Pat Matthews, Ra. 7416.

Plans are being made by the center for a Gay Ninety Review, starring children from ages 7-12. Miss Matthews may be called for more information concerning these plans.

Go To Museum

The 6B class of Room 209 at West Broad Street School visited the Ohio State Museum last Friday. Mr. Jenny, the museum teacher, conducted a lesson on minerals. The trip to the museum is a part of the class work of the group. The children were taken in the bus provided by the Board of Education.

Forlorn Bride

A BRIDE of nine weeks, Mrs. Patti Sirois, 19, doesn't have a stitch to her name. Somebody stole her car and with it her every item of apparel. Also stolen were gifts received at a shower given by friends at Elcerrito, Cal. This will cost husband James Sirois, California university radiation chemist, plenty. (International)

Cowboys Seek Second City Win In East-West Tilt

By Dave Miller

West High's Cowboys, who will be playing strictly on spirit, seek their second straight win this Friday evening when they play host to East's Tigers at Magly Field at 8 o'clock.

The Cowboys, who have beaten Linden and lost to North in league play, to date, will be out to scramble up the City League a bit. An East loss would not necessarily mess up the City Loop but if West should down the Tigers it would add another contender for the flag to the bracketed North and Central elevens.

The Cowboys have beaten the Tigers two consecutive years. In '47, they defeated the Tigers, 25-6, and last season were 6-0 winners. In '46 it was an 18-18 tie, and the year before was a 0-0 deadlock. The latter was for the City championship with that title ending up in a deadlock with the Cowboys and East.

Throughout practices this week, the loyal gridders have worked a lot on passing. West Quarterback Bob Birle has really looked great, and with such receivers as Bill Thrush, Jim Rudolph and George Crissinger, the Cowboys are hoping to give the visiting Tigers quite a pushing around.

It might not be that simple, but if the big West line holds, and the passing attack clicks, along with the varied running of halfbacks Ronnie James and Charlie Hunter and Fullback Clarence Golden, anything can happen.

East so far this year has won two and lost two. They opened the season by dropping a 41 to 19 verdict to Newark's powerful Wildcats. Following this the Eastsiders have won over Springfield Central Catholic, 40 to 6; South, 48 to 14; and lost to Central 7-0.

The Cowboys have suffered losses to Marion, 20-0; Arlington, 33-0; North 19-13 and have beaten Linden, 6-0. By comparison of scores, East lost to Central, 7-0, while Central swamped Linden, 45-0; the team West beat, 6-0. Another, in West's favor, East was beaten by Newark by a margin of 22 points, while West, who played the Wildcats in a practice tilt, were beaten by 20 points.

However, comparison of scores won't mean a thing at end kick-off time tomorrow evening in a game that promises to be the slam-banger of the City League.

Probable lineups:

Bill Thrush	LE	J. Congrove
Cliff Voss	LT	J. Anthony
Bob Wilson	LG	Frank Beck
Bob Epps	C	Al Stewart
Dick Will	RG	F. Talley
Bob Tewel	RT	Dick Linson
Jim Rudolph	LE	Lewis Sharp
Bob Birle	QB	E. Mackey
R. Jamez	LH	C. Naumoff

Two Undefeated Teams Meet In Hilliards Game

By Bill Gibbon

The Hilliards - Worthington gridiron event, scheduled for Friday night on the Wildcat's field, will determine which of the two teams, along with Mifflin and Reynoldsburg, will remain in the undefeated bracket in the County High School League.

Only a tie score could keep both teams on top. And a tie appears to be a good possibility. It looks as though both squads are pretty evenly matched. The Wildcats, and the Worthington eleven, as well as Mifflin and Reynoldsburg, have won three league games and lost none.

Hilliards Has Edge

However, Hilliards has not been scored against in the league, and that gives them a definite edge on Worthington. After Friday's tourney, the Wildcats will have only two league games to play. On Nov. 4 they will meet Mifflin, who shared last year's county championship with them. But that game will not be counted in determining the champs. The teams play only six games each in the league season.

The Wildcats won their first league game with Hamilton Township 21-0; the second meet with Grove City ended with Hilliards on top 27-0, and the third, last Friday, with Canal Winchester, brought the Wildcats 27 points again to the opponents' nothing.

Champs Again

If the Wildcats continue their teamwork—fast, coordinated action in the backfield with power and agility on the line—keeping their league opponents from scoring heavily against them and at the same time building up the big scores in their favor, as they have recently, there is no doubt that Hilliards will repeat as league champions.

Only this time it looks as though they won't have to share the championship.

'Transportation' Band Theme At Linden Game

By Dave Miller

The Cowboy band did a transportation act in their show at the Linden game. They formed different ways to travel, playing a song to correspond with each.

At half-time, the band came out with a trumpet and drum fanfare. Then they came down the field to the tune of Linden's fight song, and upon forming a bicycle, the band played "On a Bicycle Built for Two."

From there, the band formed a car, and played "In My Merry Oldsmobile." As an added attraction, during the playing of the number, the back tire of the car went flat, and Ray Fenner, drum major of the band, pumped it up. The band then formed "LMc" and played the Linden fight song.

They then formed a locomotive, to the tune of "I've Been Working on the Railroad." At a certain spot in this formation, the band had planned a blackout, making the locomotive, red, white and blue, but failure to turn the main lights off, lessened the effect.

The band then formed a boat, and played "Cruising Down the River." From there, the band spelled out "WEST" and finished with the Cowboy fight songs.

This Fish Is No Sucker

An uninvited guest was the scaly character in the center in the above picture. He jumped into a canoe in which Martha Holt and Carol Lee Tanner were paddling on Indian Lake. Piscatorial experts identify the fish as a three-pound small mouth bass, but that fish smile (due to the charming company, no doubt) almost makes it a large mouth bass.

West Reserves Drop Game 19-6

By Dave Miller

West High's reserves lost their second straight City League game of the present season last Tuesday at the local Magly Field dropping a 19-6 decision to a pass-minded Linden McKinley reserve team.

So far this season, the local reserves trounced Rosary, 18-0 and lost to Upper Arlington, 13-6 in non-league play. Their other outing in loop play besides the Linden game was an identical 19-6 loss to Aquinas last week.

Most of the first quarter was around mid-field, with only a long pass by Linden's star passer, Jim Manring to End Bob George marring the play. The pass went from the little Panthers' own 16 to the West nine where George was finally tackled. However, the Broncos took over on a fumble, and from there on, Linden didn't threaten until the half-way point in the second period.

In the second, Manring unloaded another pass, this time in the arms of halfback Bill Popovich, and he scored on the 23-yard pass play. The score remained 6-0 at halftime.

The Cowboys tied it up in the third period when, after linebacker Bill Vawters recovered a Linden fumble on the Linden 19, Quarterback Don Johnson then threw in the end zone to Louie Proper, who tallied the lone touchdown of the game for the Cowboys, unmolested. Proper, in addition to scoring the lone touchdown pass, was constantly outrunning the Linden secondary in an effort to catch some passes throughout the remainder of the game, but bad passing by the West backfield marred chances of a few more West touchdowns.

Linden tallied two touchdowns in the final quarter, both on passes from Manring, one to Jim Bowen from six yards out, another to Don Wood from 39-yards out, which cinched the ball game right there. Another pass, from Manring to George scored the extra point after the third Linden TD.

Odd Fact

Upon stepping out of a prison door to freedom after serving a three-year sentence in Liverpool, Eng., a man was promptly rearrested because he had carried out with him three pairs of shoes he'd stolen inside.

Mother, Daughter Write Church Festival Pageant

Mrs. Leonard Echols, 291 S. Richardson-av, and her daughter, Carol, have written a booklet for the 10th anniversary of the Children of Church Festival Program for the United Lutheran Church.

Mrs. Echols, a member of the Hilltop Lutheran Church, has been an active leader in this program since its origin. At present she is the secretary of the Children of the Church for the Synod of Ohio of the United Lutheran Church. For a number of years she has been a contributor of children's articles to the Parish School Magazine and other Lutheran publications.

Carol, a West High School student, plans to major in journalism. She, too, has been actively associated with the program.

The title of the book is "We Tell Our Story". It is a pageant written in story fashion.

Says:

It's not too difficult to meet expenses these days; one meets them everywhere.

Polio has many unpleasant features—not the least of which is the expense it involves. You and your family can be protected against this expense with a "2 for 1" policy—2 years' coverage for the 1 premium of only $10 ($5 for individuals). This policy pays up to $5000 of polio-incurred expenses. This immediate, first-day coverage includes the husband, wife and all unmarried children from 3 months to age 18, as well as any such children born during the 2-year policy term. Can you afford NOT to have this protection? Better contact Joe Briggs NOW.

BROADWAY'S BIG NOISE

He Creates Sound Effects for Stage Plays

By RUTH ARELL
Central Press Correspondent

NEW YORK—The noisiest man on Broadway today is a modest, unassuming fellow named Thomas J. Valentino, who is the king of synthetic sound. His clientele includes radio stations, movie studios, department stores who put on special promotion stunts, play producers, and individuals who want sound effects for their own individual purposes.

Valentino's entrance into this odd business came about by accident some 15 years ago. At that time he was the proprietor of a small shop on Broadway where he sold sheet music, phonograph records, and had a booth where folks could make a souvenir record to mail to friends. A sort of talking letter.

That gave him the idea that suitable parting gift for a pal who was about to go to the country to live would be a record of the noises and bustle of the assorted sounds of a New York City street.

He took his recording equipment and set it up on Broadway and 42nd street. Out of the crowd that gathered to watch him, stepped a man who introduced himself as assistant stage manager of the play Panama Hattie, then in rehearsal which was to star Sylvia Sidney.

It seems they were slipping up on getting an authentic off-stage noise of a passing milk wagon. He asked Valentino if he could get it. Valentino thought he could, and did.

THAT IS WHAT started him in the noise racket—excuse the pun. In the last decade hardly an important play has been produced that does not bear the program credit line: "Sound effects by Thomas J. Valentino."

Currently, the loudest job on Broadway is the sound effects for South Pacific, which also entailed working with the cast to see that the off-stage sounds of marching feet and the firing of guns are all properly cued with the songs of Mary Martin and Enzo Pinza.

Each noise is imprisoned on an ordinary phonograph record and for anything out of about 1,000 different items carried in stock, the average price is $2. If he has to make up something special, he charges accordingly.

A dip here and there into the Valentino catalog reveals such sound effects as: bacon frying; autos (coming, going, speeding, skidding, brakes grinding), babble for gossip scenes; surf breaking on the shore, dishes breaking, walking on gravel, putting ice in glass and filling with liquor, and various noises.

Getting sounds like machine-gun fire or the rush of water as a submarine submerges involves trade secrets he will not reveal. Otherwise, he'll talk about his experiences.

ONCE he took his sound apparatus up to the Bronx zoo to get authentic "jungle" animal noises. "It wasn't easy," he recalled, "because the animals up there are well-fed and happy. What have they got to roar about? Believe me, the keepers had to poke them plenty to get some real wild roars out of them."

According to Valentino, the play Our Town, starring Martha Scott in the stage and screen versions, set an all-time high for sound effects, some 60 in all.

There were the dock's crow at dawn, train whistles, crickets chirping, a horse's whinny, factory whistles, the school bell, rolling thunder, and a clock's chimes to name a few—all of which had to be run off on cue by an assistant stage manager.

One of the most unusual uses to which Valentino's sound effects were put occurred, when, Adm. Richard E. Byrd and his crew broadcast from the icy wastes of Little America, back in 1933. Listeners heard them tell about their experiences against a background of noises of howling winds, the sharp barking of sledge dogs and the crunching of snow.

The talking part of the program was strictly on the level. However, those background sounds—the admiral knew in advance that he could lead a dog to the microphone but he couldn't force it to bark on cue, nor could he make the wind howl when wanted. So, he thoughtfully took along Valentino's record No. 1027, Howling Winds; No. 1155, Barking Dogs; and No. 1198, Walking in Snow. And the laudatory comment relayed to him by wireless convinced him of the wisdom of using canned sound.

John Graham, Retired Policeman, Dies In Hospital

John Graham, 61, of 317 S. Warren-av, a former city policeman, died Tuesday night in White Cross Hospital. He entered the Police Department March 1, 1921, and retired April 1, 1938, under Police Chief John H. Dunn.

While directing traffic at Broad and High-sts he was struck by a streetcar June 20, 1935, suffering a fractured skull. He had been in ill health ince that time.

Called an "ideal traffic officer" by Chief Frank L. Harrison, he had worked under Harrison, then became a corporal in charge of downtown traffic.

A member of Glenwood Methodist Church, Mr. Graham was a member of Fraternal Order of Police, Franklin Post, American Legion, West Gate Lodge and West Gate Chapter of Masons.

Surviving are his wife, Celesta; four sons, John E., 65 Letchworth-av; Theodore and Clarence, 254 S. Eureka-av; George, 66 Souder-av; a sister, Mrs. Susan Kuhn of Logan; and four grandchildren.

Friends may call at the residence. Funeral will be at 2 p. m. Friday in Glenwood Methodist Church. Burial will be in Sunset Cemetery.

Household Hint

Fresh iodine stains can be removed with ammonia; or dip in hot starch, soak in warm suds and wash as usual.

Attorney Lists Lake Cleanup Possibilities

The City Attorney's office this week reported to Henry A. Koontz, Hilltop councilman, on what action can legally be taken to clean up the Westgate Park lake.

At present a sanitary sewer from homes in the county, just west of the city limits on Derrer-rd, drains into the lake and contaminates it. Fish and waterplant life cannot exist in the polluted water. During the summer unfavorable odors were detected along the open ditch and at the lake.

To date neither Service Director Elmer Keller nor the county commissioners have assumed the responsibility of cleaning up the park pond. As early as 1947 the state health engineer reported to the county that the existing sanitary sewer system in the area immediately west of the park was "not satisfactory under best conditions."

Makes Recommendations

City Attorney Richard Gordon made the following recommendations in his report to Koontz, chairman of the City Council Service Committee:

(1) Have the city engineer contact the county health department and find out what houses (on the west side of Derrer-rd) are still dumping their overflow into storm drains that lead to the park and also whether these owners have complied with the county health board's orders as to proper construction and operation of their septic tanks.

(2) A new lateral sanitary sewer in Derrer-rd is needed . . . upon petition by the property owners, the county should construct a new sewer. The owners on the west side of Derrer should be willing to petition for this.

(3) The city should remove the scum and growth along the shores of the lake.

This report puts the responsibility of cleaning the lake, and keeping it clean, on three parties—the county, first with the biggest job; second, the property owners, and third, the city parks department.

"What Is 1-23?" Read On and See

What is 1-23?

This is the code name for the 23rd anniversary celebration of the Hilltonia EUB Church, the first such celebration in the new church building at Columbian and Springmont-avs.

The Anniversary-Homecoming Day celebration will be held in the basement of the church, Oct. 16. Services will be held at 9:30 a. m., 2:30 and 7:30 p. m. A dinner will be served at 12:30 for members and their friends.

Rev. C. M. Bowman, conference superintendent, will be the speaker in the morning service and the Adult Choir and Children's Choir will furnish the special music. The afternoon service will consist of an informal song service and greetings from visiting pastors.

Since Oct. 16 is Brotherhood Day, the men of the church are in charge of the evening meeting. Prof. J. F. Smith of Otterbein College will be the speaker. Special music will be furnished by Richard Harris and some of his students in Grove City School. The men of the church will also furnish special music.

On May 28, 1948, excavation was started for the new church and the congregation held the first service in the basement unit, early in January, of this year. The brick bungalow where services had been held for many years, has since been completed as a parsonage at a cost of approximately $7800 and Rev. and Mrs. Parr are settled in their new home.

The Board of Trustees and Finance Board have set 1953 as the time for dedication of the completed church. Prior to Oct. 16, each member will have been contacted and given the opportunity to make a pledge on the building fund. The goal for the day is $6000.

Union Official At Ternstedt Plant Says Industrial Peace, Insurance Is Union Goal

By Bill Gibbon

Industrial peace, no wage increase, and pensions and health insurance, as possible attainments—that is the picture of the year to come for auto workers as summed up today by an official of the General Motors' Ternstedt local union.

Young, intelligent, aggressive Charles Abram, 390 S. Richardson-av, is financial secretary of the United Auto Workers-CIO local union at the Ternstedt plant on Georgesville-rd at W. Broad-st. Abram's union represents all factory workers there.

While I was interviewing Mr. Paul L. Jones, factory manager at Ternstedt, last week, I wondered what his employees thought about some of the things I asked him. I decided then to interview a representative employee of the plant, and ask him the same questions I had asked Jones.

It so happens that Jones and Abrams agree on several items. Their answers to the same questions are quite similar, as a comparison of their stories will bear out.

Born In Ohio

Abram was born 30 years ago in New Straitsville, O., in the center of Ohio's mine fields. At the age of three his family moved to New Lexington, where he graduated from high school in 1934.

After graduation he came to Columbus and worked at the Uptown Theater and the Carson-Pirie-Scott Floor Covering Co. In May, 1941, seeing that our nation would soon have to go to war, Abram joined the Army Air Force. During his four and one-half years in the army, he served as a technical sergeant with the Air Traffic Control.

Abram spent 13 months at Marseilles, France, where he directed air traffic on the field there. During his service in the U. S. he directed air traffic at Barksdale Field in Louisiana and the Columbia Air Base in South Carolina.

Upon discharge from the army in December, 1945, Abram returned to Columbus and entered Ohio State University where he majored in foreign languages and foreign commerce.

Joins Ternstedt

In October, 1947, he joined the Ternstedt staff as a steel slitter, a job of slitting huge rolls of steel, which he still has. His department handles the metal when it first arrives at the factory.

Last April, when the Ternstedt workers held their annual union elections, Abram was elected to the office of financial secretary.

Abram agreed with plant manager Paul Jones on the "recession" question. He, too, doesn't think there is one now. "Furthermore, I don't think there'll be a severe depression in several years," he declared.

Charles Abram

"The international economic situation has, and will continue to have, a very direct effect on our national economy," he said. The lay-offs, at Timken's and other plants in Columbus and the nation, are normal, Abram thinks. He expects, and hopes, the Ternstedt plant will convert from 1949 to 1950 styles without any major lay-offs.

"Auto sales have a direct bearing on our employment," he stated, "but the demand for GM cars will continue for some time." Abram likes the GM autos. He drives a late model Oldsmobile, which he perhaps helped build.

Abram feels there should definitely be a price drop. "The wage question is out of the picture this year, so that eliminates the cry of 'higher wages, higher prices'," he declared.

Pensions for workers over 65 and health insurance are the issues this year for the auto and steel industries," rather than wage increases," according to Union Leader Abram.

"I hope the Ford-UAW-CIO settlement on the pension plan will establish a pattern in the auto industry. If steel settles in favor of the pensions, that will have a great effect on what GM auto workers get when our contract comes up for negotiation next spring," Abram remarked.

"The workers in all industries—auto, steel and coal—should get a pension after they work all their life for the company. The officials of the corporations get large pensions when they retire," Abram added.

The pension question is one on which Jones and Abram might disagree. But on the matter of the international situation, they agree. Both say that the "cold war" is not likely to develop into a "hot" one.

Abram's explanation of the "cold war" is that it is "difficult to negotiate with the Russians." "We don't understand each other too well because of the difference in our backgrounds."

Abram and his local union do not negotiate the contract between the union and the company. That's done by Walter Reuther and the international union in Detroit and representatives of the General Motors Corporation.

The job of the local union is to "process" grievances for the employees. When a grievance occurs, the matter is first taken up with the department foreman. If it can't be settled there, it goes up through the channels until it might eventually be handled at one of the weekly meetings between the union's shop committee and management, which is represented by Ray Woods, industrial relations manager of the plant.

Union Human

The union is a very human institution. The Ternstedt local is a hearty supporter of the Community Chest, the Red Cross and other worthy organizations. The union and its members provide a goodly sum in each drive.

"This is my first experience in a union," Abram told me, "but I think unions are a good thing. They give a worker a feeling of security and independence, and they are able to relax to a certain degree while doing their work. Unions are an American institution."

Abram has lived in other sections of Columbus, but he likes the people on the Hilltop, "It's more like living in a small town."

Abram has no ambitions to take over Jones' job. He's willing to leave the operation of the plant to Jones. He likes the work at the plant, even though he has been on the night shift for the last 10 months.

New Scoutmaster Training Course Opens Oct. 16

Hilliards Young Farmers, FFA Sponsor Swine Sale

Above is one of the Poland China gilts that will be offered for sale in the Hilliards Vo-Ag pure bred swine sale.

• • •

The Young Farmers' Association and the Future Farmers of America chapters of the Hilliards High School will sponsor their eighth annual pure-bred swine sale Thursday, Oct. 20, 8 p. m., at the Franklin County Fair Grounds, Hilliards.

Eight boars and 23 gilts have been consigned to this sale, according to A. E. Ritchie, advisor of the organizations, and Bill Miller, president of the F. F. A. chapter.

Y. F. A. and F. F. A. members have made the following consignments; CHESTER WHITES—two boars and three gilts, by Bernard and David Geyer; two boars and three gilts, by Howard Geyer; DUROC JERSEYS—two gilts, by David Horst; one gilt, by Bill Miller; three boars and six gilts, by Gerald Walker.

HAMPSHIRES—four gilts, by Elmo Spring; one boar, by Charles Williams; POLAND CHINAS—two gilts, by Albert Woerner; SPOTTED CHINA POLANDS—two gilts, by Edward L. Parker.

Registration papers will be present for all swine sold. Prize winning swine, as well as production registry, will be represented at the sale.

The committee in charge of the sale includes: Bernard Geyer, chairman, Eugene Nunamaker and Alvin Rings. The F. F. A. boys will operate a lunch stand in conjunction with the sale.

The F. F. A. Chapter will award its two chain gilts just prior to the sale. Jay Kaltenbach will receive the Hampshire gilt and Robert Hooper will be awarded the Duroc Jersey gilt.

Colonel C. W. Latham and Calvin McDavid are to be the auctioneers. V. F. Patterson will handle the job of clerk.

Thatchers See White Cliffs of Dover As Boat Leaves for Continent

Monday, June 27th

We drove away toward Victoria Station and the beginning of our first exploration of Europe.

The Golden Arrow train was waiting when we arrived at the station. After our previous sad experience with first class train accomodations we were completely surprised on this one. It was the equal of any pullman train in America with the best in the way of fittings and shining in polished cleanliness. Promptly at 10:00 o'clock we started the journey and by noon we were in Dover. Having read, during the war, of the terrific bomb raids on this town we were expecting to get some glimpse of the damages but we were disappointed. All we saw of the town was the dock at which the train stopped and from which we boarded the Channel Steamer. As we left Dover for the hour and a half water trip we got a sea-front view of the White Cliffs of Dover about which we had sung so many times back home.

It was lunch time as we crossed the channel. The lunch was hardly more than ended when we noticed that we were coming into port at Calais, France.

From the boat we went directly to the Paris-bound train. This was also a Golden Arrow with equipment almost identical with its English counterpart, even to our reserved seat numbers.

While en route to Paris through a rather uninteresting countryside we were kept busy for a while by uniformed men who were constantly coming through the car. First there was the regular conductor, then the French counterpart of the pullman conductor. After these came two men to examine our passports. They were followed by another who examined our prepared questionnaire on how much and what kinds of money we were bringing into the country. If there were any customs officers on the train they did not come near us so we had no bother about opening our luggage for examination.

It was hot on this ride to Paris and especially so since we were sitting on the sunny side of the car. There were no drapes or shades which could be pulled to keep out the sun and the extremely wide windows would not open. As we grew warmer and warmer we asked the porter if we could not get some air but apparently he could not understand English so we had to suffer on in the heat for many miles. Not too long before reaching Paris, a gentlemen in the neighboring seat noticed our discomfiture and relieved us with some useful information. There was a lever, partially hidden at the side of the seat which could be pressed downward, thus opening the window. From then on we had a cool ride.

At five thirty the Golden Arrow pulled into the station in Paris. At this point we were beginning to wonder how we were going to find our way about as we descended from the train and found ourselves in the midst of a hustling crowd of people who spoke nothing but French and all we knew of the language was "Oui, oui." We picked up our bags and started walking along the platform, hoping to find some rays of understanding.

The ray of understanding soon came to us. Approaching us was a familiar face wreathed in a smile of greeting. The owner of the face was Solon Gilmore (Jean Ett's hurband), who had come down right after leaving work in order to be our first French guide.

For the next few minutes we were kept busy while we hustled through the crowds while we tried to listen to the passing French, dodge the scampering porters and trade with Solon all the news happenings many months past. Meantime Solon was guiding us out of the station to his waiting taxi. The taxi was an army jeep with a French driver.

As we started through the streets of Paris we tried our best to see what the city looked like but army jeeps are not made for sightseeing. The only way we could see outside was to slump almost to the floor and peek out from under the close fitting canvas roof. Occasionally we would get glimpses of the numerous sidewalk cafes. Part of the time we held our breath and braced for a bump as pedestrians jumped out almost from under the wheels of our car. That was when Solon explained to us that in Paris all cars seem to travel at 50 miles an hour or even more through the downtown streets. As he put it, French drivers drive with one hand on the horn and a foot on the accelerator while pedestrians get across the street as best they can.

Running at such a fast rate and turning corners on two wheels, it did not take long for us to arrive at 100 Boulevard Perraire, the apartment residence of Jean and Solon. Turning off the street, we went through what we thought was a tunnel. Then we found that this was an enclosed driveway into the apartment building. Solon led the way to an elevator which lifted us slowly to one of the top floors.

Jean had been waiting for our arrival, the first hometown folks to visit her since she came to France.

Soon the call came, in French, that dinner was ready and for the first time in a month and a half we sat down to a real American dinner.

Our evening with Jean then continued with more and more review of past events. Solon had left with Jean the daily mail, which had not yet been opened. We paused in our talk long enough for her to read her letters. One of these proved to be a reunion for Hilltop Lutheran Church members. It was a letter from Rev. and Mrs. Mitchell and enclosed in the letter was a picture.

There was still more to be talked about but days have a way of ending at midnight so we decided to finish the discourse tomorrow and turn in for our first sleep in Paris.

George Washington's cabinet was composed of secretaries of State, Treasury and War.

Modern Finance Moves Into New Offices

The Hilltop Branch of the Modern Finance Company moved into its new and larger offices at 2434 W. Broad-st Wednesday morning. The company had been temporarily located for several months at 2370 W. Broad-st.

The new offices are modern in every detail. The interior has been completely redecorated with cream colored walls and partitions of light oak paneling. The offices are fludrescent lighted and are equipped with the latest type of all steel furniture.

Manager Jack Miser called attention to the installation of three private customer rooms which will further Modern's policy of absolute privacy and confidential handling of loan requests.

The Modern Finance Company opened its Hilltop Branch in November, 1948. Company officials have expressed themselves as more than pleased with the reception given them by the residents of the Hilltop and the West Side.

Times Better, But Need Still Great In Ritthem

The people of Ritthem, Holland, the Hilltop's adopted Dutch town, is still in need of our help. This was indicated in a recent letter from Ritthem townspeople to Mrs. Bertha Gatten, 2037 Floral-av.

The most urgent needs now, according to Mrs. J. G. Bowser, 35 N. Hague-av, secretary of a local committee that writes and sends clothing and articles to the war-stricken community, are cloth with which to make dresses and suits, buttons, needles, pins, thread and some "luxuries", such as nylon hose and soap. These items are still heavily rationed and are not readily obtainable—"even with money."

According to an article in the Hudson, O., "Times", that town has adopted the village of Wester Souburg, Holland, a neighbor of Ritthem. The citizens of Mentor, O., are sending contributions to the Finnish town of Suolahti.

In Mentor the children have a new treatment of "beggars" night. Instead of candy for themselves, they begged for buttons, needles, soap, thread and pins for their friends overseas.

Lt. and Mrs. Charles Butte recently visited Ritthem. Lt. Butte is stationed in Europe. His mother, Hazel Butte, is a former employee at Sparks-Kent Food Market. In November, 1947, she accompanied her daughter-in-law to Italy to join Lt. Butte.

If you are interested in writing or sending packages to these worthy Dutch people you may obtain the names and addresses of Ritthem citizens from Mrs. Bowser.

The deadline for sending Christmas parcels to European residents is Nov. 15.

The Leaf shall be Green

SYNOPSIS

Marvell Coomes becomes acquainted with his little daughter, Katherine, when he returns to Boston from a distant city to attend his late wife, Elizabeth's funeral. They had lived apart for years. He is despised by his aristocratic Back Bay in-laws, especially by brother-in-law Ernestine, whose tyranny had helped wreck [illegible]. Proctor is furious when he learns that the deceased sister has left her entire personal estate—and the custody of her daughter—to this estranged husband. Lawyer Ben Hall, an old family friend, is called in to contest the will. He tries to make peace between the men, but fails. Marvell decides to turn back Katherine's guardianship to Elizabeth and to take up his broken career in New York, once more.

CHAPTER NINE

MARVELL continued walking up the Mall until he was almost opposite the Barlow house. To waste a little time, he turned off the main street into the narrow, cobbled alleyway that ran behind the houses. A few stubborn young trees shook their pale foliage clothlessly over the gray clapboard fences. Though many of the windows were open and curtains were fanning out in the light wind, the narrow-backed houses still looked half asleep. The Barlow house was third from the end. He picked out Katherine's windows. They, too, were flung up and the pink geraniums were rakishly veiled with white dimity. If she should lean out and call to him, "Have you come back for me?" how would he ever be able to say goodbye. That one visit alone together had given her a hold upon him.

He tried the door to the back yard. It was latched. He heard Annie's cheerful voice as she came out into the yard, singing "Daisy, Daisy, give me your answer true." She sloshed water over the brick steps, then he heard the kitchen door slam behind her. His eyes traveled upward again to the second floor. The red velvet curtains in the library were partly drawn. If Proctor were standing by the window and saw him loitering in the alley, would he bar the front door against him in remembered anger of last night? There was no one looking out, but so sharp was his fear that he might not have this goodbye with her, that he hastened back to Commonwealth Avenue.

Annie was surprised to see him. She sniffed a little audibly around his shoulders as she took his coat. He caught her eye and whispered, "No evidence, Annie." She blushed. "Mr. Barlow's gone, sir. Mrs. Barlow is upstairs."

"Oh? I came to see my daughter. Is she about? I'll wait here." Marvell admired Emily's efforts to offset the Proctorian influence in the reception room. It was playacting that he appreciated. Had his brother-in-law already gone off to Ben's office in the hope of erasing Elizabeth's whim from her will? That was a pity because Proctor hated waste and waste it would be.

Emily entered breathlessly, her round little bosom rising up and down in spite of the restraint of her hand pressing against it.

"Good morning, Emily. I've come to say goodbye."

"Have you already seen Proctor?"

"Good Lord, no, unless he was down on the wharves this morning. I'm starting the day early—has he left for the office?"

She nodded, not speaking.

"I'll see him later then. I want to see Katherine before I leave for New York. What do you say to my taking her to lunch?" He was eager to have her approve his suggestion; the idea had just suddenly occurred to him. But he saw her eyes were heavy with tears.

"What's the matter, Emily?" he asked gently.

"It's Katherine."

"What's the matter with her?" He could have shaken her till the tears fell out of those puffy blue eyes.

"I am to get her ready. Oh, that dreadful letter. Proctor is badly hurt but he says he will do it."

"Do what?" he asked irritably.

"Turn her over to you. If Elizabeth wanted it so much she had to beg for it, he insists you are to be responsible. She is to go with you today. Even her furniture." Emily gave a little sob—the furniture added the final pathetic touch to her mind. Marvell almost laughed. He couldn't make head or tail of this overwrought family. "Poor Kit," he said aloud, "to be pushed around so."

"I thought naturally she would stay with us—I'd love to keep her here. She's like my own daughter, but everything's changed." She looked at him, without tears now, slightly accusing. "The letter asked 'to keep her as close to her father as possible.'"

The letter? He remembered it then, a square envelope that Ben had handed Proctor last night. "What else did the letter say?" He had broken a pathway between the stiffly arranged chairs and was walking back and forth.

"I don't know. I didn't read it. He made up his mind last night. I hardly slept at all. I sent her off to school this morning—she was eager to go back—and I hoped she'd look upon it as a bad dream. She is going with you."

Marvell pivoted around slowly. He would not let Emily see his face for her words had taken the wind out of him. "Very well, humor him. Put enough for a few days in one bag. The Hails will take her for a night or two." God, Proctor was stupid—he'd never let her out of his hands; then why this cheap, childish gesture?

"But the big things?" asked Emily in despair, her mind still on the pattern Proctor had laid down.

"We'll get everything in a few days if necessary. If you want the trouble of it, send them to a storehouse. When does she return from school?"

"Annie goes for her about eleven-thirty."

"I'll be back then. Where is Proctor now?"

"Either at his office or with—Ben." She hesitated a little, taken aback by his crispness. He reiterated that he would be back on time and left her, slamming the front door as he went out. She watched him stride across to the Mall from the window. Suppose he should go off and over-imbibe; should she have sent for Katherine immediately? She had great faith in the staying power of children over the outbursts of men. It would be dreadful if he came back at noon in "that condition."

Not that he was ever abusive or violent—he never was more than a slight waver, an exaggerated courtesy. He was more pathetic than anything else, she reflected. She straightened the chairs and sighed heavily as she went upstairs to pack.

Who could doubt the sun's power, the seeds' growth, the trees' immortality? But Marvell, walking down the sunny Mall, felt the promise of the morning fading at the peremptory touch of reality. He went to the nearest hotel and telephoned Ben.

"Is Proctor with you now?"

"Yes."

"All right—I'll just ask questions. Will you take Katherine for two or three days?"

"Certainly."

"I hope it won't put Fanny out, but she is familiar with you both."

"We shall be delighted."

"I'll drop her around after lunch, and get to your office about three."

Marvel had been gripping the telephone so hard that his fingers were asleep. He rubbed them awake before putting in another call for Abbot. He made an appointment for the next half-hour. If he ran into Proctor, so much the better.

The firm of Barlow and Abbot had been founded on John Barlow's exceptional ability as an engineer, his friend, Abbot's capacity as an executive, and his wife's money in farm machinery. It had been a happy combine.

Mary Proctor Barlow had died suddenly when Elizabeth was two. Mr. Barlow, though he never forsook his outer amiability, was deeply hurt in side. And in a sentimental fashion, he thought Proctor's guardianship of Elizabeth pretty and touching. When later he discovered it to have turned into a jealous possessiveness, he ingenuously believed that Marvell could preempt the safety of the future. He had liked Marvell immensely, recognized in him a vitality that the family had lost with his wife's death. Nevertheless the overtones of convention forced him to side with Proctor. He had never insisted on Marvell's joining the firm. He had permitted Elizabeth to be a hostage to them both. He hoped, as so many people do as they grow old, that time will settle everything. As if the minutes ticking away on every watch in the finite world could harness friend and enemy, mix light and dark, companion caution with bravado. Sometimes the young are wiser.

It was thinking of old Barlow that caused Marvell, on the way to his appointment with Abbot, to buy a hat and have his shoes shined. He had always liked the old man and he remembered how he'd warmed to him in the lonely desperation of their first interview—desperate to Marvell because if he had not landed this small opening as draftsman he would have had to go on to New York and he had pretty much on the thin edge. He could pull himself in shape for this last breath, at any rate, and he wanted, too, to cut a figure with Kit at lunch.

Joe Martell Says . . .

'Good Taste Never Hurt Anyone' Or 'Types In the Self Service Market'

The following is your writer's conception of a few individuals one meets in today's ultra-modern, self-service markets. They all act the same (the various types, I mean) whether the locale be Boston, Columbus, Denver or Erie. Perhaps you may have run across the sort I refer to. In every market there's one who is—

In No Hurry! This gal blocks the turnstile or small passageway that the manager has so painstakingly constructed in order that his customers may have a quick entrance. The type in question is ridiculing a hat worn by another lady who is at the meat counter. She has an "all-the-time-in-the-world" attitude while you have a cake in the oven, you're sneaking out while your kid is taking a nap, and you are double-parked, to boot. Shooting is too good for the type of this sort.

Type number two reminds you somewhat of a football player for she's putting up plenty of Indifference! As you are reaching for a jar of Cousin Beulah's Munchie-Wunchie Pickles, an arm shoots in front of you and blocks your reach. She wants a jar, too. But as it is good taste to practice this interference or block play, you can do nothing but make a fast about face and walk quickly away before the manager spots the jar of broken pickles on his floor which you "accidently" dropped.

Then you may have the unfortunate experience to run across the—

Denouncer! You know you're being extravagant, but that roast beef does look good and you're going to cook a special dinner for the family tonight until a lady sidles up to you and shouts: "Dearie, take my advice and don't lay out $9.75 for that hunk of horsemeat! I bought a roast in this dump last week and wasted a buck's worth of gas on it and it was so tough even the dog wouldn't touch it!" So—you settle for a pound of frankfurts; your dream of a super dinner shattered.

Last but not least you've no doubt run across the person who is always

In a Big Hurry! Each cashier is working feverishly to get the people out of the store as fast as they can. There's about 10 in the line and the customers all have their carts full of purchases when Mrs. "Ina Bighurry," somehow or other, manages to squeeze past them all and gets to the head of the line with her purchase. "I've only got one purchase," she explains to the folks in line whose faces show complete contempt. Then to the cashier: "Wrap this yeast cake up in a hurry!" (It wouldn't be so bad but this was the character who was so slow getting into the store!)

Well, all stories have a moral (or should have) but this one has an alternative—in rhyme—to wit: If others get away with stuff

That makes your day NOT bright—

Don't you fume or fret, my friend;
You, too, get in the FIGHT!

Jean From Hilliards Has Busy Year

A cow, Jean Pabst Burke, belonging to James Hock, of Hilliards, has completed a 365-day production test of 625 pounds of butterfat and 19,428 pounds of milk.

The test, made in Herd Improvement Registry, was supervised by the Ohio State University in cooperation with the Holstein-Freisian Association of America.

The cow was milked twice daily and was seven years old when the test began.

Kay Watts had visitors for several days. Her cousin from Bay City, Mich. was one of them. They had a good time

Millers from Millersport visited the Millers here in the neighborhood. The elder Mrs. Miller is recovering from a broken hip. We wish her rapid recovery.

This is "fire" week. Wonder why it is thus called when it is really fire-less week. The fire fighters are out to show us what not to do.

Loveberrys just returned from a week's vacation. They stayed at the home of relatives near the Ohio Caverns.

Shall we tell on Fred? Everyone near his house knows, so a few more won't make any difference. So here goes. His wife, Mrs. Freese, was boiling some catsup and while she was stirring it, some spurted up on Fred's neck and burned him. Fred howeled and upon putting his finger to his neck, thought he was bleeding and got panicky. He'll never hear the end of it Sheehys go cruising down the river on Sunday afterncons in their new boat. They bought it late in the season, but will use it in the future summers.

Mrs. Charles Crites took her kiddies to Newark for several days to visit her sister, Mrs. Reeder who has three children of her own. Mrs. Richard Vogel took her son along, too. Result? They all came back home for a rest.

Dotty Floyd was on the radio! She answered every question correctly in the Eastern Starlet Group on Housewives' I.Q. A well educated little housewife!

Creenons built lattice work on their porch and a child in the neighborhood misunderstood, and asked them when the "lettuce" was going to grow.

God Rebukes the Nations — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON — By Alfred J. Buescher

Scriptures—Isaiah 1:21-28; 10: 12; 19:19-25; 31.

The princes of the city of Jerusalem are rebellious, the Lord told Isaiah, and companions of thieves: every one loveth gifts, and followeth after rewards.

I will restore thy judges and thy counsellors as at the beginning, afterward thou shalt be called the city of righteousness, a faithful town.

Jehovah shall be known to Egypt, and the Egyptians shall know Jehovah in that day, and shall vow a vow unto Jehovah, and shall perform it.

In that day shall Israel be the third with Egypt and with Assyria, and a blessing in the midst of the earth.
MEMORY VERSE—Isaiah 2:4.

West Student To Offer Prayer At Y-Teen Service

Joan Deyo, West High School student of 2721 Fremont-st, will offer the closing prayer for a Y-Teen Recognition Service at Trinity Episcopal Service Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The candlelight ceremony will climax National Roll Call Week for Y-Teens, honoring senior high school girls who have joined Y-Teen clubs throughout the city this week. Y-Teens are younger members of the YWCA.

Junior high school girls who became Y-Teens during the week were recognized at an earlier service Oct. 11 at the YWCA. Taking part in the program were Yvonne Brewer, 1764½ Sandusky, and Vera Adams, 523 Catherine-st, both of Starling Junior High School.

Preceding the recognition services, a party and square dance event was given for new members at West High School.

YWCA staff members working with Y-Teens are: Helen Talbot, teen-age director; Mrs. Helen Seward and Mrs. Shirley Calhoun, assistants to the teen-age director.

Evangelist To Speak At Comm. Church

Rev. J. H. Dean has announced that Dr. S. Ellsworth Nothstine, evangelist of Visalia, California, and David Skipper, soloist of Columbus, will appear at the Hilltop Community Church, 179 N. Huron-av, Oct. 17-30, each night at 7:30 and at 10:45 a. m. on Sunday.

Inspirational preaching and singing will be heard at each service.

Dr. Nothstine has been a prominent figure in the Youth for Christ movement on the west coast, and as a radio preacher.

Highland Ave. Friends Church To Have Evangelistic Service Series

Rev. and Mrs. Dee Warren Cobb

This Sunday will mark the opening of special evangelistic services at the Highland Avenue Friends Church located at Highland and Floral-avs. The evangelists are Rev. and Mrs. Dee Warren Cobb of Wilmore, Ky.

Rev. Cobb will lead the services in song and bring the gospel messages. Mrs. Cobb will preside at the piano and bring special numbers in music on the vibra-harp.

The Cobb evangelists are most capable in their field of service and have been greatly enjoyed by those churches where they have given services. Service time will be 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. on Sundays with week-night services at 7:30. There will also be afternoons following school.

The Highland Avenue Church is looking with anticipation to the coming of these workers and the meetings ahead. The special services will continue through Sunday, Oct. 30.

BOY SCOUTS IN THE Southwest District

Den 2, Pack 86

Cubs of Den 2 enjoyed a barbecue Tuesday evening at Westgate Park Shelter House, which was given for the graduating cubs from the den.

Those honored were Bob Edwards, Gary Glass, Freddie Martin, Mike Ramney, Bob Courtney, Jimmy Wilson, Dick Vadakin and Rodger Holstein. Gifts were given to each one leaving the den.

Cubs serving at the dinner were Bob DeWitt (denner) Michael Newlon, Freddie Martin and Gary Glass.

The award for the most achievements for the month went to Paul Dawson. Largest collection award went to E. G. Bucheib.

Plans were made to adopt Mrs. Barbara Laicher, age 82, of 634 Southwood-av. She will be sponsored by the cubs through the following year, as one of their projects.

A marshmallow toast followed the dinner, after which all joined in a football game. On Saturday morning the cubs took a hike to the Boy Scout camp on Climerd. Cooking achievements were made by E. G. Bucheib, Jackie Lamando who built their fire in record time. Others receiving cooking achievements were Mickey Leach, Billy McLaughlin (mascot) Earl Mangold.

ONE definition of education is that it is learning which better adapts a person to live so as to gain the good will of his fellow men and to enjoy peace of mind.

The broader concept of life may come through attendance of our schools and colleges, from travel, and last, but by no means least, development of one's spiritual consciousness.

Learning how to live in a world of conflicts entails acquiring knowledge of justice and fair dealing in one's relationships with his fellow man. It necessitates an appreciation of the rights of other persons. It teaches one to give a little so as to reach agreement with others who do not conform entirely with all of one's ideas about life.

Development of the proper spiritual consciousness may be quickened by church attendance and reading of the Bible. Regular habits in the direction of developing one's religious principles may best be formed in the childhood of life.

Education without religion leaves a vacuum in any man's life which teaches him in the long run that there is something besides money, something more than success; other things necessary than pleasure if peace of mind is to result.

The other things necessary are the things that we learn within our churches. They represent what we must do to acquire a oneness with our Creator.

MISS LAYNER DIES

By Jo Ann Sands

Emma Ethel Layner, who has been an English teacher at Starling Junior High for 31 years, passed away at White Cross Hospital on Monday, Oct. 3, after an illness of eight weeks. The funeral was held Thursday, Oct. 6.

Miss Layner also taught in Franklin County for one-half year and 11 years at Avondale Avenue School.

Miss Layner was a fine teacher and a conscientious worker, who had the best interests of the boys and girls at heart. Her passing is mourned by many whose lives she has touched.

Y-TEENS

By Deana Beavers

At Starling Junior High School we have a group called the Y-Teens. Miss Forbes, the teacher of geography at Starling, is the director of the group. There are 57 members. The officers are: president, Vera Adams; vice-president, Doris Saunders; secretary, Yvonne Brewer, and treasurer, Millie Bartolucci. Y-Teens meet every second Thursday.

Florence Woehrele, Mrs. Virginia Richey, Mrs. LeRoy Schoonover and Mrs. Billie Starch. This was an outdoor meeting and an ideal night for story telling, around the fireplace, which was handled by Mrs. Clayton Stickel, 656 Chestershire-rd, who is a member of the Columbus Story Tellers' League. We were all attentive children again, while listening to her very interesting stories. The hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Helen Bateman, Mrs. Christine English, Mrs. Sue Calland, and Mrs. Marjorie Lamb.

Two West High Teachers Landscape School Grounds

By Myron T. Seifert

When students returned to West High this week, of particular interest was the well groomed landscaping.

"Ground-work" was [illegible] months ago by Faculty Members Earl Reed and Clarence Bateman and their corps of workers.

The inner-court resembles the flowering walls of Babylon, flanked by a wide variety of colorful flowers including the wooden arbors bedecked with morning glories in pastel shades.

That one-time eye-sore at West to the rear of the building and newly fenced section for use by the girls' physical education department is now in blanket of green grass. Scores of West High students "dressed" the soil last spring with grass seed and fertilizer.

In the past the terrain on this field has been rough and uneven, with a limestone foundation forming a myrind of lakes after each rain.

Also completed under Mr. Bateman's supervision last fall was the erection of 1100 new steel bleacher seats; preparation for the blacktop sidewalk to the stadium; the painting of the scoreboard, bandstand and goal posts; and the new sideline markers for the football field, which have since been completed.

When Irvin F. Young was appointed to the position of West High principal three years ago, he immediately launched a movement to landscape and make exterior improvements.

Mr. Bateman, industrial arts instructor, was delegated four years ago by Mr. Young to see what additional improvements could be made on the outside of the building.

Mr. Bateman directed and aided in the removal of four dead elms from the school plot. The dead trees were replaced with sturdy pin oaks in front of the building, maples to the north and south sides, and a variety of trees at the rear of the building, all of which are growing well.

To prepare the baseball field for spring play and practice, Mr. Bateman's crew brought 15 tons of clay from an adjoining excavation, screened it, and mixed it with sand to form a foundation along the baselines, along which the runners could race.

Last spring a planting and replanting program for the flower beds was completed. Tulips, crocus, hyacinths and mums were planted in beds about the school yard.

Then, too, look at the green carpet of grass on the local gridiron, when you attend games at Magly Field this fall. This was in part made possible by the efforts of Mr. Bateman and his boys.

Three U. S. Presidents died on July 4 — John Adams, Thomas Jefferson and James Madison.

Old Paper Example Of Journalism In 80's

An interesting relic and a good example of post-bellum journalism in the United States is the paper brought in by Eddie Walker, 240 Demorest-rd, dated July 30, 1885, and carrying the news report of the death of Ulysses S. Grant.

The story covers the entire front page of the paper, set solid, and runs over on the second page. The only picture on the page is a two-column drawing of Gen. Grant. The headline on the story reads "DEATH CONQUERS ALL."

The journalistic style of putting the latest facts in the first few paragraphs had not developed, so it isn't until near the bottom of the second column that the story tells of the general's death.

The first part of the story gives a detailed description of the death-bed scene, even listing the respiratoion rate at several times during the last evening of Grant's life. Those in the house at the time are listed, down to "Henry the nurse".

The inside of the paper, "The New York Weekly Witness", is no less interesting than the front page. One choice story carried the head "Texas Cowboys Offered to Russia." It told of a Polish man in Dallas who offered 100 cowboys to the Russian Czar in the event of a war with England. The Pole, it is said, made the cowboys appear "like a cross between an alligator and a centaur."

One reader writes to the editor of the paper urging growers of barley to feed the grain to animals rather than to those who will make alcoholic drinks with it.

A bit of bigotry appears in the paper in the story on Mormons in Germany as the editor writes, "We shall be surprised if Bismarck allows them to pursue their foul propaganda with impunity."

UN Week: This is United Nations Week, and several Hilltop organizations are offering material to help people understand the UN. The celebration of UN week follows closely on the recent announcement that we no longer are exclusive possessors of the atom bomb.

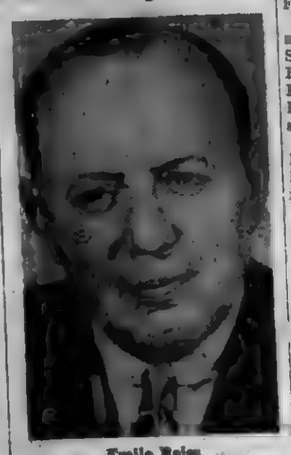
No one expected our atomic monopoly to last. However we still have the one weapon we can depend upon. That weapon is democracy; we should strive to strengthen and expand it. Since the principal of the UN is the world-wide adoption of democratic ways, it would be a good idea for all of us to know more about the UN.

Clark Redick Wins $10; Picks Three In Four

"Professor Bum Steer" must have put a double-whammy on "Professor Pig-Skin's" star pupils this week. None of the contestants picked all four winners, so the winner of the contest is the one picking only one losing team, and getting the nearest correct.

The ten dollar check goes to Clark Redick, 32 Binns-blvd, who missed the Northwestern - Michigan game, but guessed the others correctly.

Jim Remington, 123 N. Ogden - av, wins second prize of two tickets to the Westmont Theater this week. He also guessed wrong in the Michigan game.



Professor Pig-Skin still has hopes of finding some good predictions for this weeks games. The contest appears in the Record today, so why don't you enter?

Jones Says Ternstedt Work To Continue As Long As Possible

The Ternstedt Fisher Body plant at W. Broad-st and Georgesville-rd was shut down last Friday for "an adjustment of inventory in connection with the steel shutdown."

The plant opened on schedule this week and plant manager Paul Jones said the plant will maintain production as long as possible. Approximately 3000 hourly-wage employes were affected by last week's shutdown.

Emile Reiss Is Candidate For Mayor

Emile Reiss

A former Hilltop resident entered the 1951 mayoralty race by announcing his candidacy last week.

Emile Reiss, an attorney who resided for a number of years at 96 N. Oakley-av, said he will conduct a non-partisan campaign on a reform platform.

Reiss advocates municipal ownership of the public transportation system, a police department free from politics, and repeal of the city income tax.

He added that the Hilltop was a "self-sustaining community with needs and problems of its own, and should be given proper recognition by city hall."

He was a candidate a year ago for sheriff on the Republican primary ballot. He said he didn't believe his candidacy was premature since "we may have to elect a mayor next year if Mayor Rhodes moves to the state house."

Howard R. Young Succumbs Today

Howard Royal Young, 49, of 319 Eldon-av, died this morning in White Cross Hospital. He was a research worker as a radio engineer.

Mr. Young was a member of the Neocacia Lodge of Masons, the Radio Club, and the Institute of Radio Engineers.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Freda Young; a son, Howard L., of 308 N. Burgess-av; and a daughter, Mrs. Loren Ford, of 93 Aldridge-rd.

Friends may call at the Jerry Spears Funeral Home Wednesday and until time of services at 2 p. m. Thursday. Burial will be in Glen Rest Cemetery.

CORRECTION PLEASE!

Emery Emig, 469 Townsend-av, recently purchased a Chrysler rather than a Crosley as reported in The Hilltop Record Thursday.

4 From Hilltop In Citizenship Class

Four Hilltop persons are enrolled in the citizenship class at the Evening School at Central High School, according to Mrs. Faye B. Reeder, class instructor.

Those enrolled in the class are Mr. and Mrs. John J. Schmidt, 239 N. Hague-av, from Rumania; Mrs. Ada Nell, 395 S. Powell-av, from Canada, and Mrs. Maria Weekly, 541 Helen-st, from Belgium.

Mrs. Palma Policaro, 495 S. Eureka-av, from Italy, finished her class instruction this summer.

The class is the first step in getting citizenship papers. Since anyone marrying an American citizen is required to obtain papers.

Beat It Cops! The Kids Are Coming

When a man bites a dog, that's news. But it's even bigger news when the kids chase the cops. And that's just what is going to happen here on the Hilltop on Hallowe'en night.

Hilltop children are going to get some dough out of chasing police cruisers on Monday night, Oct. 31—pretzel dough. Starting at 6 p. m., 25 cruisers throughout the city will distribute 10,000 bags of free pretzels. When a cruiserman sees a young Hallowe'ener the policeman will give him a five-cent bag of pretzels.

According to police department plans, three extra cruisers will be assigned to the Hilltop and West Side that night, with two travelling on the Hilltop exclusively. That will make a total of three in this community, with five west of the Scioto River. Each cruiser will be supplied with 400 bags of pretzels.

The pretzels are being distributed by the police in cooperation with Halter's Pretzels, Inc., of Canton, and the Buckeye Foods, Inc., of Columbus.

The object of the plan is to have the children run after the police cruisers, instead of the police chasing the kids down back alleys. Records show decrease of over 70% in Hallowe'en juvenile vandalism and property destruction in other cities where this plan operated last year.

Twelve hundred bags of pretzels will be distributed on the Hilltop.

FORGET-ME-NOT BALL

Nancy Fleming, West High School student, was one of the attendants to the Forget-Me-Not Queen at the ball sponsored by the DAV at the Southern Hotel recently.

Ruby Halderman of Starling Junior High was one of the queen's court of honor. The ball was given for girls who aided in the recent Forget-Me-Not sale.

Competition High In 'Stars Of Tomorrow' Talent Search

Keith Miller, the star of tomorrow in the West High alumni show this year, will appear in the "Stars of Tomorrow" contest at the Old Trail Theater Wednesday night.

Applications received at The Hilltop Record office this week indicate a hard fought battle in the YMCA-sponsored "Stars of Tomorrow" contest at the Old Trail Theater Wednesday night.

Lee Koontz will be the MC of the third weekly contest for talented Hilltoppers.

Applicants accepted to date are:

Nancy Cooper, 316 Midland-av, tap dancer.

Colleen Lou Green, 228 S. Southampton-av, tap dancer.

Patti Miesse, 622 Racine-av, magic act.

Keith Miller, 360 Nashoba-av, accordionist.

Marilyn Shroyer, 239 N. Burgess-av, ballad dancer.

Susan Ann Vince, 410 Cherry-dr, acrobatic dancer.

The winner of this show will appear in the finals with the other weekly winners.

One To Reign At Homecoming Game

By Myron T. Seifert

The field was narrowed to five this week in the elections to choose a Homecoming Queen at West High School.

The queen will preside at the homecoming festivities on Nov. 4 as the Cowboys meet Cleveland Garfield Heights at Magly Field.

Ten candidates vied for royal honors in the election held last Friday. Survivors of this election are Shirley Cline, Joan Deyo, Marilyn Gauggel, Betty Rosderer and Betty Walker.

Balloting will take place on al court.

these five on Wednesday. If one of them receives a majority vote at this time, she will be queen. If no majority is established, another election will be held Oct. 21.

Runners-up will form the royal court.

Camp Chase Hallowe'en Dance Oct. 29

Two important dates lie in the near future for members of the Camp Chase Post of the American Legion. They are Oct. 29 and Nov. 11, according to John R. Trickey, editor of the post's newspaper, "The Chaser."

On Oct. 29, the post will hold its annual Hallowe'en Party Dance, at the post headquarters from 9 to 12 p. m.

A breakfast will be held at the post on Armistice Day, Nov. 11, from 6 to 9 a. m. Following the breakfast the members will participate in the parade downtown.

The Ohio Department of the Legion will award a General Electric television set to each post that shows the highest per cent of gain in membership above their membership over the past three years.

The post's regular meetings are held on the first and third Fridays of each month.

First Red Feather Report Oct. 21

The first report meeting for the Community Chest campaign is to be held Friday noon, Oct. 21, at the Southern Hotel. Volunteers will lunch at their own expense in the large ballroom, while accounts are being tabulated and division totals compiled.

This year's quota for the West Residential Division is $7,300 and the chairman, Mrs. Benjamin F. Knepper, 3672 W. Broad-st, will, of ccurse, try to turn in the largest percentage for the day.

Three of the downtown network stations will give the programs for subsequent report meetings which will all be held at the Southern Hotel. The second is scheduled for Tuesday noon, Oct. 25, with WCOL furnishing the entertainment. The third, Friday noon, Oct. 28, will have a program by WBNS.

The Georgia Crackers, WHKC, will entertain at the Halloween luncheon, Monday, Oct. 31, when members of the Speakers Bureau and Junior Speakers Bureau are to be honored.

West - UA Movies To Be Shown

Motion pictures of this year's and last year's West-Upper Arlington games will be shown at West High School Thursday at 7:30 p. m.

The showing of the pictures is sponsored by the West High Boosters Club. There is no admission charge, and the public is invited.

Last year's West-Arlington game ended in a 13-13 tie. Arlington won the tilt this year 33-0.

TRI-HI-Y OFFICERS

The recently elected officers of the Hilliards High School Tri-Hi-Y will be installed in their offices on Oct. 26. The new officers are Clarice Schreider, president; Frances Hart, vice-president; Shirley Bolendar, secretary, and Sally Sichol, treasurer.

Tarbutton Is Lion's Speaker

George Tarbutton

George Tarbutton, first assistant county prosecutor, will be the speaker at the Lions Club supper meeting on Thursday, Oct. 20, at 6:30 p. m., at Schmelzer's Restaurant.

Tarbutton is the former secretary of the Hilltop Kiwanis Club. A veteran of World War I, he has frequently been a candidate for public office.

He will discuss the interesting activities of the prosecutor's office.

Garage Dwellers Asked To Build

Henry Pyles, 1633 Rosemont-av, president of the Wilson Heights Civic Association, has reported that several residents of the Gibson Park Addition are living in garages, which, according to him, is not in accord with their property abstracts.

The garage dwellers were called to a special meeting of the association last Tuesday and asked to tell when they planned to build homes. The majority claimed they expected to start within six months. Attorneys had been called in to advise the association.

According to Pyles, 13 garages have been built or are under construction. Five families are living in garages now.

A special meeting on obtaining sewers for this area will be held by the group at the Wilson School, Thursday, Oct. 20, at 8 p. m. Mrs Mitchell, county sanitary engineer, will be the speaker.

QUEEN CANDIDATES NAMED

The Hilliards High School homecoming queen candidates were announced last week. The school's homecoming will be Thursday, Oct. 27. It will be sponsored by the Girls' Athletic Association.

The candidates are Shirley Bolendar, Jo Ann Price and Frances Hart, seniors; Nancy Murray and Lois Ann Moore, juniors, and Marjorie Wagner, a sophomore.

Ill Member Sees Hilltop Women's Chorus Televised

Mrs. Mildred Bell, 296 S. Eureka-av, is a charter member of the Hilltop Women's Chorus. She sang with the group when it was known as the Motheringers.

However, Mrs. Bell hasn't appeared with the chorus recently, she has been ill at home and confined to bed. She still follows the activities of the group though, and one of her main ambitions was to see the television debut of the group over station WTVN last week.

Don Rice of the Westgate Electric Co., heard about Mrs. Bell and decided that she would see the chorus televised. He sent a television set to her home Wednesday night and one of the most loyal members and staunchest suporters of the chorus didn't have to miss the television debut.

BACK 4-MILL LEVY

Mrs. Russell Swain, president of the West Broad Street School PTA, has anncunced that that organization has endorsed the four mill tax levy for schools that will appear on the Nov. 8 ballot.

SRO At The Wailing Wall, Our Slip Is Showing

Harry O. Weaston, Jr.

Jack Miser

Before you've been around a newspaper office very long, you are sure to hear of such typographical errors as "New Thief Heads Police Dept.", or "Gone to His Last Roasting Place."

But you will seldom hear that a paper went to press with the wrong name under a picture. "That is just too hard to believe, no one would make that mistake," you would say. Well it did happen—and we did it.

Harry O. Weaston, Jr., past commander of the 12th District, American Legion of Ohio, was going to install the new officers of the Camp Chase Post. The Camp Chase Post called and said they would send in his picture.

Thursday morning came and there was one blank space in the front page. A look in the cut-room disclosed one picture the size of the blank. With the feeling of satisfaction that comes with fitting in the last piece of a jig-saw puzzle, the picture was put in.

The presses rolled and the papers were printed. The presses stopped and the papers were distributed. Thn the mistake was found. There on the front page, above the caption Harry Weaston, was Jack Miser, manager of the Modern Finance Co.

A scream went up from the front office, subsiding into sobs and low moans. We had made the mistake that "no one could possibly make."

The picture of Weaston was found on a desk, under a stack of papers.

So just to keep the Record straight, look above, you will see Harry O. Weaston, Jr., and Jack Miser. The cutlines are right this time. They'd better be, our constitution couldn't stand another such mistake.

'Protect Freedom Of Press' Editor Tells Kiwanis Club

"Movable type and the printing press are mankind's greatest inventions," George Smallsread, managing editor of the Columbus Dispatch, told the Hilltop Kiwanis Club last Thursday.

In his speech, commemorating National Newspaper Week, Smallsread said that printing has driven back ignorance, and brought about the quest for knowedge that made possible all other modern advances.

He said that the greatness of America was due in a large part to the wisdom of the country's founders who put freedom of the press in the constitution.

"I would rather read the newspaper of a crackpot editor than the newspaper of an editor who is told everything he must print," he added.

"Make a solemn vow now never to let anydne take the freedom of the press away from you," he said.

To Discuss Parking, Traffic In High Ridge

Members of the High Ridge Civic Association will discuss the feasibility of one-way traffic or one-side parking in streets in their area that have no sidewalks, at their meeting tonight.

H. T. Van Ness, corresponding secretary of the association, said that cars parked on both sides of such streets as Whitethorne, Wrexham, Belvidere, Highland, Townsend and Woodbury created dangerous conditions for cars and pedestrians on the streets.

The association will meet at the West Mound Street School at 7:45 p. m.

To Discuss Expansion In Twp. School Dist.

Parents and voters in Prairie Township will meet with the architect, representatives from the county office, and present and future members of the Board of Education on Thursday, Oct. 20, at 8 p. m. in the Rome school annex.

This meeting is for discussion of possibilities for further action in expanding opportunities for school population in the Prairie local district.

William F. Zenker, 224 Binns-blvd, is one of seven men named to investigate operations at the Brown Pet Cemetery.

Work Starts On $50,000 Store, Office, Apt. Bldg.

Construction began last week on a $50,000 two-story store, office and three-family apartment building at 3095-99 W. Broad-st, according to the city building department.

Excavation has started on the building, which will be located between the Mohler's Westmoor Beauty Salon on the east and the Westgate Restaurant on the west.

The A. R. Hoge & Co., food brokers with offices in the Rowland Building, are constructing the cement block building. The company, representatives of nationally-known food manufacturers, will move its offices to the new building when it is completed. It is expected to be finished by January.

In addition to the company's offices, the building will house three efficiency apartments on the second floor and two store rooms on the first. Plans call for a brick front.

At present it is not known what businesses will occupy the store rooms.

Ralph S. Fallon, 1634 Roxbury-rd, is the contractor.

Directs Hoge Minstrel Chorus

W. Haydn Jones

W. Haydn Jones will direct the chorus in a number of new and old tunes at the Fidelis Minstrel Show, Oct. 26 and 27, in the gym of the Hoge Memorial Presbyterian Church at 29 S. Eureka-av.

Jones has directed the chorus of a number of Hilltop Minstrel Shows. Accompanists for the chorus and solo numbers will be Mrs. Grover Woodin and George Bukey.

End men selected for this minstrel show are Floyd Badgley, Harold Greene, William Scott and Norman Line.

Producer and director of the show is George Hardy, who has lined up an outstanding group of variety numbers, including girls from Jack Sherick Studios. The variety numbers will be announced later.

Tickets are now on sale by members of the class or may be obtained at the church office. Mrs. George Busenburg is chairman of the ticket committee and is being assisted in the distribution of the tickets by Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Badgley, Mr. and Mrs. James Cooke, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Line, and Mr. and Mrs. George Hardy.

Band Parents Plan Post Game Dance

The West High School Band Parents Club, backers of the West High Band and Orchestra, will meet at 8 p. m. Wednesday in the school building.

Plans will be discussed for a student dance to be sponsored by the club following the South-West football game Friday night in the West High gymnasium. Also to be considered will be the sale of West High cushions at the football games.

BREAK INTO CHURCH

Rev. Raymond Bauschard reported this morning that St. Mary Magdalene Church, 468 S. Roys-av, was broken into last night. Three cabinets in the rectory were broken open, but apparently nothing was taken. Several windows on the first floor of the church were left open. Method of entry is unknown.

Gladioli, Ferns Decorate Holy Family Altar For Aug. 20 Ceremony Which Unites Miss McGonigle and Mr. Harold Trump

Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Trump

Before a gladioli and fern-adorned altar at Holy Family Church Aug. 20, Miss Jeannine Louise McGonigle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood P. McGonigle, 1229 Hart-rd, became the bride of Mr. Harold E. Trump, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Trump, 29 S. Hague-av. Rev. George Gressel officiated at the ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory satin and white marquisette with a sheer yolk neckline joined by beaded pearls forming a bow, an ivory satin bodice, long marquisette sleeves and a full marquisette skirt flowing into a short train. Her fingertip veil of illusion was held in place by a heart-shaped coronet of seed pearls. She carried a dozen white roses centered with a lavender orchid.

The bride's matron of honor was Mrs. Philip Sabatino, who wore a light blue taffeta gown, princess style, with a boat neckline, a bustle and very full skirt. A matching hat and mitts completed the outfit. The bridesmaids were Mrs. Clifford Brunner, who wore a nile green gown, Mrs. Francis McGonigle, in lavender, and Miss Elsie Graham, in yellow.

Mr. Philip Sabatino acted as best man and the ushers were Mr. Eugene Clark, Mr. Elwood McGonigle, Jr., and Mr. Robert Dennison.

To receive her guests at the reception in her home, the bride's mother wore a light blue satin dress with brown accessories and a corsage of white roses. The bridegroom's mother was attired in a flowered silk print dress with navy blue accessories.

The senior hostesses for the reception were Mrs. D. C. Finneran and Mrs. Thelma Erler; junior hostesses were Mrs. Virgil Woods and Miss Julie Graham.

Following their wedding trip to Atlantic City the couple are making their home at 948½ Sullivant-av.

Mr. Trump is employed as a draftsman for the Kinnear Mfg. Co. and the new Mrs. Trump is associated with the Surface Combustion Corp.

About Folks You Know

By Helen James, Society Editor

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Jordan, 1709 Walsh-av, who celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Saturday, Oct. 15. Hilltoppers for 30 years, they were married in Hemlock, O. A small dinner was held for them Sunday with Mrs. Jordan's brother-in-law, Dr. R. W. Miller, Hemlock, O., and their niece, Mrs. Authorine Moore, 236 N. Terrace-av, attending.

Miss Didway Is Married To Mr. Davis Oct. 12

Mrs. Joseph Davis, Jr.

Miss Marilyn Didway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Didway, 1276 Broadview-av, became the bride of Mr. Joseph A. Davis, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Davis, 1262½ W. Broad-st, in First Community Church Wednesday, Oct. 12 at 7:30 p. m. Rev. John Dickhaut, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church, officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

The bride wore a gown of antique ivory chantilly lace over satin, fashioned with a marquisette bertha trimmed with sequins. The bride's floor-length veil of imported English illusion fell from a cap fashioned of matching lace and sequins. She wore a double strand of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom, and carried a bouquet of feathered chrysanthemums centered with red roses.

Miss Jean Didway, the bride's sister, was maid of honor, and the bridesmatrons were Mrs. John Lautzenheiser and Mrs. Camdon Swart. Miss Mariann Darragh was bridesmaid.

The honor attendant wore a gown of smoke blue satin brocade, accented with sapphire blue velvet. Her half-bonnet was fashioned of matching velvet and she carried a bouquet of yellow pompoms centered with golden rapture roses.

The other attendants were gowned alike in gold satin brocade with half-bonnets of gold velvet. Their bouquets were of bronze pompoms centered with golden rapture roses.

Karen Marie Haldy, niece of the bridegroom, was the flower girl. She wore a yellow taffeta dress with a coronet of yellow rosebuds in her hair.

Mr. Norman Haldy served as best man for his brother-in-law, and seating the guests were Mr. Charles R. Snyder, Mr. Donn Haines and Mr. Neal Mowery.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Didway wore a royal blue dress and black accessories. Mrs. Davis wore a gray dress, accentented with royal blue.

A reception for 200 guests was held at the church immediately following the ceremony. Hostesses at the reception were Mrs. R. L. Dudley, Mrs. Harold Gray, Jr.; Mrs. Charles Snyder, Mrs. Robert Busick and Miss Mary Lou Lowe.

The bride is a nurse in the offices of Dr. J. P. Urban and Dr. Robert L. Marshall. Mr. Davis is associated with his father in the Davis Department Store.

They will make their home at 827 S. Westland-av.

Job's Daughter's

the Church of Christ on Neil and Fourth-ave, for a meeting honoring all present worthy matrons. All girls who are to sing are asked to be there not later than 8 p. m. and dressed in formals.

We will be broadcasting over station J-O-B. The mistresses of ceremonies will be Nancy Hardy, Marilyn Davis, Ann Wilson and Barbara Wendell doing the commefcials. Some of the numbers selected for the evening will be "Whispering Hope," "Cruising Down the River," "Down By the Station," and the "Laughing Song." Jeannine Dickendesher will play her accordion, Mary Lou Tillotl will give out with several vocal selections, Sue Hardy will do a pantomine of "Life Gets Tedious." And that just about takes care of the program for the evening.

The Mothers Club came out on top again at our last meeting by serving refreshments afterwards which we all appreciated. That group is holding a meeting Thursday night at the home of Mrs. John Hardy, 462 N. Hague-av, at 8 o'clock. They extend an invitation to all mothers who have daughters in our bethel.

Something big is coming up Oct. 29, which I will tell you about later. So in closing I leave you with the thought that when you are thirsty, just whistle.

"that's a fine home you're building!"

YES, I think I'm going to like it.

I wish I had a home of my own.

Well, why not?

My wife has the idea that it would be a great worry if anything happened to me.

Nothing to it, my boy. The arrangements I've made with the SUN LIFE OF CANADA will clear the mortgage in the event of my untimely death.

I never thought of that. What about the cost?

Insignificant! In fact, it adds very little to the carrying charge of the mortgage.

IF you are a home-owner, make your investment safe for posterity. A SUN LIFE man will be glad to talk it over with you.

Why A School Levy?

America's future depends on America's schools, and the local school levy, which will be submitted to the voters, Tuesday, Nov. 8, for approval, is an important step in this direction.

As a citizen of this community you are a stockholder in its school system. It is your right to inquire into the specific reasons why this levy is needed.

Remember that all of us reap the benefits as suitable educational opportunities are brought within reach of all our children regardless of residence, race or economic status.

To help you know the facts some pertinent points are set forth in this editorial and those to follow.

In 1933 a constitutional amendment was adopted which prohibits the total general property tax from exceeding 10 mills without a vote of the citizens. This reduced from 15 to 10 mills the general property tax and forced the schools to accept their share of the reduction.

In order to maintain high standards the people have had to vote for additional tax levies if it was their desire to have a good school system.

There are four major sources of operating funds for local schools.

(1) The Guaranteed Tax Levy which is that part provided by the state laws from the regular tax levy within the 10-mill limitation. This is now 4.51 mills which includes 4.37 mills for operating expenses, and .14 mill for debt charges.
(2) The State Public School Fund.
(3) A Special Tax Levy of three mills subject to approval of the people every five years. (This levy was approved by 75.4% of the voters on Nov. 2, 1948.)
(4) A Special Tax Levy of four mills (a renewal of two mills, approved by more than 80% of the voters in 1947, and an additional two mills).

The citizens of Columbus have given their continuous approval of a special tax levy for the operation of the schools for the past 30 years.

SYNOPSIS

Marvell Coomes becomes acquainted with his little daughter, Katherine, when he returns to Boston from a distant city to attend his late wife, Elizabeth's funeral. They had lived apart for years. He is deplored by his aristocratic Back Bay in-laws, especially by brother-in-law Proctor whose spitefulness had helped wreck the marriage. Proctor is furious when he finds that his deceased sister has left her entire personal estate—and the custody of her daughter—to this estranged husband. Lawyer Ben Hall, an old family friend, is called in to explain the will. He tries to make peace between the men, but fails. Marvell decides to turn back Katherine's guardianship to Proctor and to take up his broken engineering career in New York, once more. But Proctor washes his hands of the child, discarding her to her "irresponsible" father's care. He orders them from the house.

CHAPTER TEN

THIS final interview with Abbot seemed lonelier than the first in spite of all the spirit Marvell put into it. He let on to Abbot, casually of course, that he had a very good thing down in New York—he would have done the same to old Barlow that first time had it proved necessary—accepted his salary check graciously but grandly disdained to draw an expense account. Abbot had been cordial but uneasy. Marvell knew that he was not Abbot's responsibility. He had been hired by old Barlow, scorned by Proctor, married by Elizabeth, and now he ought to have been dismissed by the family's authority. For dismissal it was, they both knew that. There had been other "dismissals" but he had always gotten back again. But now, with the death of his wife, there was no doubt that Abbot felt he would have to sever his connections with the firm. On the impersonal side, Abbot judged him to be a brilliant if unsteady worker with a natural gift for dealing with men and an unnatural gift for taking risks. On the personal side, he had little in common with him and much in common with Proctor against him. And he paid his moral respects to the notion that if a man's domestic reputation was weak his professional reputation suffered.

This was the loneliness of departure, weighing more on the heart than the loneliness of arrival which though empty was promiseful. Marvell felt the touch of a hundred association, promises and defaults more keenly than he had believed possible. He was a fool to have come, he thought, as he shuffled through the few belongings in his desk. Letters, notes, drawing pencils. Discouraged, he stopped in the middel of his sorting and calling over one of the office boys, a carroty faced boy with whom he had followed baseball scores many a time, asked him to make a bundle of it and send it in care of Benjamin Hall, "my lawyer," he added with a wink. The boy was impressed and having heard the word whispered round that New York was ahead [illegible] and Marvell never saw them again.

He idled a bit longer, talking to some of the young engineers, rather hoping that his brother-in-law would come in—he was feeling more humility now and he knew that was the mood in which he'd have to meet Proctor. He kept wondering, too, where all these years had gone to— the fourteen years since he had first walked into the front office. But Abbot was getting more and more uneasy over his delay and he could postpone his departure no longer. He stood for a moment at the end of the long room where the draftsmen sat and raised his hand in a half-wave. He felt better for that, though only a half dozen of them turned their eyes.

In the treeless sunshine of the down-town business street, Marvell hesitated in front of a saloon. It was an inconspicuously dreary place, conspicuously empty at this time of day. The bartender was not one of his regulars, he could see as he walked up to the dim, oily surfaced bar. He pulled his new hat down over his forehead and ordered a drink. It was as good a way to think as any he knew. First, he must straighten out Kit's future with Proctor. Play [illegible] vanity, make him see how invaluable he was to her. Give back the money and ask Ben to nominate another executor—a bank, or Barlow and Abbot, if need be, to keep it close to the family. And then, as a final gesture, a tangible proof of his intentions, have Proctor made Kit's legal guardian. Ben would know all the red-tape. That won't be so bad, he thought with some relief, ordering a second drink. I'm the one who comes out on the short end. But it is better that way.

He thought of Elizabeth's letter. She should have given him instructions, too. Perhaps she had been afraid to speak to him. She had always been afraid of Proctor and it was like her, poor dear, to stand up to him dead and not alive. Ben hadn't been quite fair last night. Elizabeth, too, could have made the break. But why now? If I can soothe Proctor's pride, he thought, he'll spend the rest of his life regretting this morning's hysteria and take double care of Kit to make it up. There's no more self-righteous man in the world that that one.

But he couldn't leave Boston till Kit was settled back in place. He'd put off New York for a couple of days, and he must do something quick about Doc, send him a wire tonight. He made a last effort to put himself in Proctor's place—suppose Proctor wouldn't take Kit back? He'd have to take her down to New York. They'd have to go to Doc's boarding house, somewhere in Brooklyn, if the landlady was willing to look after her, which was unlikely, for the best landladies preferred gentlemen only. He'd have to find a good school. She had her own money, but that wouldn't make it easier. Didn't Ben nor Proctor see he didn't want money, he wanted her left where she belonged. He was clinging to Proctor's protection; that no way astounded him because it had become a habit. Proctor had once said to him, "I can't have my sister left alone as she is, month after month. She must have a home." Well, if he'd said that about a grown woman with a child, how would he feel about a little girl with an unstable father? Perhaps this morning's brush-off had been only a spiteful demonstration of his real affection for Katherine. Yes, it would be all right. He was going to say goodbye to her now, as he planned, and he'd make an occasion of it.

Annie and Katherine walked home together, Katherine's blue chinchilla cloth coat swung open, her tam o'shanter was far back on he. head. Her breath came fast as she told Annie all about the spring term play—"Cinderella"—it was to be with all the characters different flowers.

"Mary Francis is to be the daisy who is Cinderella because she can dance. I'm going to be the cross sister, tiger lily, because I'm dark. I have to have an orange dress with spots and a stalk."

"Oh, you're fooling, Miss Katherine," laughed Annie. "You can't have a stalk anymore than you can have a tail."

"It's not the same thing at all," she insisted. "And Richard is to be the prince." The delicate Custard boy was coming into his own again rather to Katherine's unexpected envy of the blonde Mary Frances. "And all the families can come on the last night free."

Annie gripped her hand for a crossing. "You are going out to lunch," she announced brightly. The child's family was certainly dwindling down fast.

"Where? Why?" Sometimes her mother had taken her to the Touraine but it had never been sprung upon her on a school day.

"Where I don't know, but why because your father asked you."

"Is he still here?" she stopped so suddenly that Annie stumbled.

"Of course, and you're going to have a gay time of it, too. Maybe you can wear your velveteen."

They were almost to the house now. Katherine broke loose from Annie's hold and flew up the brownstone steps. She almost fell into Emily's arms as she reached the doorsill. Emily had been peering out of the parlor window for the last fifteen minutes.

"You are out of breath, dear." She kissed her.

"I am going out to lunch," said Katherine importantly

"Yes, I know all about it. Come upstairs and get ready. You may use my bathroom," She could not bear to take her up to the fourth floor where her room was already partly dismantled.

"Shall I change my dress?" Kit asked, dropping her coat on a nearby chair and making straight for the bathroom. She turned on the faucets so hard she did not hear her aunt's reply above the strong gush of water. The front of her middy blouse was splattered while only the tips of her fingers got washed. Emily came in and reduced the steamy force to a thin trickle.

"Your middy suit is very nice for a weekday. Take the soap, dear, and use one of those towels."

WE'RE NOT FOOLED . . .

ARE YOU?

It's almost impossible to disguise a cow . . . but it's easy to disguise a substitute product!

The oleo corporations want to imitate real butter as nearly as possible. At the same time, they are trying to disguise the Ohio dairy cow as "the villain" . . . claiming that the dairy industry wants to discourage the use of oleo as a cheap spread for bread.

This is not the case, at all!

The dairy industry has no quarrel with oleo . . . if it is sold as oleo . . . easily recognized by its white color and low price.

Don't you be fooled either! If oleo goes yellow, it will cost more . . . right up to the price of real butter. Keep oleo WHITE . . . and CHEAP!

YOU BE THE JUDGE!

WON'T You VOTE "NO" ON YELLOW OLEO? (Nov.8)

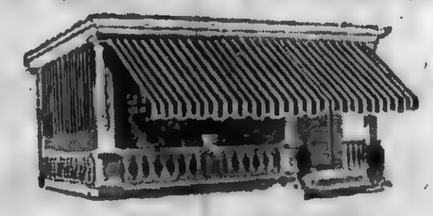
The Columbus Lodge No. 30, F. & A. M. will confer the M. M. degree in full and ancient form in the large auditorium of the Masonic Temple, 34 N. Fourth-st, Saturday at 7:30 p. m.

HAVE FAMILY NIGHT



The combined camps of the W. O. W. of Columbus will hold family night Friday at the W. O. W. Hall, 588 S. Third-st, at 8 o'clock. The film, "Fraternity In Action," will be shown. Refreshments will be served. Prospective members are invited to attend.

Federal Agent Traps Suspects

A federal narcotics agent and Columbus police early Friday arrested three men when they attempted to steal drugs from a basement safe at the Columbus State Hospital on W. Broad-st. A fourth man escaped.

The trio walked into a trap which had been laid by an agent of the Federal Bureau of Narcotics and the Columbus police.

Murder - Suicide Verdict In Deaths

Frank Carson, 68, 3552 Sullivant-av, was found dead on the floor beside his bed shortly after midnight Sunday, killed by a shotgun blast fired by Bruce Rose, 41, of 312 Greiner-rd.

Sheriff's deputies found Rose lying on the ground outside the shattered window through which he apparently shot Carson. At his side lay a 12-gauge shotgun. Wounded in the left breast, Rose died two hours later in Mt. Carmel Hospital.

Dr. John H. Richardson, coroner's assistant, gave a verdict of murder-suicide, in the case.

Surviving Carson are three sons, Ashby L., W. Delmas and Jefferson F. Carson, and a daughter, Rilla Louise Carson, all of Columbus; a brother, Orville Carson, Dayton; a sister, Mrs. Pearl Fast, Columbus, five grandchildren, and a great-grandchild.

Funeral services were Tuesday at 11 a. m. by the Floyd Born Funeral Home.

'Play Your Part' Kiwanians Urged By Sensenbrenner

"Kiwanianism is a challenge to great living and to service," M. E. Sensenbrenner, president of the Hilltop Kiwanis Club, told delegates at the 32nd Ohio District Convention of Kiwanis in Cleveland recently.

Urging participation in club activities he said "Happiness is a perfume that you cannot pour over others without spilling some on yourself. Therefore, be sure, as a Kiwanian, to play your part."

Sensenbrenner urged several church support programs including Bibles for Japan, a "march to church in March," and the closing of stores on Good Friday.

Portions of Sensenbrenner's speech were quoted in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

East Fumbles To 20-7 Victory Over Cowboy Team

By Dave Miller

East High's visiting Tigers did everything but hand the game on a silver platter to the Cowboys, but still the locals lost the game to the visitors, who finally won out in a fumblefilled game, 20 to 7, on the locals' gridiron last Friday evening.

In the last two West contests, there have been 38 fumbles. In the Linden-West encounter last week, each team fumbled 10 times, while in the latest contest, East fumbled 14 times and the Cowboys four.

Near the end of the game, Coach Ralph Webster of the Tigers was ordering Mackey not to run the ball at all, and East's fumbles stopped. However, the quarterback made up for his running miscues with his brilliant passing. He would take plenty of time in finding his receiver, and missed only once. That was on the West 36, from which point he ran with the ball, and through at least six would-be tacklers he broke the 7-7 deadlock of the game, and right there had almost almost personally won the game.

West was never out of the ball game until the fading moments in the final quarter. A 7-7 deadlock was on throughout the half until the run by Mackey, and then East put the ball game on ice on the third play of the final quarter with another TD.

An East uprising was stopped in the opening part of the game. After West opened the game with the ball, they couldn't do anything with it, and Jim Rudolph punted to the East 28. The Tigers, with their hands on the ball for the first time in the game, started a drive from there to the West 28. It was subdued when Mackey fumbled and Dick Will, West guard, recovered.

West failed to go, and again had to punt, with East running the kick to the 50. From there, the Tigers started a drive for the first touchdown of the game. Marion Naumoff went off-tackle to the West 39, and Mackey gained three through the middle of the 36 Mackey then faded back, and with his uncanny ease whipped a pass to End Louie Sharp, who caught it on the West five, and went across the goal line unmolested. It was Sharp's fourth touchdown in two games for East. "Boots" Crawley kicked the extra point, and East led, 7-0, as the first quarter ended.

The Cowboys got their lone touchdown the hard way, by drive, drive and more drive. They were on their own, 24, and had fourth and 11, and, of course, kicked. However, Tackle Dick Linson of the Tigers was guilty of a "roughing the kicker" penalty on the boot, and the 15-yard penalty gave the Cowboys a first down, and from there they drove for the lone touchdown of the evening.

Ronnie James, fleet Cowboy halfback, went around end to the 50, and a Bob Birle to Bill Thrush pass complete on the East 33. Birle again threw to Jim Rudolph for a first down on the 21, and Jerry Johnson drove to the 18. However, a 15-yard clipping penalty on West made it second and 22 yards to go back on the East 40. Nevertheless, Charlie Hunter, who, along with Clarence Golden, shared the brunt of the Cowboys' running throughout the evening, went around right end on a reverse play to the East 13.

Consecutive runs by Birle, Hunter and Carmine DeMatteo set the ball on the one-yard line with last down. Birle then plowed into the end zone for the touchdown. Bob then made it a one-man show by kicking the extra point.

Midway in the third period, Mackey's fumble was recovered by Jim Rudciph, stopping an East uprising, and the Cowboys booted out of the danger. However, the Cowboys were right back in hot water when another pass from Mackey to Sharp was complete to the West 22. Then Mackey faded back to the West 35, and upon failing to find a receiver, he ran literally through the entire Cowboy team through the end zone. At least six would-be tacklers grabbed him but couldn't hold on, as the fleet-footed back scored.

An intercepted pass by Center Rudolph Stewart set up the final East touchdown. Stewart grabbed a Cowboy aerial on the West 46, and three plays later a Mackey to Marion Naumoff pass was good to the Cowboys' 14, from where Riph Hammock picked up beautiful interference along the left sidelines, ran into the end zone for the TD. Crawley's kick was good.

60 West Hoopers On Pre-Season Basketball Teams

By Dave Miller

While most of the West High sport followers' thoughts are concentrating on football, Coach George Williams, head basketball and baseball mentor at the Hilltop school, has been drilling 60 boys trying out for basketball.

Although practically the entire football team will be out for basketball come the end of the grid season, Williams is hoping to get the boys in shape who are not playing football.

An intramural league was formed on Oct. 10, and the league will continue throughout the month. On Nov. 12, the Monday after the football team's final game, Williams will hope to have together all his basketballers.

At the moment each intramural team consists of six players, with 10 teams entered. Each team has a captain, and the captain is one of the returnees, either from last year's varsity or reserve team. Williams is alone in coaching, as reserve coach, Fred Heiechman, is assistant mentor in football.

The captains of the team are Phil Young, Jim Rile, Jack Winnemiller and Jack Gammon, all from last year's varsity, and Frank Carson, "Wimpy" Potts, Paul Ellingsworth, Dave Caton, Ted Fladt and Bill South, all from the last season's reserves.

The courters practice every Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings in the gym after school. Football players who are expected out for the winter sport include Bob Wilson, Ed Gleibs, Bill Thrush, Jack Bowen, Dave Lazenby, Jim Rudolph, Jerry Johnson, Bob Epps, George Crissinger and Bob Tewell. LeRoy Hood also will be cut if he recovers from an injury suffered in football. All of these boys played either reserve or varsity basketball last season.

Boys out for intramurals include Paul Thompson, Jim Conley, Charles Stump, Bill Massie, Barry Emmerick, Jack Six, Jim Ealy, Dick Wray, Russ Friend, Lester Sass, Bill Wilson, Warren Stephans, Bob Shivers, Russ Gardner, Bill Delph, Jim Koernow, Ward Cassell, Ron McElwee, Larry Pearsons, Phil Redick, James Williams, Dave Bill, Ed Lantz, Houie Diggs, Earl Cline, Jim Long, Bill Voss, Ray Harper, Les Crabbe, Don Pennington, Bob Ochs, Lee Grabill, Bill Maxwell, Jim Alford, Jim Smith; Morris Dobbs, Dave Skipper, Ray Altman, Raymond Sass, Gilbert Suttle, Tommy Wright, Dwight Reynolds, Bill Walton, Gary Dixon and Terry Horn.

Hilliards Drops Game To Worthington 14-7 In First County League Loss

Hilliards played a scrappy ball game Friday night, but the Wildcats' line was not strong enough to hold a better Worthington eleven. Hilliards drops out of the undefeated position on top of the County League which it shared with Worthington, Mifflin and Reynoldsburg, losing 14-7.

The Wildcats looked good on the defensive. They blocked two punts and almost stopped a third. Until the last period they were effective in eliminating successful Worthington passes.

But Hilliards was unable to take advantage of the breaks they got. In the first quarter they recovered a fumble in Worthington territory, and blocked one of the punts in that period too. However, they made neither event count for a touchdown. In that period 50 yards of penalties were racked up against the Wildcats, allowing Worthington to score seven points.

Second Period Break

In the second quarter Hilliards got a similar opportunity to take the ball across the line. That time they blocked a punt and recovered the ball on about Worthington's 10. Took it to about the two-yard-marker, penalized five for off-side, and after pounding consistently against Worthington's strong defense wall, took it over for six and rushed the line for the conversion to tie the score.

After halftime both teams opened up on passes, but neither could make them click until the fourth period when Worthington got two through in nice shape. One brought them deep into Wildcat grounds, but to no avail. Hilliards hold them and it looked like a tie score to the end. But in the last part of the fourth Worthington let loose with everything it had and one pass clicked for a TD, and the conversion was good, making the score 14-7.

Hilliards never recovered and only feebly attempted to even the score. The rough and tumble game went to undefeated Worthington 14-7. With two more County League games still to come for the Wildcats, they are not out of the picture yet for county champs.

Boy Injured In Tussle Following Hilliards Game

A brief tussle between players and spectators followed the Hilliards - Worthington football game last Friday at Hilliards' field in the county fair grounds. An 11-year-old Worthington school boy was hurt, but according to M. D. Hartsook, superintendent of Hilliards schools, players of both teams left the field with arms around each other.

The near-riot came after Worthington delt Hilliards its first county league defeat of the year. When the game ended, players from both teams clashed, and were soon joined by members of the largest crowd to attend a Hilliards game.

Young Chris Deets, who suffered a fractured wrist, was an "innocent bystander." He saw a Worthington player knocked down and started for him to see if he was injured badly. Deetz soon found himself in the midst of the battle and began climbing a fence to escape it. He fell from the fence and injured his wrist.

Feelings ran high when Worthington beat Hilliards 14-7. Both teams had been undefeated in the county league.

West Mound PTA will hold its anual Fall Festival, Friday, Oct. 28, at 7 p. m., at the school.

Flowers of the Week: The community owes a big hand and a token of appreciation to

Leo McComb for the effort and fine work he has put forth in planting and supervising the planting of the numerous mums on Broad street. The flowers make a fine show, and the idea is certainly one that should be pursued in years to come with increasing attention.

Since Leo has been responsible for the flowers given to others when selected as the recipient by The Hilltop Record we feel that his gift should be of a different variety and so we are sending him a bouquet of colored neckties. Good luck, Leo!

Church Given Amarmow Mission By Hilltop Family

E. L. Skipper, 81 N. Terrace-av, and his two daughters, Irene Skipper and Mrs. Harold Fox, 235 S. Westgate-av, the former Margaret Skipper, recently purchased a Friends Church mission in Central India and have donated it to the American Friends India Mission.

This mission is a memorial to the late Mrs. Katherine S. Skipper, the mother and wife of the donors. The Skippers are members of the Highland Avenue Friends Church.

The mission, which includes a bungalow for the missionary's residence, a chapel, dispensary, home for an Indian doctor, wards, nurses' quarters, a garage, and four acres of land, was purchased from the Bible Churchman's Missionary Society, of London, England, for $8000. It is located at Amarnow, in the heart of India, and was opened 15 years ago.

The former pastor of the Highland Avenue Friends Church, Rev. Milton E. Coleman and his wife, have been appointed to supervise this mission station along with the 324 villages in the district. The Colemans left the Hilltop in 1945.

The American Friends India Mission is under supervision of Ohio Yearly Meeting of Friends Church. Rev. Chester G. Stanley, pastor of Highland Avenue Friends Church is first vice-president of the Foreign Missionary Board. Mr. Skipper has served many years as a member of the same board.

Dr. Walter R. Williams, superintendent of the Yearly Meeting foreign missionary activities, was recently the guest pastor at the Highland Avenue Friends Church. He has visited the Amarmow station.

The Skipper gift is the largest single contribution ever made to Friends work in India, according to Dr. Williams.

? Which One Will Drive Away In New Dodge Nov. 17 ?

Just which one of these candidates will ride away in this new Dodge Sedan after Nov. 14?

Pictured here are the leaders in the contest to date, any one of whom could win. Unable to be present when the photo was taken was Jerry Walsh, also a strong contender for one of the top prizes.

Mack Pemberton, 178 S. Brinker-av, is West High football coach, father of three youngsters, and working hard for that new Dodge because his old car no longer functions so well and because it is a hard job buying one on a teacher's salary, he claims.

Shirley Klopfer, 206 S. Roys-av, is a student at West High and an old hand at Record subscription selling. She won a contest sponsored by the West High Boosters year before last and was high sales person in a contest sponsored by the Record last fall. If she wins the car she plans to sell it and put the money away so she can buy one when she graduates from high school.

Mrs. Clara Cannon, 87 Midland-av, had some time on her hands and thought an opportunity to make some money for her family needs. She has worked her community quite extensively.

Mrs. Robert Miller, the former Annabelle Haines, is the mother of four small youngsters, and is in this contest in an effort to get the family a much needed car. She is a West High graduate, having been homecoming queen in 1939. They live at 143 W. Roys-av.

Dolores Davis, 731 S. Eureka-av, the quiet little girl with the pleasant smile, entered the contest in an effort to raise some needed money to help pay business school expenses.

Mrs. George Neibler, 769 S. Wayne-av, has her hands full caring for four small grandchildren and devoting a lot of time to the Gold Star Mothers and Girl Scouts. She was winner in a subscription campaign at Marysville several years ago.

George Tyler of Galloway entered the contest in an effort to get money to go back to school. He works part time in the Galloway post office. George was graduated from West High in 1947 and formerly lived on Wiltshire-rd. He also plans to get married in the not too distant future, the young lady being Miss Patty Cozad.

Edyth Calland, owner and operator of the LaMore Beauty Salon, 442 Nashoba-av, is another contender in the race. Several years ago she won a trip to Bermuda in a downtown department store sales contest.

Mrs. Marguerite Ward, 545 Townsend-av, is the mother of two children in John Burroughs School and an active Hilltop church worker. Her wide acquaintance have resulted in many sales in the campaign.

Jerry Walsh, 22 S. Cypress-av, is well known on the Hilltop and has a lot of friends helping him in the campaign. Jerry has been afflicted with arthritis for several years but despite his handicap has been a diligent worker. He is an Aquinas graduate.

Seiller's Asks Return of Coat Taken Last Week

A woman's leopard stenciled lapin fur-lined short coat was taken from Seiller's Department Store, 2404 W. Broad-st, on Thursday, Oct. 13 between 11:30 and 12 noon.

The coat, valued at $89.95, was double breasted with leopard lapin collar.

Representatives of the firm say they know the party who took the coat and if it is returned no action will be taken. If the coat is not returned the matter will be turned over to the police.

Action Delayed On W. Broad St. Parking Plan

Action by City Council on one-side parking on streets running off W. Broad-st, will be delayed for several weeks while a similar regulation for the Sullivant-av areas is considered, it was learned today from Harry Turner, secretary of the traffic commission.

The commission last week gave its approval to the plan which, if it passes City Council, will allow parking on one side of 13 Hilltop side streets from W. Broad-st to the first alley, both north and south. The plan would provide additional parking space for 69 autos in business areas.

E. O. Melvin, Hilltop member of the commission, introduced the proposal. In addition to requesting a change in the parking arrangement off Broad-st, Melvin asked that the Sullivant-av region be surveyed.

According to Turner, the commission will begin consideration of the Sullivant-av district on Monday, Oct. 24. If this proposal is adopted, it would require a week to draft the ordinance before it goes to council for a vote.

It was learned from reliable sources that Safety Director C. C. Cole would oppose the new parking system. His alleged reason is that fire equipment would be unable to turn the corners if parking were permitted on one side.

However, the fire department last week made a trial run on S. Wayne-av, with cars parked on the west side of the street. One fire chief declared that the parking did not hinder the movement of the trucks and that he would approve the plan.

STARLING DANCE FRIDAY

The Starling Junior High School student dance will be held Friday evening at 7:45 in the school.

Van Ness Is HRCA President

Frank P. Shea Heads Butler Ave. Lighting Campaign

H. T. Van Ness, 654 Whitethorne-av, was named president of the High Ridge Civic Association at the organization's annual election last Tuesday night.

At the same meeting the membership passed a resolution calling for street lights for Butler-av. The matter was placed under the charge of Frank P. Shea, 676 Belvidere-av, civic committee chairman. According to Shea, petitions will be prepared and Butler-av residents contacted.

Elected vice president was Don G. Anderson, 629 Woodbury-av; treasurer, Lloyd V. Ross, 2078 W. Mound-st; secretary, C. M. H. Rumfield, 630 Butler-av, and corresponding secretary, A. D. Stott, 614 Belvidere-av.

Van Ness announced: "I will prepare a very vigorous and active slate of work for 1950. With the help of the members of the association, we will accomplish it."

Bake Sale In Robinson's Saturday

Division 52 of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers will be the first organization to use the complete kitchen and the salesroom of Robinson's Electric Store, 2403 W. Broad-st, for its bake sale Saturday, Oct. 22.

Betty Newton, Ohio Gas Co. home economist, will supervise the baking in Robinson's General Electric kitchen. Sample cookies will be served by courtesy of the Home Bakery and Delicatessen, 2752 Sullivant-av.

Other organizations to hold bake sales at the store in the near future are the Lend-a-Hand Club on Saturday, Oct. 29, with Mrs. Don Neal, 367 N. Sylvan-av, in charge; the Edgewood Chapel U. B. Church, 496 S. Wheatland-av, on Saturday, Nov. 5, with Mrs. H. E. Harwood, in charge, and the Westway Post, VFW Auxiliary on Saturday, Nov. 19, with Mrs. Becker in charge.

The Robinson store invites Hilltop clubs, churches and charitable organizations to use its salesroom and kitchen for their bake sales. There is no charge or obligation for this service. It is requested that reservations be made in advance. Robinson's will advertise the bake sales.

'Y' To Show Full Length Movie At Hilltop Churches

The Hilltop YMCA continues its policy of showing some of the better movies for youngsters each week in local churches. This week's movie, "Swiss Family Robinson," is the first full-length feature film to be shown.

The movie is scheduled to be shown at the Hoge Memorial Church, 29 S. Eureka-av, on Friday, Oct. 21, at 3:30 p. m.; the Oakley Avenue Baptist Church, on Saturday, Oct. 22, at 9 a. m., and the Burgess Avenue EUB Church on Saturday, Oct. 22, at 11 a. m.

The movie stars Freddie Bartholomew, Thomas Mitchell and Tim Holt. Admission to the movie is five cents.

The "Y" television show, featuring the Ohio State-Wisconsin football game, will start at 2:45 p. m., Saturday, at the Hillcrest Baptist Church.

The public is invited.

Ternstedt Plant To Close Friday

Paul L. Jones, plant manager of the Ternstedt Fisher Body Plant, announced today that the plant will be closed Friday for an "adjustment of inventory in connection with the steel shutdown."

The plant was closed last Friday for the same reason. Jones said the plant will open on schedule Monday and that plans call for the plant to remain in production as long as the supply of steel lasts.

Approximately 3000 hourly-wage employees will be affected by the shutdown.

Glenwood Plans Golden Age Club

The City Recreation Department is making plans for the organization of a Golden Age Club at the Glenwood Recreation Center for the elder citizens of the Hilltop.

In announcing the plan, Recreation Director N. J. Barack stated: "We want to meet with the Golden Agers and assist them in organizing. We shall try to furnish the kind of recreation they want."

The time of the meeting will be announced.

TWO-YEAR-OLD CUTS FOOT

Robert Lowry, age two years, of 422 S. Warren-av, suffered a glass cut on his foot yesterday. After emergency squad treatment he was taken to Mt. Carmel.

Saves Driver In Accident Fire

A truck driver saved the life of another driver early Wednesday in a $5000 fire and accident one half mile south of Columbus on Harrisburg-pk.

Harry Callahan, 29, of Hamilton, O., tore away the burning clothes of John E. Brown, 21, of Elizabeth, Pa., when the latter's truck skidded from the highway, overturned and caught fire.

Brown is in fair condition in Mt. Carmel Hospital.

Susan Ann Vince This Week's 'Star Of Tomorrow'

The dancers had it Wednesday night, taking the first two prizes at the Old Trail Theater in the YMCA Stars of Tomorrow Show.

Applause indicated that the audience thought all the acts were good, and the judges' jobs were hard last night.

Other acts in the show included Joan, Betty and Phyllis Hill, 41 S. Oakley-av, vocal trio; Nancy Cooper, 316 Midland-av, tap dancer; Colleen Lou Green, 228 S. Southampton-av, tap dancer; and Keith Miller, 369 Nashoba-av, accordionist.

The bill for the fourth round of the contest next week is already being lined up, and contestants are urged to get their applications in as far in advance as possible. The contest entry blank appears on Page 7A of today's Record.

Mrs. Miller In Second Place Pemberton Drops To Third

Shirley Klopfer Is Ahead In Record Subscription Drive

But one major change in the line-up of contestants in the big $3000 Hilltop Record subscription drive was evident when reports came in on Tuesday this week.

Shirley Klopfer continued to maintain her first place position in the race, while Mrs. Robert Miller moved ahead of Mack Pemberton to take the second place position.

Mack has a slight lead over Mrs. Marguerite Ward for third place, followed by Mrs. George Neibler, who is working hard to nose ahead in the race and still has time to do that very thing.

Other candidates held about the same positions. Jerry Walsh, who was well up the ladder, was unable to work much last week and the result was that his report didn't show up as good as had been expected. However, it is known he will have a fine report next week before the points are reduced in value again.

Mrs. Marguerite Ward is a tenacious participant in the subscription contest. She recently had a trying time in the dentist's chair, her husband underwent an emergency appendectomy last night, and doctors believe her daughter may need an appendectomy. But Mrs. Ward telephoned last night that she is still working to win that new Dodge.

Contestants have until 10 a. m. next Wednesday in which to make their next report in order to get credit at the present point rate.

Another report on the standings of the contestants will be published next Thursday, after which no more reports will be available until the conclusion of the contest on Nov. 14.

Mrs. Ward was winner of a $10 cash bonus last week for the most new subscribers. A similar prize will be given next week.

Halloween Dance Set For Teen Age 'Nite Club'

Sunshine's "Nite Club" program gets under way again with a costume Hallowe'en Party at the recreation center at Sullivant and Sandusky-st on Saturday evening, Oct. 29.

At this gala affair, sponsored by the West Side Booster Club, music will be provided by Carl Hartley and his seven-piece dance combo. Mrs. Bill Mawhirter, Mrs. Art Todd and Mrs. Al Liniman will be the judges in the costume prize winning contest.

Prizes will be offered for the best appearing costume and the most original costume worn by a girl and a boy, four prizes in all. Appropriate Hallowe'en decorations, entertainment and refreshments will fill out the program of the Sunshine teen-age club's opening party for the present season.

While all the merriment is gauged to the desires of teen-agers, old and young alike, wherever they live, are invited to come and join in the fun.

Doors will be open for the Sunshine teen-ager "Nite Club" at 7:00 p. m. Saturday, Oct. 29.

West Tries For Another Win Over Bulldogs Friday

By Dave Miller

Although out of the City Football League championship race, West High's gridders will be eyeing their second loop win of the year as against as many losses when they play host to South's Bulldogs this Friday evening at Magly Field at 8 p. m.

It should be a good ball game, with neither having much to play for except a higher rank in the City Loop for the final standings.

One thing is sure. It will be a bang-up ball game because Coach "Red" Trego, head mentor at South High, always has a bunch of fight and hustling ball players on his side of the bench. West, with A. M. (Mack) Pemberton at the helm, can start up some new thinking around the City Loop by taking the Bulldogs. The Cowboys will be in there with all they have and produce the best they can.

The Cowboys have beaten South the last three seasons, but none of them was a pushover or runaway. In 1946 West triumphed over the Bulldogs, 9-0; in 1947 the local gridders were 20-0 winners, and last year West edged out the Bulldogs from Ann St., 6-0, on the latter's field, in one of the Cowboys' toughest games of their undefeated season.

West, so far this year, has had what can be termed a dismal season. Their running has been alright, not great, but better than many opposing teams. Many persons believe the Cowboys' blocking and tackling are responsible for the four losses this season.

The Cowboys are a good team. Their spirit is fine, but their best has not been quite good enough.

South, so far this season, has yet to win a game. They have lost to Upper Arlington, 27 to 0; Grandview, 21 to 12; East, 48 to 14; Wooster, 40 to 0; and Central, 13 to 6.

West's Senior Officers

Open House, Bazaar, Bake Sale Planned By West High PTA

West Junior-Senior High PTA is announcing its open house, bake sale and bazaar which will be held at the school Tuesday, Oct. 25, from 7:30 to 9 p. m. Mrs. Peter James is in charge of the bazaar and will be assisted by the members of the executive board.

In charge of selling doughnuts and coffee will be Mrs. Walter Deen and Mrs. Frownfelter. Mrs. E. F. Thompson, Mrs. Earl Fenner, Mrs. F. E. Raymond, Mrs. J. D. Fledderjohann and Mrs. C. O. Cramer, cashier, will take care of the baked goods department.

Behind the Christmas cards and potted plants counter will be Mrs. Jack Hostetter, Mrs. Lee Tarbutt, Mrs. O. B. Walker and Mrs. Paul Nippert, cashier. The miscellaneous items will be taken care of by Mrs. Albert Shade, chairman, Mrs. H. R. Keller, Mrs. George Skipper, Mrs. Harvey Fenstermaker and Mrs. H. R. Thompson.

The tables will be decorated by Mrs. Herbert Williams.

The doors will be supervised by Mrs. E. A. Rickert, Mrs. Lawrence Seibert, Mrs. Charles Arbaugh, Mrs. George Neff and Mrs. Curtis Wilcox.

Candlelit Altar At Trinity Episcopal Church Is Scene of Ceremony Which Unites Miss Nola Faris To Mr. Robert Oelrich

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Oelrich

The wedding ceremony of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Oelrich took place Sunday, Oct. 2, at 3:30 p. m. in Trinity Episcopal Church before an altar of lighted candles and vases of pink asters and pink and white snapdragons with Rev. Gordon S. Price officiating. One-half hour of organ music by Phyllis Rennell preceded the ceremony.

The bride, the former Nola J. Faris, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Faris, 236 S. Brinker-av, and was given in marriage by her father.

She wore a gown of white slipper satin featuring a sweetheart neckline, outlined by a pattern of seed pearls. The bodice was fitted and the skirt had a full train. Her fingertip veil of illusion was held by a crown of net and seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and teardrops centered with a white orchid.

Miss Wilma Faris, the bride's sister, was maid of honor and wore a gown of dusty pink satin, fasioned by a fitted bodice bustle. She carried a bouquet of purple and pink asters.

The bridesmatrons, Mrs. Jon Krause and Mrs. Ralph Autery, wore identical gowns of dusky aqua satin, also fashioned with a fitted bodice and bustle. They carried bouquets of pink and purple asters.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Oelrich of Hamilton, O. He chose as his best man, his brother, Mr. Charles Oelrich, Jr. of Cincinnati. Another brother, Mr. Gerald Oelrich of Hamilton and Mr. James Forrester of Warren, O., ushered the guests to their seats.

Following the ceremony, a reception for 100 guests was held at 1114 E. Broad-st, with Mrs. John Raugh, Mrs. Don Spung of Toledo, Miss Jeanne Adams and Miss Phyllis Pennell as hostesses.

After a wedding trip through the Smoky Mountains, the new Mr. and Mrs. Oelrich are at home at 1365 Eastview-av.

About Folks You Know

By Helen James, Society Editor

According to recent reports, the Sherman Magaws at 91 N. Hague-av have been having a busy time lately. For one thing, they've been having guests—Ed. Smith, from Ontario, Calif., Lt. Betty Smith, of Chanute Field, who showed some interesting movies from her visit to Korea, and Leland Roll, Martinsville, Ind.

And then the Magaws were in Cleveland last week-end to attend the funeral of Mrs. Mattie Magaw. While there they spent several days visiting in Indianapolis, Franklin, Martinsville and Bloomington, Ind.

Thomas Magaw was honored with a birthday dinner party last Tuesday by guests including Patricia Sapp, Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Halpin, Celia Black, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Rhoads, Jr., and daughter, Kathleen, and the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Magaw.

Miss Herbert Is Wed To Dr. Beighley Oct. 7

(Engraving Courtesy of Columbus Citizen)

Mrs. Harold V. Beighley

Miss Mary Elizabeth Herbert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Herbert, 89 S. Richardson-av, was united in marriage to Dr. Harold V. Beighley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. Beighley, Struthers, O., in the First Community Church at 7:30 p. m., Oct. 7. Rev. J. B. Shellhaas, pastor of Glenwood Methodist Church, officiated at the ceremony, assisted by Dr. Roy A. Burkhart, pastor of First Community Church.

The bride chose a gown of heavy ivory satin styled with a mandarin collar edged with narrow Pointe Venise lace. This lace also accented the redingote effect on the front of the extremely full skirt which extended into a wide circular train. Her veil of imported silk illusion matched the color of the gown and was trimmed with the same lace. She carried a prayer book covered with ivory-colored gardenias and tube rose blossoms.

The bridal attendants, Mrs. Don Hamby, matron of honor, Misses Virginia and Anne Herbert, sisters of the bride, bridesmaids, all were gowns styled alike of bud green taffeta. They carried ring bouquets of pink dot pompoms which were clustered with happiness roses and ivy leaves.

The best man was Dr. Robert E. Pickett and the ushers were Mr. Carl Beighley, Mr. John Herbert and Mr. Don Hamby.

The bride's mother was attired in a dress of antique gold satin with matching hat trimmed in toast-colored feathers and wore a corsage of odontioda orchids. The bridegroom's mother chose a dress of beige crepe with dark brown accessories and also wore a corsage of odontioda orchids.

A reception for 250 people was held at the church. The hostesses were Mrs. Roy Reed, Miss Betty Ann Keidel, Miss Margaret Ferrall, Miss Ada Purdum and Mrs. Zail Kemp.

The bride is a graduate of West High School, attended Ohio State University, and is a graduate of the Christ Hospital School of Nursing, Cincinnati. She is employed in the offices of Dr. Wynne M. Silbernagel, Dr. James Patterson and Dr. Ben Jacoby.

Dr. Beighley was graduated from Steuthers High School, Ohio State University and Ohio State Medical School, where he was a member of the Nu Sigma Nu fraternity. He is now assistant pathologist at White Cross Hospital.

The couple is residing at 789 Dennison-av.

Hobnobbing with Hobgoblins

By BETTY BARCLAY

Hallowe'en — what a night for fun and frolic! This is the time for elves and fairies, witches and hobgoblins; this is the time to have a party! Wear your old clothes and tell your friends to do the same. Have simple games and easy-to-prepare food.

For refreshments you must have apples. Yes! You duck for them and then you eat them. Cider to drink, too. And what goes better with cider than doughnuts! Cookies, which can be made beforehand, are good with cider too, 'specially these Cheese Pumpkin Cookies and Chocolate Drops.

Cheese Pumpkin Cookies

1 package (3 ounces) soft snappy cheese
½ cup butter
½ cup sifted flour
½ cup crushed wheat flakes

Combine all ingredients and mix thoroughly. Shape into small balls, place on ungreased baking sheet, and flatten with back of spoon. Bake in hot oven (400° F.) 7 to 10 minutes. Use angelica for stems and bits of raisins for eyes, etc. Makes about 2 dozen.

Chocolate Toasties Drops

1 package chocolate chips,
2 cups corn flakes
¼ cup shelled peanuts

Heat chocolate over boiling water until partly melted; then remove from boiling water and stir until blended. Add corn flakes and peanuts and mix lightly until corn flakes and peanuts are completely coated with chocolate. Drop from teaspoon on waxed paper. Let stand in cool place to harden. Makes about 2 dozen.

Doughnuts

3½ cups sifted flour
4 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
1¼ teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon nutmeg
2 tablespoons shortening
¾ cup sugar
4 egg yolks, well beaten
¼ teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon lemon extract
1 cup milk

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt, and nutmeg, and sift together three times. Cream shortening, add sugar gradually, and cream until light and fluffy. Add egg yolks and flavorings and beat well. Add milk and mix thoroughly. Add sifted dry ingredients, beating until smooth. Chill dough for easier handling.

Roll dough ⅜-inch thick on floured board. Cut with 2-inch floured doughnut cutter. Fry in hot fat (375° F.) until brown, turning when tops of doughnuts become rounded. Drain on absorbent paper. Makes 2 dozen doughnuts.

St. Mary Magdalene Plans Box Social

The Holy Name Society of Saint Mary Magdalene Church is planning a box social for Saturday, Nov. 5, at the church auditorium on S. Roys-av. The lunch boxes are to be prepared by the ladies and will be auctioned off during the evening. The proceeds will be applied to the altar fund.

Refreshments will be served and square dancing will be on the program for the evening.

HOLDS JITNEY SUPPER

A jitney supper and hobby show will be presented at Pleasant Hill School, 3375 Clime-rd, just west of Demorest-rd, tonight at 5:30. Funds from the dinner will be used to purchase playground equipment for the school.

SALLY'S SALLIES

"That's just a sample of a certain young doctor's sense of humor."

Palace At Louvre Much the Same As in Napoleon's Time

Tuesday, June 28

Both Solon and Jean had to go to work today which left us to fend for ourselves.

Because we had come so hurriedly through the city last evening Violet and I had no idea as to our geographical location. Coupled with this was our complete inability to speak any French. Consequently, although we had the morning to ourselves, we hesitated going out to see the town.

At noon Solon arrived with his cousin. We had dinner together then.

As soon as we had finished eating Solon and Jean took us out to see something of Paris. Because it did not get dark until nearly ten o'clock we were able to do this in daylight. A taxi was hailed and in it we drove to the Champs d'Elysee along which we drove until we came to the Touilleres, the wide gardens which extend for several blocks in front of the Louvre.

At the Louvre we discarded the taxi for a more leisurely view of these historic scenes. We walked through the courtyard of the Louvre and tried to imagine what this old palace must have looked like when Napoleon and his retinue were living there. From the street in front of the Louvre we could look down the entire length of the Touilleres to the Arc d' Triumph in the far distance.

From the Louvre we walked through colonnaded walks past shops of many kinds, coming finally to a busy corner on a side street where Solon left us standing in the middle of a very excited crowd, including a number of Gendarmes. At first Jean thought there might be the beginnings of a Communist uprising in this crowd but in a little while we discovered we were standing in front of a hotel. A party of tourists was just being received at the hotel and the crowd milling about was nothing more than a group of neighborhood residents getting a little excitement out of seeing the tourists arrive. In the meantime Solon had been standing out in the middle of the street, risking the perils of Paris traffic, trying to flag down another taxi in which to see other places. He was unsuccessful in this so we trailed along behind him to the nearest subway for our first and only ride on the Paris underground.

Where we emerged I do not remember, if I ever knew. We walked along through the evening crowds until soon we were in a section abounding in sidewalk cafes. Here we stopped to drink lemonade while we tried to look native and watched the fashion parade go by.

I suppose that everyone is familiar with the sidewalk cafe that Paris is filled with—places where one can stop for rest and refreshment. Tonight we discovered that Paris thinks as much about tired and thirsty dogs as it does about humans. As we walked past a number of sidewalk cafes we came across another place called a "dog bar." There was a complete room completely outfitted to serve the passing pooches with anything they desired.

By this time darkness was on us which meant that the hour was getting late. In another taxi we were whizzed back to Boulevard Perraire for our second night in the fashion capital.

Hobbies Take Up Much Of Spare Time of West Pupils

By Myron T. Seifert

Have you wondered what many West High pupils do in their leisure out of school hours? Certainly by many of them have little time for loafing. A large per cent have part-time employment, mostly at Hilltop establishments.

A tremendous number, however, in their free time, carry on many interesting and worthwhile hobbies, in addition to part-time jobs.

Survey in several 11B English classes is probably a representative cross-section of many interests among teen-agers at West High School:

Sandra Timmons is air-minded, is a member of the Girl Scout Shooting Star Flight on the Hilltop, and engages in building model planes.

Manually-made jig-saw puzzles command much attention from Joe Behling.

A full-size sailing boat, now in blueprint stage, is a mammoth chore of Dick Briggs.

Ted Biddison's creations of attractive drawings make up a huge scrap-book. He is also an apostle of Izaac Walton and he and his dad are avid fishing pals.

Writing to teen-agers in other countries takes up much of Bill Vawters' time.

Dick Palmer and brother make useful articles from leather.

Photography, via a new camera, is on Janet Roller's leisure agenda.

Then, too, no hobby list is complete, without match covers, an assortment of which is the collection of Dean Baker.

Nelson Carson, photographer de luxe, sports one movie camera and five still life cameras, which can be used for every occasion. This equipment includes lenses of all sorts which are adaptable to every situation and angle. Training cocker spaniel puppies on a large scale is an additional diversion for Carson.

Unusual pennants adorn the room of Wilma Vawters.

Sketching and painting relaxes Peggy Shopin from arduous school duties.

Barbara Harrison is an adept dancer on skates, while Lois Groom, horse fancier, knows how to make horses perform in a stately manner.

Reading biographies takes some time in Musician Tom Heyl's busy career.

Barbara Taylor teaches at a local dance studio, is interested in social service work.

And Gerry Trickel's scrapbook is filled with West High athletic pictures and news clippings.

Barbara Gordon is happiest when rope-twirling, especially at West High football games.

Long suit of Gail Hinton is pen pals in many countries, 49 pals in all.

Robert Brook's collection of coins enlists much interest, while Ronnie Coup has all but 10 series of Lincoln head pennies. Gary Dixon boasts a fabulous coin collection.

Hotel menu cards from outstanding places makes up the colorful collection of Mary Lee Neff, 205 to be exact.

Raising a pig is a must to Don Rasicka and Shirley Sipe's match box covers are artistic.

A disc and platter collection in the music world delights the soul of Barbara Graves.

Joan King has an avid interest in aviation and Jim Mallon, draftsmanship.

Jalopies and auto mechanics are interests of Gene Rigsby.

Bob Glassburn's whole life is wound up in horses and Howard Merriman has a legion of diversions.

Russ Friend dotes on sports—especially baseball.

Joe Balthaser builds model planes, and Edith Smith sketches in pencil or charcoal.

Ann Haise's baton twirling ability is achieved by many hours of pleasant training routine. Ann is also a shutter-bug enthusiast, taking many worthwhile pictures.

Janet Williams, student that she is, finds time to follow many extracurricular activities at West High.

Odd Fact

After thirteen years of owning an old dresser he had bought at a second-hand sale, a man in Savannah, Ga., pried behind its mirror and found nineteen $100 bills.

Santa Comes To Hilltop Early

Santa Claus came to the Hilltop early this year as evidenced in this picture which was taken in front of Shockey's Five and Dime Store, 2368 W. Broad-st, where Santa opened Toyland recently. Santa is shown on top of his sleigh, in the center, handing a girl a balloon. The sleigh is hidden by children and Santa's helpers, three clowns, who passed out free balloons, candy and bubble gum.

Broad-st Bridge Opens 'New Era' In 1816; Crossing Fare 'Reasonable'

By Myron T. Seifert

Imagine, if you can, the traffic jam that would result if every vehicle going or coming on W. Broad-st, Rt. 40, were required to stop at the bridge long enough to pay toll for the right to cross.

Imagine, if you can, your own feelings as you would jam on the brakes, and grope about in your pockets for a coin.

Yet, with the exception of jamming on the brakes, that was what went on when Columbus, 133 summers ago, was just beginning to grow from a cross-roads hamlet on the "high east bank of the Scioto" into a city worthy of being the capital of Ohio.

In 1816, the year in which Columbus was incorporated, the legislature granted a charter to Lucas Sullivant, allowing him to build a bridge to connect Franklinton and Columbus, and to derive a reasonable revenue from it, without services of a modern state highway department. Mr. Sullivant was one of the most prominent of our pioneer citizens, one whose manifold civic activities in the early days were later commemorated by naming a West Side street for him.

An article appearing in the Columbus Monitor in November, 1816, under the heading "New Era," gives a detailed description of the structure which carried westward-bound pioneers over the Scioto on the famous National Road.

"An elegant bridge," wrote the enthusiastic reporter, "is now thrown across the Scioto, establishing connection between the towns of Franklinton and Columbus; the bridge being of wood, of a firm and durable structure, commencing at the termination of Broad Street and extending 315 feet to the opposite side of the river and continuing 250 feet further over the adjoining bottom. It is built on the principle of king posts and braces and the part over the river is supported by three trestles of sufficient strength and solidity of foundation."

Mr. Sullivant was a business-like individual, as his various interests (most of which he turned to profit) show. That was his bridge by legislative grant, and he was going to say how it might be used. A few days later he inserted an advertisement in the Columbus Monitor in which he made his intentions clear.

He stated that "the gates of my bridge will be closed on the first of December next," that date marking the official opening of the thoroughfare.

Those gates, he went on to assure the citizens, "would be open at suitable hours, on Sundays and days of Thanksgiving." Free passage on the bridge was piously proffered to "all persons going to or coming from Divine worship" and also (perhaps in return for permission to operate the bridge) "to members of the legislature when going to or from the General Assembly."

Mr. Sullivant was generous, even if a little dictatorial about his bridge. "It shall be open," his notice concludes, "at all times free to funeral processions and on such other occasions as I may deem expedient." He further added, "Permits for passage on the bridge may be had on reasonable terms."

Left-Over Egg Yolk Recipes

By ALICE DENHOFF

WHAT to do to make best use of left-over egg white and left-over yolks is always a big question with the good, careful housewife who refuses to waste even a smidgin of fine food. So here is a batch of egg yolk suggestions.

If the icebox yields one left-over yolk, then cook it until it is hard. Place it in a custard cup and set cup in pan of hot water; simmer over low heat for 15-20 min. Chill. When ready to use press yolk through sieve and use as a garnish on salty crackers. It makes a nice drink escort.

Paradise Pudding owes some of its goodness to egg yolks, two of them, to be specific! Cream together 2 tbsp. softened butter or margarine and ¾ c. confectioners' sugar. Add 2 egg yolks, one at a time, beating until smooth. Whip ½ c. heavy cream until stiff; add one c. drained crushed pineapple and ½ c. chopped walnut meats. Finely roll enough graham crackers to make one c. fine crumbs. Place ½ c. crumbs in layer on bottom of a 9x5x3-inch loaf dish; cover with first mixture. Top with another ½ c. crumbs, then spread the whipped cream layer, topping with remaining crumbs. Chill several hours. Serves 4-6.

Duchess Custard to serve 4, requires 3 egg yolks. Scald 2 c. milk; add ¼ c. sugar and ½ tsp. salt. Slightly beat 3 egg yolks; gradually add milk and ½ tsp. vanilla. Stir until well blended. Pour into 10x6x2-inch baking dish. Place dish in pan of hot water. Bake at 325 F. for ¼ hour. Carefully sprinkle ½ c. sugar wafer crumbs on top; continue to bake for ½ hour longer. Serve warm or chilled with additional sugar wafers.

First Graders See Fire House

Two 1A classes from West Broad Street School visited the fire station at Broad and Wheatland-av on the afternoon of Friday, Oct. 14. The children took the trip in connection with Fire Prevention Week which was Oct. 9-14.

Te captain directed the children through the building showing them the bedroom and recreation room, kitchen and fire equipment.

Rosalee Matthews and Ernie Gresh slid down the pole with two of the firemen and Roland Woodworth tried on the gas mask. The children showed great interest in the firemen's work.

Bruce P. Jackson Dies In Hospital

Bruce P. Jackson, 74, of 34 S. Harris-av, died Wednesday in Mt. Carmel Hospital after a long illness. He had been a mail clerk 30 years, serving on the Pennsylvania Railroad. He lived at the S. Harris address for 30 years.

He was a member of the Glenwood Methodist Church, Madison Chapter F&AM and Eastern Star at West Jefferson, Scioto Consistory, Aladdin Temple and Scottish Rite at Columbus.

He is survived by a daughter, Millicent Jackson, at home; a son, Robert B. Jackson, 2342 Tremont-rd; two sisters, Mrs. George A. Street, at home, and Mrs. Willard O. Weir, Ashtabula, O.; a brother, Clyde A. Jackson, Denver, Colo., and a granddaughter.

Friends may call at the Jerry Spears Funeral Home Thursday evening and until time of services at 10 a. m. Saturday. Rev. Joseph B. Shellhaas will officiate. Interment will be in Galloway cemetery.

Words of the Wise

Pleasure is a necessary reciprocal: no one feels, who does not at the same time give it. To be pleased, one must please. What pleases you in others will, in general, please them in you. —(Chesterfield)

WE'RE NOT FOOLED . . .
ARE YOU?

It's almost impossible to disguise a cow . . . but it's easy to disguise a substitute product!

The oleo corporations want to imitate real butter as nearly as possible. At the same time, they are trying to disguise the Ohio dairy cow as "the villain" . . . claiming that the dairy industry wants to discourage the use of oleo as a cheap spread for bread.

This is not the case, at all!

The dairy industry has no quarrel with oleo . . . if it is sold as oleo . . . easily recognized by its white color and low price.

Don't you be fooled either! If oleo goes yellow, it will cost more . . . right up to the price of real butter. Keep oleo WHITE . . . and CHEAP!

YOU BE THE JUDGE!

WON'T You VOTE "NO" ON YELLOW OLEO? (Nov. 8)

Overflow of Books Received, Kenal Seeks Funds To Build New Library

Hilltoppers have done such a good job of donating books to the community library in Kenai, Alaska, that the 2,350 books which have been sent by Mr. and Mrs. Mose Williams, 2581 Steele-av, are over flowing the small school-room library.

Now, due to these circumstances, the Kenai Community Library Board has launched a building campaign for which they are trying to raise funds. The village is building a new school building, but there will not be room in it to house a community library. The board has asked that no more books be shipped until room can be found to house them.

The request for books came from good friends of the Williams. They are Howard and Maxine Lee, who are homesteading near Kenai.

A baby boy was recently born to Mrs. Lee. Mrs. Lee had travelled 100 miles through Alaskan wilderness to Seward, the nearest large city, to have young Michael Howard born with a doctor's care.

On Aug. 1, Mrs. Lee was sworn in as the U. S. postmistress of Soldatna, which is near Kenai. (Soldatna is a Russian word meaning soldier.)

'Ever since last March," Mrs. Williams stated, "the people of the Hilltop have been calling us to come and pick up books for the Alaskan library. The response has been more than gratifying. To date we have shipped a total of 2,350 books," she added.

In a letter this week from Mrs. Allan L. Petersen, president of the library board, she reports, "We have built shelves in the hall of our old school building, which will accommodate a portion of the books received. The opening date is set for the first week in November."

Anyone interested in contributing to the new Kenai library should contact Mr. and Mrs. Mose Williams, Ra. 0758.

G & W Owners Preview New Hudson In Detroit

Robert Gibbon, 174 S. Powell-av, and Fred A. Williams, 52 Powhatan-av, owners of G. & W. Motors, Inc., 3192 W. Broad-st, local Hudson dealers, returned Tuesday from a two-day visit in Detroit where they previewed the 1950 model of a new Hudson series.

Gibbon and Williams expect to have at least four autos of this new series delivered this month. The new model, known as the Pacemaker series, will sell for less than the 1949 cars in the Super and Commodore series.

The car will have a wheelbase of 119 inches, and will have a 112 horse power. The body design is much the same as the 1949 lines. However, according to Gibbon, the model has several innovations inside and out.

The 1950 models of the Commodore and Super series will not be ready for the market until January.

Williams and Gibbon were among 700 Hudson dealers from three zones in the central part of the country.

County Gets San Margaritte Water Petitions

A. J. Dallas, 3265 McKinley-av, said today he has submitted to the county sanitary engineering department a petition with 125 names requesting the county and city to supply the village of San Margaritte with water.

According to Dallas, if 65% of the signatures are valid the matter will be taken up by the county commissioners. Because the water supply is furnished by the city, the move will need its approval.

The residents of San Margaritte who have signed the petition, are asking that water pipes be extended out N. Hague-av to Trabue-rd, east on Trabue to McKinley-av, and then south.

At present work is in progress in putting pipes along N. Hague beyond Fisher-rd.

Onions contain an oil, similar to that used in tear gas bombs.

Hilliards Meets Weak New Albany Eleven Friday

Hilliards is still in the county league championship running, despite last week's loss to Worthington, and will very likely be in there even more solid after Friday's game with New Albany on the Wildcat's turf.

Coach Everett Fahrenhola's eleven have had only 14 points scored against them in the league games. Those were scored by Worthington with a final score of 14-7. A near record crowd of 2200 witnessed this game. The attendance was second only to last year's Hilliards-Mifflin tourney which left the two squads league co-champs.

Hilliards will meet Mifflin Nov. 4, but the outcome will not affect the league standings. The champ will have been determined by then.

Except for an unexpected upset, the Wildcats are almost assured for a second place position. New Albany has lost four games and won none. Next week's opponent, Gahanna, the last in the league, has won two and lost two, to date.

Unless a tie occurs in the Mifflin-Worthington game Friday, Hilliards will be sharing second place honors with one of these two.

Hilltop Girl Goes To New York To Be Cover Girl

By Myron T. Seifert

One of the most photographed girls on the Hilltop is 5 ft. 8 in., 118 lb., blonde, Laura Furman, 19, of 78 N. Terrace-av, whose picture has appeared in many magazines from coast to coast.

Recently she flew to New York to do a "cover shot" for McCall's magazine.

A former Conover model, Miss Furman started her career here at Andre J. Correale's New York Modeling School at the age of 14. Early in her career she modeled for several local stores and photographers in Columbus.

Her real career, however, began when she vacationed in New York, in October, 1947, on "birthday present" money given her by her father.

Four days after her arrival in New York she signed a seven year contract with Harry Conover's Modeling Agency.

During a 10 month stay in New York she went on location to Phoenix, Ariz., for six weeks with Alden's, Inc., Chicago, and did various pictures for nationally known periodicals such as Vogue, Harper's Bazaar, Good Housekeeping, Mademoiselle, Charm, Seventeen and Country Gentleman. Attention was also focused upon her in New York papers, as well as local papers.

Her New York job brought her to Columbus, via plane, to do fashion shows.

Returning to Columbus in August of this year, she made plans to complete her high school education at Evening High. She is a former student of West High School.

She is now employed as contact clerk at the Ohio Fuel Gas Company and continues to model part time.

Following her graduation she again expects to continue modeling in New York.

Supervised Fun or Vandalism?

There was a hot time in the old town meeting the other night. Things went fast and furious at the Hilltop Community Council meeting last week at the Westgate Methodist Church when they started discussing the skating and game rink plan for Westgate Park.

Needless to say, this plan to build an asphalt-top skating and play rink in the park is a controversial subject. The people who are opposing the plan—20, or so, families living on the streets bordering the park — argue that the park is not supervised and therefore the rink would attract "vandalism."

The citizens who favor the idea claim the rink would provide much-needed safe and pleasurable facilities for the youth of our community. This seems to be an unquestionable fact.

It is just as unquestionable a fact that the park needs to be supervised. It has not been properly supervised—year around—since 1941. The pro-rink people are as strong for park supervision as the anti-rink group.

The Hilltop Business Association and the Hilltop Kiwanis Club have offered financial aid in building the skating and game rink. Other member organizations of the Community Council are to consider the question of the rink and report their stand at the next meeting of the council on Nov. 9, in the auditorium of John Burroughs School.

As a citizen of the Hilltop it would be a good idea to be on hand at that meeting and say how you stand —for or against increased recreational facilities.

From a fatal smash-up to a dented fender, all automobile accidents have one thing in common: Somebody caused it—somebody could have prevented it. The Safety Council urges you to check frequently and be sure your car is in safe condition. Then drive it carefully all the time. Don't be the victim of an accident! Don't be the CAUSE!

A haze is on the far horizon,
The infinite, tender sky;
The ripe, rich tint of the corn-fields,
And wild geese sailing high—
And all over upland and low lands
The charm of the goldenrod—
Some call it Autumn,
And others call it God.

—William Herbert Carruth

At Westmont

Van Johnson falls under the spell of glamorous Gloria DeHaven, playing a seductive night club entertainer in "Scene of the Crime," the new offering now playing at the Westmont Theater. Ariene Dahl is cast as Johnson's wife in this suspense-packed detective thriller, with Tom Drake as his fellow-sleuth. The co-feature will be "Not Wanted," starring Sally Forrest and Keefe Brasselle.

Words of the Wise

True happiness is of a retired nature, and an enemy to pomp and noise; it arises, in the first place, from the enjoyment of one's self; and, in the next, from the friendship and conversation of a few select companions.

RECOGNITION SERVICE

By Norma Lewis

The recognition service for the Y-Teens took place at the YWCA, Oct. 11.

The service was opened by Vera Adams playing a solo on the piano. All Y-Teens were then welcomed by the president of the YWCA. Next all the Y-Teens stood up and sang "Our Song."

Yvonne Brewer, Lucille Cacciatore, Kathleen Rogers, Dorli Kuepher and Sandra Gatliff took charge of the program. They talked about the friendship between all races and giving to others. Then the candles were lit by the Y-Teens as they sang "I Would Be True" and "The Y-Teen Taps."

God Rebukes the Nations — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scriptures—Isaiah 1:21-23; 10: 12; 19:19-25; 21.

The princes of the city of Jerusalem are rebellious, the Lord told Isaiah, and companions of thieves: every one loveth gifts, and followeth after rewards.

I will restore thy judges and thy counsellors as at the beginning, afterward thou shalt be called the city of righteousness, a faithful town.

Jehovah shall be known to Egypt, and the Egyptians shall know Jehovah in that day, and shall vow a vow unto Jehovah, and shall perform it.

In that day shall Israel be the third with Egypt and with Assyria, and a blessing in the midst of the earth.

MEMORY VERSE—Isaiah 2:4.

Dr. S. E. Nothstine of Visalia, Cal., is the evangelist and David Skipper directs the music.

The public is invited to these services.

Dinner Planned At Galloway Church

Rev. T. M. Patterson has announced that a pot luck dinner will be served in the Galloway Church Hall on Wednesday, Oct. 26, at 6:30 p. m.

Following the dinner a movie, "Now I See", will be shown. A canvass of the members planned for the community will be explained at this meeting.

Assistant Pastor To Present Wesley Program

Norman Roettger

Norman Roettger, the student assistant pastor of the Westgate Methodist Church, will give a five minute statement on "What the Wesley Foundation Means to a Methodist Student," on Sunday, Oct. 23. His statement will be given at Westgate on the Sunday which has been designated as Wesley Foundation Sunday in the Methodist Churches of Ohio. They have launched a $500,000 campaign for new buildings and equipment at the state schools in Ohio.

The Methodist Church has Wesley Foundation units for Methodist students at Ohio State, Kent State, Ohio University and Bowling Green.

Norman Roettger, a sophomore at Ohio State, is a ministerial student and an active participant in the Wesley Foundation. At the Westgate Methodist Church he is assisting in the pastoral work and is in charge of the High School Fellowship in the Sunday evening youth program.

FUTILITY

I filled my life with myriads of things;
I found me songs to sing, and work to do.
So I should harbor no remeberings
When I had rid my busy heart of you.
Substantial, sure, the tasks I laid away
Against your going; proud I was to know
That I had taught my truant heart to stay
Well fortified, and calmly let you go.

Unwatered in the sun my poor plants droop,
My books, unopened, chide me after tea;
A bit of cloth in an embroidery hoop,
A sheet of music open needlessly . . .

While foolishly, as foolish women do,
I waste my days in futile thoughts of you.

Frances Boal Mehlek, in her book,
A SINNER CONTEMPLATES.

HOLD RALLY DAY

Sullivant Avenue Friends Church will hold Rally Day Sunday, Oct. 23, with morning services at 9:15. The children's programs at this time will be planned by Mrs. Elinor Carey, superintendent of primary Sunday school.

Crematory and Columbarium

"What Will I Do With The Cremated Remains?"
This Question Is Often Asked
You should treat a cremated remains with the same reverential respect shown any other body and it should either be buried or placed in a niche in a columbarium. Never scattered. You have no right to scatter human's remains on any one's property except your own. Do you want others scattering their cremated bodies on your property? We furnish single niches from $25 up and undersized graves for cremated remains from $5 up. "Buy where you get the best for less."

The interdependence of individuals is a factor in "Our American Way of Life" that places a personal obligation upon every person in a community. Meeting that objective is the one and only remedy for the many extremes that haunt us.

Harvest time; birds on the wing Southward, riding to the hounds, preparations for Thanksgiving or Christmas, football classics across the nation — these are signs of Autumn.

The beauty of trees painted with nature's most gorgeous colors, reminds us that Summer is on the wane. It is time for readjustment to one of life's changes of season. It is time to be reminded that God is in His heaven.

Development of the spiritual uplift which gives us the fullest enjoyment of life, is best achieved through attendance at the church of one's choice regularly. Through proper observance of one's religious duties is the fullest enjoyment of life brought about.

"Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you."

Consciousness of Christ makes the harvest field more bounteous. Love of one's Creator adds beauty to the heavens through which the birds are flying to their Winter homes. Spiritual attunement gives zest to the ride to the hounds. Good sportsmanship on the football fields is a reminder that man was created in the image of God.

HILL MOTHER

Once I met a gentle hill
That curved the way it should.
Just why it went the way it did
No person understood.

I found the answer quite by chance
In searching through my mind—
If I were holding living things,
I would try to be as kind.

The trees and bushes, shrubs and flowers
Must lie so warm and still
And little living things do, too—
So curves the gentle hill.

The Low Down On High Ridgers

By One of Them

Congrats! to MR. and MRS. RICHARD MANN on a new son.

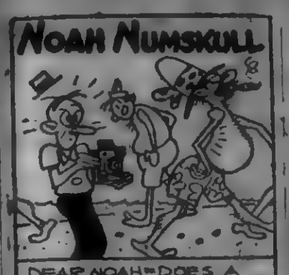
BERNARD FLOYD had a flat bed trailer made. He's ready to mount the cradle and put his boat away to hibernate for the winter.

The cars themselves lined up on the streets Saturday afternoons in our section point out the new television sets. Our friends come to see the football games. The latest prospective buyer is HAROLD (ELECTRIC) WATT. He's trying out a Crosley.

IVAN REED'S new Buick is a honey. Anyone want a ride?

Nope, that's no airplane coming down the street—that's GRANT VAN GASTLE coming on his motorcycle. It's really got the power behind it. He'll be volunteering to tow HERB ROEDERER'S new trailer.

The BILL OYERS have converted to a gas furnace. Fortunate people! My wife wants to convert my tobacco pipe into an odorless scraped-out bowl. I might as well use a bubble pipe, but if I did she'd want me to use her brand of soap to blow bubbles. Can't win, folks!



HUBER WATTS bought a new Chevy!

Did you see LOU SINGER mow the lawn the other day? She said her husband wouldn't rake the leaves because the grass needed cutting the worst, and he didn't have time to do even that. Now the leaves are in smaller pieces. Maybe it will be easier next year to cut down his neighbors' trees. He says the finer cut leaves are good for the ground anyhow.

Sugar 'n' Spice and everything nice are what girls are made of—but SALLY BURKHART was everything BUT that when a waitress spilled a bowl of chili on her new fall suit in a restaurant. She wore a suit to keep from getting CHILLY, but seems she got CHILI anyhow!

Does CHUCK NOLAN need a butler or secretary? His phone rang and he answered it the same time his doorbell rang. His dog barked at the door and (in dog language) told the fellow to wait a minute. The person at the phone wanted NOLAN to subscribe for the Record, and the boy at the door was selling magazines. CHUCK can't complain; he's a salesman himself and rings doorbells. He's a jolly sort of person. His type makes a good salesman.

Well, ELECTRIC WATT is able to work again. He was off four weeks with an injured caboose when he was thrown in a back—wait a minute! He was injured in the caboose of a Pennsylvania train while backing up—now. His back was thrown while injuring a train—. —Intermission—I went after my pipe. That's what I needed. Now I have it! HIS BACK WAS INJURED AS HE WAS THROWN AGAINST THE SIDE OF THE CABOOSE. He's feeling fine now. Strong as ever.

Christmas is not a legal holiday in Kansas.

Odd Fact

When the "Big Ben" clock in London, England, is losing time slightly, a penny is placed in a tray half way down the thirteenth pendulum, thus shortening the pendulum's swing, and if the clock is running fast, a penny is removed.

Words of the Wise

The passions may be humored till they become our masters, as a horse may be pampered till he gets the better of his rider; but early discipline will prevent mutiny, and keep the helm in the hands of reason.—(Cumberland)

CROSLEY MILLION-DOLLAR GIVEAWAY

NOTHING TO BUY

YES, OVER $2,000,000 IN CASH AND VALUABLE PRIZES!

Just tell us a good reason why we should give you a new Shelvador* Refrigerator

A double chance to win. First—we're one of hundreds of Crosley Dealers having a Local Contest, designed for our own friends and neighbors and judged by local judges right in our own community. Think how simple it is! All you do is write on the Local Entry Blank in 50 words or less why you believe Crosley should give you a beautiful, new 9-cubic-foot Shelvador Refrigerator. If our judges select your reason as best, you will get a new 1950 Shelvador Refrigerator to be awarded by us and delivered right to your home.

WIN A BRAND NEW 1950 CUSTOM MODEL SHELVADOR REFRIGERATOR

$25,500 in cash—25 complete Crosley Electric Kitchens and 100 new 1950 Shelvador Refrigerators as National Prizes!

Second—a National Contest, in addition to and separate from our Local Crosley Dealer Contest, where the same words you write for the Local Contest (or different ones if you prefer) may be submitted on the National Entry Blank and compete for the Grand Prizes of cash, kitchens, and refrigerators to be awarded by Crosley.

Each of the Crosley Electric Kitchens has a retail value of over $1500 and includes: A 1950 9-cubic-foot Model CB-9 Custom Shelvador . . . Model DE 129 Crosley Electric Range . . . 3.2 cubic-foot Model HF-1346 Crosley Kitchen Freezer . . . 40-gallon table-top Custom Model CMT40DE Crosley Electric Water Heater . . . Model CKD25 Crosley Kitchen Disposer . . . 48-inch Model CST4800 Crosley Cabinet Sink . . . and base and wall steel cabinets to a maximum retail value of $350.00.

Gives up to 23% more space in the same size cabinet—easy to reach—easy to use—no stooping clear to the floor.

The new 1950 Model CB-9, 9 Cubic Foot Capacity.

The Amazing 1950 Shelvador with Exclusive WORKSAVER Design
ALL SPACE AT THE "CONVENIENCE LEVEL"!

IF YOU BUY A NEW 1950 CROSLEY REFRIGERATOR during this contest and win one as a prize either in National or Local Contests . . . you will get a cash refund equal to the retail price of your prize.

JUST FOLLOW THESE SIMPLE RULES—

1. In 50 words or less, write your reason or reasons why we should give you a new Shelvador Refrigerator. Write your reasons in the space provided on the Entry Blanks—the red Entry Blank for the Crosley Local Dealers' Contest; the green Entry Blank for the Crosley National Contest.
2. Participants may enter both the Crosley Local Dealers' Contest and the Crosley National Contest. However, participants may submit only one entry in only one of the Crosley Local Dealers' Contests and the participant may submit only one entry in the Crosley National Contest.
3. Both of the Entry Blanks to be obtained at no cost from Crosley Appliance dealers. The green Entry Blank for the National Contest from any Crosley Dealer, the red Entry Blank from the local Crosley Dealer conducting a local contest.
4. Any resident of the continental United States may compete except employees of the Crosley Division of the AVCO Manufacturing Corporation, retail dealers of Crosley appliances, wholesale distributors of Crosley appliances, their advertising agencies and their families. Contest subject to all federal, state, and local regulations.
5. All entries on the red Entry Blanks for the Crosley Local Dealers' Contest must be delivered before December 1, 1949, to the Crosley Dealer from whom the entry was obtained.
6. All entries on either the red blank for the local contest or the green blank for the national contest that are mailed, must be postmarked before midnight, November 30, 1949.
7. Mail or deliver in person your red Entry Blank for the Crosley Local Dealers' Contest to the Crosley Dealer from whom the entry blank was obtained. Mail the green Entry Blank for the National Crosley Contest to Barry Olson, Director of Home Economics, Crosley Division, AVCO Manufacturing Corp. Box 1938, Cincinnati, Ohio.
8. Entries will be judged and prizes will be awarded for originality, sincerity and aptness of thought. Judges' decision will be final. Duplicate prizes will be awarded in case of ties. No entries will be returned. Entries, contents and ideas therein become the property of the Crosley Division, AVCO Manufacturing Corporation.
9. All winners will be notified by mail, phone, or telegram. A list of the winners of the Crosley National Contest will be available on request from Crosley Division, AVCO Manufacturing Corporation, 1329 Arlington St., Cincinnati 25, Ohio, approximately two months after the close of the contest.

Hallowe'en "Fun Making" Can Be Dangerous

There is probably no community in Columbus with less excuse to mar the Hallowe'en holidays with vandalism than the Hilltop.

We like to think that the recent cases of property destruction are the work of a small minority of so-called "pranksters."

The recent incident on Eakin-rd could have been much more serious than it was, resulting in the injury or even death of a number of persons.

We believe in good clean fun on Hallowe'en, but malicious destruction of property should not be tolerated.

We believe that the police should take appropriate action against those whose "fun" endangers the lives and property of others.

The community has done a good job of providing wholesome entertainment for the children on Hallowe'en. It is the responsibility of children and parents to see that the Hallowe'en season does not end tragically for someone.

Bob Cromwell's Predictions Win Pig-Skin Contest

Bob Cromwell, 1685 N. Hague-av, nosed out Harold C. Todd, 449 Wrexham-av, in the closest Professor Pig-Skin Contest to date.

Twenty-three contestants reached the finals in last week's contest by picking all four winners correctly. Most points were lost on guessing the score of the Hilliards - New Albany and Denison - Oberlin games. Oddly enough, Hilliards and Denison both won by the same overwhelming score, 53-7.

Both Todd and Cromwell picked up valuable points in the contest by coming close to the score in the Hilliards game. Cromwell's guess was 54-0, and Todd's was 48-0.

Todd lost the most points on the Denison game while Cromwell made his worst guess on the Ohio State-Wisconsin game.

Both winning contestants did substantially better than the third place contestant.

The Professor Pig-Skin contest for this week appears inside the Record today.

End Man Harold

Harold Greene

Harold Greene, along with Floyd Badgly, William Scott and Norman Line, will be the end man for George Hardy, interlocutor, in the Fidelis Minstrel and variety show to be presented Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 26 and 27, at the Hoge Memorial Church gym, at 8:15 p. m.

The show, with a Showboat theme, will feature several variety acts, including dances, barber shop quartet, comedy skit and a magic act by Patti Miesse. Mrs. Bertha Woodin will be the accompanist for the show.

The Fidelis Class of the church's Sunday School is presenting the program. All proceeds will go to the building fund for a new church structure.

Political Rally Cancelled

The Franklin Twp. political rally scheduled to be held in the Rea Bow Improvement Association Hall has been cancelled due to the cold weather.

The meeting will be held on Thursday, Nov. 3, if the heating system of the hall is in operation at that time.

Hilliards To Leave League

3 Teams Leaving County League To Join New Loop

Hilliards and two other high schools will break away from the county league and join with five other teams to form a new football and basketball league starting in 1950.

The announcement was made by V. F. Patterson, secretary of the league association and principal of Hilliards High School. He named the following schools as those to form the league: Marysville, Worthington, Grove City, Westerville, London and Hilliards.

At present Hilliards, Worthington and Grove City are members of the Franklin County League. Eight other teams will remain in the league. The new set-up will begin with the 1950 football season and the 1951 basketball schedule.

Six names for the new league have been submitted. Students of all the schools will vote on the names. The suggested names are: All Star Buckeye League; Central Ohio Tri-County League, Little Buckeye League, Mid-Six League, Suburban League and Tri-County League.

Representatives of the league will meet Wednesday, Nov. 9, at 6:30 p. m., at Boyd's Restaurant, in Worthington, according to Patterson.

These schools are situated in Franklin, Madison and Union Counties.

Drinking Fountains Stolen At School

John Hupp, janitor of St. Mary Magdalene School at Roys and Parkside-avs, saw water spurting from the ground on the school's play area Friday morning. Investigating, he found that two drinking fountains valued at $50, had been stolen.

Earlier in the week vandals had entered the church and forced their way into three cabinets in the rectory.

Three More Groups Endorse School Levy

Three additional Hilltop organizations last week added their endorsement to the local school levy to be voted upon at the election to be held Tuesday, Nov. 8.

They are Hilltop Kiwanis, West High Boosters, and Hilltop Parents Association.

Other groups anticipate a similar action.

Work Starts On New City Golf Course

Superimposed on an aerial photograph of the old Jaeger estate is the architect's plan for the new golf course and recreation area on Trabue and Wilson-rds.

Phil Stout, president of the city recreation commission, drives the first stake in the laying out of the golf course at Trabue and Wilson-rds. The spot where this stake is being driven will be the 10th tee. The preliminary lay-out of the course has been completed, and the Recreation Department plans to plow and grade all the fairways this fall so the golf course can be available for use by 1951.

Hilltop Sports Title of New Video Show

George Williams, West High School athletic director, will head a new 15 minute television show, "Hilltop Sports," which will have its video debut Wednesday night at 7:30 over Station WTVN.

Guests on the first Wednesday show will be North High Coach Mike Hagley and East Coach Ralph Webster. Up for discussion will be the North-East football game, to be played Thursday, and the basketball coaches' clinic that will be held Friday at West High School. Webster is the secretary of the Ohio Basketball Coaches' Association.

Williams said that the program will be mainly about sports on the Hilltop. Sponsor of the weekly shows is the Modern Finance Co., 2156 W. Broad-st.

Mrs. Stella Dowdell Succumbs Today

Mrs. Stella May Dowdell, 74, 2234 W. Mound-st, died early Tuesday morning.

She is survived by two sons, Mark Johnson of Columbus and Robert Johnson of San Bernardino, Cal.; two daughters, Mrs. Mabel Dowdell and Mrs. Ruth Mitchell; a stepson, Harry Dowdell, 12 grandchildren, 11 great-grandchildren and a brother.

Funeral arrangements are being completed by the Wylie S. Shroyer Funeral Home, 2553 W. Broad-st.

RESUMES BUSINESS

Mrs. Mildred Sanders, real estate broker of 96 S. Hague-av, has resumed business after an extended illness.

Teachers, Parents To Meet In West Open House Tonight

By Myron T. Seifert

Hundreds of parents of West High boys and girls will return to school tonight at 7:30 and meet the 85 teachers on the staff there.

The traditional annual open house is sponsored by the school in cooperation with the local Parent Teachers Association, Mrs. L. S. Will, president, said today.

County Commissioners May Reverse Zoning Decision

Delay Action On Refusal To Rezone Eakin Rd. Tract

With one exception, changes approved in Franklin Twp. zoning regulations by the Rural Zoning Commission and the Planning Commission were passed by the Franklin County Commissioners last week.

The commissioners delayed action on the Planning Commission's refusal to grant a change in zoning on the Elizabeth W. Downing tract along the B and O railroad. A request had been made that the property be changed from "Residential" to "Heavy Industry." Acreage next to the Downing tract has been rezoned for "Light Industry."

In a letter to the commissioners, Harry C. Downing, 2050 Eakin-rd, claimed that the refusal of the planning commission to grant the rezoning request was based on testimony of persons who did not live in the vicinity of the property in question.

Downing claimed that of the property owners immediately surrounding the property, 46 were in favor of the change, five were neutral, and four were against the change. A petition favoring the change and signed by 37 property owners in the vicinity of the Downing tract, was read at the commissioners' meeting.

Commissioner C. P. Lauderbaugh said he saw no reason for keeping the residential restriction on the property since the surrounding property was now zoned for light industry. Commissioners planned to visit the property in question Wednesday morning before taking final action.

The commissioners seemed of the opinion that the property should be zoned for light industry, but not heavy industry as originally requested.

In a letter to the commissioners on Aug. 8, Downing said he had prospects of selling the property for use as a lumber yard.

To date there has been only one instance of the commissioners reversing a decision of the planning commission.

Among the changes approved by the commissioners was the changing of the Baker-Hickey property along the B and O Railroad north of Eakin-rd from residential to light industry.

The Baker-Hickey Co. had been allowed to remain in the district as non-conformers since the county zoning law is not retroactive. However, limitations were placed

West High Girl Semi-Finalist In Beauty Contest

Lois Ann Reeder

Lois Ann Reeder, 16, of 847 S. Warren-av, is one of six semi-finalists from Central Ohio in the Lux Radio Theatre beauty contest.

One of the six will be awarded a watch and have her photograph entered in the nation-wide contest. The picture will be sent to Hollywood. The winner will be selected by the number of Lux soap wrapper votes she receives.

Lois has already won a $22 make-up kit as a winner in the semi-finals. The contest began Oct. 17 and will end Nov. 14.

A sophomore at West High School, Lois is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glade Reeder.

If you wish to vote for Lois, send a Lux wrapper with your name on hers to WBNS or to her home.

Mrs. Wm. Harper Dies At Home

Mrs. Alice Minerva Harper, 72, died this morning at her home, 1983 Fairmont-av. She was a member of the Linden Church of Christ.

She is survived by her husband, William Harper; two sons, Denver E., 1981 Fairmont-av, and C. E., 1085½ Forest-st; four grandchildren; and a brother, Charles Truman, Byer, O.

Funeral arrangements are being completed by the Jerry Spears Funeral Home.

Wave of Pre-Hallowe'en Vandalism Hits Hilltop

Fire Victim Needs Clothes

A couple from McKeesport, Pa. have learned of Hilltop hospitality, but things still look bleak for Jack Brown and his young wife Gladys.

Jack was badly burned in a truck accident last Wednesday on Harrisburg-pk. He is in Mt. Carmel hospital now.

Mrs. Brown came to Columbus to be with her husband, and was taken in by Mrs. Paul Wichterman for a night. She is now staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Thomas, 170 N. Huron-av. Since she came without bothering to pack, Seiller's gave her a complete outfit of clothes.

Word came last night from McKeesport that the Ladies' Aid Society of the churches there will send an ambulance for her husband when he can be returned home. However, Mr. Thomas reports, all of his clothes were destroyed in the fire and he hasn't even shoes to wear home.

If you would like to help this young accident victim, donations will be accepted at the Record office.

'Window Decorators' Give Up Soap, Turn To Paint

An official request — right from the kids of all Hilltop schools—has been made of customers on W. Broad-st and Sullivant-av, to stay out of the way of Hallowe'en window painters on Thursday and Friday.

The Hilltop Kiwanis Club will distribute Thursday, through the schools in the community, paint with which young artists will paint Hallowe'en scenes on the window fronts of business establishments.

The seasonal pictures will be judged on Saturday morning by three men well versed in judging. They are, Judges Wayne Fogle and Fred L. Donnally and Joseph M. Enright, chief bailliff, all of the municipal court.

Prizes will be awarded to the winning artists at the Hilltop Community Council's Hallowe'en celebration at West High School, on Monday night. Winners will be announced at 9 p. m.

Only children in grades 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9, are eligible to participate, according to Bruce Tanner, acting chairman of the committee.

Serving on the Kiwanis committee with Tanner are Woody Clark, chairman, who has been ill; Don Smith, judges, and Lou Rausch, paint distribution.

J. B., W. Mound Staff Changes Made

Two changes in the staffs of West Mound Street and John Burroughs Schools were announced last week by Principal E. B. Graham.

Christena Leist will return to John Burroughs as second grade teacher. She has been absent due to an operation. A substitute teacher, Mrs. Anna Anderson, has been teaching in her place.

Mrs. Ruth Neiswander has withdrawn from the West Mound Street staff due to poor health. Her place will be taken by Mrs. Dorothy Hampson.

Coat Return Due To Record Story

An article appearing in last Thursday's Record was responsible for the return of a $90 coat taken from Seiller's Oct. 13.

Representatives of the firm knew who took the coat, a woman's leopard stenciled fur-lined short coat, but said that no action would be taken if the coat was returned.

Soon after the appearance of the story in the Record, the coat was returned.

ATTAINS 11% OF GOAL

The West Residential Division of the Community Chest campaign had attained nearly 11 per cent of its goal by the first report.

The second report of the drive was due today at noon at the Southern Hotel, according to Mrs. Benjamin F. Knepper, 2672 W. Broad-st, co-chairman of the division.

Blind Pianist To Appear In 'Stars' Show Wednesday

The Hilltop's own Alec Templeton, blind Paul Zavatsky, 11, of 698 S. Wayne-av, will be the featured pianist on the YMCA's "Stars of Tomorrow" talent show at the Old Trail Theater, at 9 p. m. Wednesday.

On the program with the "stars" show will be a top double feature showing Bing Crosby's "Top Of the Morning," and "Summer Holiday" starring Mickey Rooney.

In addition to the sightless, youthful pianist, who plays popular and classical musical arrangements, other "Stars of Tomorrow" will be Charles Dailey, 12, of 255 S. Harris-av, and Gene Peaks, 12, who will present a guitar duet.

An accordion solo will feature Helen Guyton, 12, of 267 N. Hague-av, and eight-year-old Carroll Ann Laufhutte, 1552 Union-av, will dance a ballet number. Don Shepard, 22, of 487 Josephine-av, will sing and whistle.

A chorus line of 12 dancing girls from West High known as "Modelettes" will appear in the show.

Tickets for the show are on sale at the "Y" office, N. Ogden-av, and W. Broad-st, and at The Hilltop Record office, for 45c. Funds from the show go to maintaining the Hilltop YMCA program.

West Class Studies Polio

Information on polio, its probable causes, results, preventative measures, and treatment, now highlight the health classes of West High School. There are 450 boys enrolled in the study of this work under the supervision of O. D. Lehman.

For the past six weeks, 16 classes in health education have been concerned with this perplexing disease of more than 4000 years standing.

Films, charts and provocative discussions are held in Mr. Lehman's health seminar on the

A manual on the scientific aspects of the malady is provided each student, who, following a unit of work, is tested on the subject covered.

Responses are many, and questions are legion in class work. Interest is at a high-pitch, and all are eager to learn the wherefore, whyfore, cause and treatment of polio.

Lois Neff Featured In Firemen's Minstrel

Lois Neff, 2262 Springmont-av, will be a featured vocalist in the firemen's minstrel show at the Hartman Theater, Oct. 27, 28, 29 and 30.

Miss Neff has appeared in many stage, radio and benefit shows. She is a senior at West High School.

Dummy Causes Near Accident On Eakin Road

A wave of pre-Hallowe'en vandalism hit the Hilltop over the week-end with at least four cases of property damage being reported as well as numerous cases of garbage strewing.

Hallowe'en pranksters almost caused a death or injury on Eakin-rd near the B and O tracks when a car containing a family of five skidded and nearly turned over trying to avoid a full sized dummy dressed as a man, last Saturday evening.

Seek Pranksters

Sheriff Ralph J. Paul ordered his deputies to attempt to trace the originators of the prank.

Officers found the dummy when they answered a complaint that a body was lying on Eakin-rd near the tracks. Sheriff Paul issued a warning against "jokes of this kind which might end in tragedy." He added that "acts of violence and destruction will not be tolerated."

Car Roof Slashed

Mrs. Harry Woehrle reported that the top of her new convertible was clashed in front of the Woehrle home, 302 Columbian-av.

A picket fence was knocked down at the home of Mrs. Mae Blackburn, 648 Binn-blvd, and a trellis was torn down at the home of Mrs. Herman Chilcote, 130 Powhatan-av.

Broken windows were reported at 125 S. Algonquin-av.

4 Hilltop Youths To Participate In Peace Contest

Four Hilltop boys and girls will vie for honors at the 25th Annual Peace Declamation Contest to be held at the Hilltop Church of Christ, Burgess and Olive-st, Friday, Nov. 4. Rev. J. C. Jordan is minister there.

The four speakers and their topics, include: Gail Hinton, 14, "Pursuit of Happiness"; Alice Wilson, 16, "What Manner of Men Are We?"; Kenneth Steele, 16, "War is a Business"; and Nancy Uhl, 16, "Our Task."

Winner of the Hilltop contest will receive a bronze medal, and an opportunity to compete in the county contest.

County contest winners will meet for elimination the first Sunday in January, winners of which will compete for state laurels, entitling the finalists to college scholarships and cash awards.

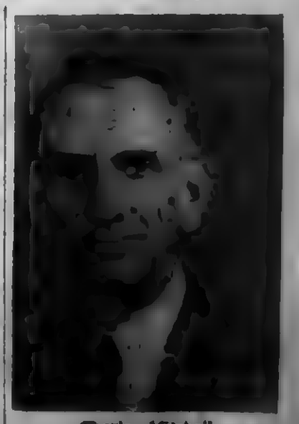
Judges for the Hilltop contest Nov. 6, will be: Mrs. Lewis Trout, Mrs. Ray Burgess, and Roscoe Rineheart.

In 'Fair' Condition After Ladder Fall

Charles Marx, 71, is in fair condition in White Cross Hospital following a fall from a ladder at his home, 275 N. Hague-av.

Marx suffered a broken left leg and heel and possible internal injuries. He was taken by the fire department emergency squad to Mt. Carmel Hospital and later transferred to White Cross.

'Fit As A Fiddle' Says Local Man On 136th Birthday



We've all heard of people born on Feb. 29 of leap year who have only one birthday every four years. At the other extreme is Charles Mitchell of 86 S. Richardson-av. He has two birthdays a year.

"Feel fit as a fiddle," Mr. Mitchell said Oct. 9 as he celebrated his 136th birthday.

Mr. Mitchell celebrates Sept. 7 as the birthday his mother gave him, but Oct. 9 is the birth date that the Madison County Court House records.

So Mr. Mitchell gets two birthday cakes a year. His wife, Anna, takes him out to dinner on the September birthday, and he treats her on Oct. 9.

"C. B." (as his friends call him) was born in Mt. Sterling in 1881. "It's an easy year to remember, because it's the same forwards and backwards," he says. He is a whiz at contests. He spends hours thinking up slogans or sending in blanks. He has won quite a number of prizes.

Charles Mitchell

Mitchell is a monotype operator with the Spahr and Glynn Printing Co. The Mitchells have six children, three of whom live on the Hilltop. They have nine grandchildren, all Hilltoppers. They will have been married 49 years Thanksgiving.

HILL MOTHER

Once I met a gentle hill
That curved the way it should
Just why it went the way it did
No person understood.

I found the answer quite by chance
In searching through my mind—
If I were holding living things,
I would try to be as kind.

The trees and bushes, shrubs and flowers
Must lie so warm and still
And little living things do, too—
So curves the gentle hill.

The Low Down On High Ridgers

By One of Them

Congrats! to MR. and MRS. RICHARD MANN on a new son.

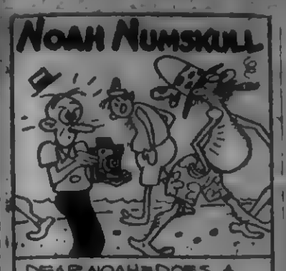
BERNARD FLOYD had a flat bed trailer made. He's ready to mount the cradle and put his boat away to hibernate for the winter.

The cars themselves lined up on the streets Saturday afternoons in our section point out the new television sets. Our friends come to see the football games. The latest prospective buyer is HAROLD (ELECTRIC) WATT. He's trying out a Crosley.

IVAN REED'S new Buick is a honey. Anyone want a ride?

Nope, that's no airplane coming down the street—that's GRANT VAN GASTLE coming on his motorcycle. It's really got the power behind it. He'll be volunteering to tow HERB ROEDERER'S new trailer.

The BILL OYERS have converted to a gas furnace. Fortunate people! My wife wants to convert my tobacco pipe into an odorless scraped-out bowl. I might as well use a bubble pipe, but if I did she'd want me to use her brand of soap to blow bubbes. Can't win, folks!



HUBER WATTS bought a new Chevy!

Did you see LOU SINGER mow the lawn the other day? She said her husband wouldn't rake the leaves because the grass needed cutting the worst, and he didn't have time to do even that. Now the leaves are in smaller pieces. Maybe it will be easier next year to cut down his neighbors' trees. He says the finer cut leaves are good for the ground anyhow.

Sugar 'n' Spice and everything nice are what girls are made of—but SALLY BURKHART was everything BUT that when a waitress spilled a bowl of chili on her new fall suit in a restaurant. She wore a suit to keep from getting CHILLY, but seems she got CHILI anyhow!

Does CHUCK NOLAN need a butler or secretary? His phone rang and he answered it the same time his doorbell rang. His dog barked at the door and (in dog language) told the fellow to wait a minute. The person at the phone wanted NOLAN to subscribe for the Record, and the boy at the door was selling magazines. CHUCK can't complain; he's a salesman himself and rings doorbells. He's a jolly sort of person. His type makes a good salesman.

Well, ELECTRIC WATT is able to work again. He was off four weeks with an injured caboose when he was thrown in a back—wait a minute! He was injured in the caboose of a Pennsylvania train while backing up—now. His back was thrown while injuring a train—. —intermission—I went after my pipe. That's what I needed. Now I have it! HIS BACK WAS INJURED AS HE WAS THROWN AGAINST THE SIDE OF THE CABOOSE. He's feeling fine now. Strong as ever.

Christmas is not a legal holiday in Kansas.

Odd Fact

When the "Big Ben" clock in London, England, is losing time slightly, a penny is placed in a tray half way down the thirteenth pendulum, thus shortening the pendulum's swing, and if the clock is running fast, a penny is removed.

Words of the Wise

The passions may be humored till they become our masters, as a horse may be pampered till he gets the better of his rider; but early discipline will prevent mutiny, and keep the helm in the hands of reason.—(Cumberland)

CROSLEY MILLION-DOLLAR GIVEAWAY

NOTHING TO BUY

YES, OVER $2,000,000 IN CASH AND VALUABLE PRIZES!
Just tell us a good reason why we should give you a new Shelvador* Refrigerator

A double chance to win. First—we're one of hundreds of Crosley Dealers having a Local Contest, designed for our own friends and neighbors and judged by local judges right in our own community. Think how simple it is! All you do is write on the Local Entry Blank in 50 words or less why you believe Crosley should give you a beautiful, new 9-cubic-foot Shelvador Refrigerator. If our judges select your reason as best, you will get a new 1950 Shelvador Refrigerator to be awarded by us and delivered right to your home.

WIN A BRAND NEW 1950 CUSTOM MODEL SHELVADOR REFRIGERATOR

$27,500 in cash—25 complete Crosley Electric Kitchens and 100 new 1950 Shelvador Refrigerators as National Prizes!

Second—a National Contest, in addition to and separate from our Local Crosley Dealer Contest, where the same words you write for the Local Contest (or different ones if you prefer) may be submitted on the National Entry Blank and compete for the Grand Prizes of cash, kitchens, and refrigerators to be awarded by Crosley.

Each of the Crosley Electric Kitchens has a retail value of over $1500 and includes: A 1950 9-cubic-foot Model CB-9 Custom Shelvador . . . Model DE 129 Crosley Electric Range . . . 3.2 cubic-foot Model HF-1346 Crosley Kitchen Freezer . . . 40-gallon table-top Custom Model CMT40DE Crosley Electric Water Heater . . . Model CKD25 Crosley Kitchen Disposer . . . 48-inch Model CST4800 Crosley Cabinet Sink . . . and base and wall steel cabinets to a maximum retail value of $350.00.

IT'S THE BIGGEST THING YET!

Gives up to 23% more space in the same size cabinet—easy to reach—easy to use—no stooping clear to the floor.

The new 1950 Model CB-9, 9 Cubic Foot Capacity.

The Amazing 1950 Shelvador with Exclusive WORKSAVER Design
ALL SPACE AT THE "CONVENIENCE LEVEL"!

IF YOU BUY A NEW 1950 CROSLEY REFRIGERATOR during this contest and win one as a prize either in National or Local Contests . . . you will get a cash refund equal to the retail price of your prize.

JUST FOLLOW THESE SIMPLE RULES—

1. In 50 words or less, write your reason or reasons why we should give you a new Shelvador Refrigerator. Write your reasons in the space provided on the Entry Blanks—the red Entry Blank for the Crosley Local Dealers' Contest; the green Entry Blank for the Crosley National Contest.
2. Participants may enter both the Crosley Local Dealers' Contest and the Crosley National Contest. However, participants may submit only one entry in only one of the Crosley Local Dealers' Contests and the participant may submit only one entry in the Crosley National Contest.
3. Both of the Entry Blanks to be obtained at no cost from Crosley Appliance dealers. The green Entry Blank for the National Contest from any Crosley Dealer, the red Entry Blank from the local Crosley Dealer conducting a local contest.
4. Any resident of the continental United States may compete except employees of the Crosley Division of the AVCO Manufacturing Corporation, retail dealers of Crosley appliances, wholesale distributors of Crosley appliances, their advertising agencies and their families. Contest subject to all federal, state, and local regulations.
5. All entries on the red Entry Blanks for the Crosley Local Dealers' Contest must be delivered before December 1, 1949, to the Crosley Dealer from whom the entry was obtained.
6. All entries on either the red blank for the local contest or the green blank for the national contest that are mailed, must be postmarked before midnight, November 30, 1949.
7. Mail or deliver in person your red Entry Blank for the Crosley Local Dealers' Contest to the Crosley Dealer from whom the entry blank was obtained. Mail the green Entry Blank for the National Crosley Contest to Betty Olson, Director of Home Economics, Crosley Division, AVCO Manufacturing Corp. Box 1938, Cincinnati, Ohio.

On The Record

By Harry Franken

Hallowe'en "Fun Making" Can Be Dangerous

There is probably no community in Columbus with less excuse to mar the Hallowe'en holidays with vandalism than the Hilltop.

We like to think that the recent cases of property destruction are the work of a small minority of so-called "pranksters."

The recent incident on Eakin-rd could have been much more serious than it was, resulting in the injury or even death of a number of persons.

We believe in good clean fun on Hallowe'en, but malicious destruction of property should not be tolerated.

We believe that the police should take appropriate action against those whose "fun" endangers the lives and property of others.

The community has done a good job of providing wholesome entertainment for the children on Hallowe'en. It is the responsibility of children and parents to see that the Hallowe'en season does not end tragically for someone.

Bob Cromwell's Predictions Win Pig-Skin Contest

Bob Cromwell, 1685 N. Hague-av, nosed out Harold C. Todd, 449 Wrexham-av, in the closest Professor Pig-Skin Contest to date.

Twenty-three contestants reached the finals in last week's contest by picking all four winners correctly. Most points were lost on guessing the score of the Hilliards - New Albany and Denison - Oberlin games. Oddly enough, Hilliards and Denison both won by the same overwhelming score, 53-7.

Both Todd and Cromwell picked up valuable points in the contest by coming close to the score in the Hilliards game. Cromwell's guess was 54-0, and Todd's was 48-0.

Todd lost the most points on the Denison game while Cromwell made his worst guess on the Ohio State-Wisconsin game.

Both winning contestants did substantially better than the third place contestant.

The Professor Pig-Skin contest for this week appears inside the Record today.

End Man Harold

Harold Greene

Harold Greene, along with Floyd Badgly, William Scott and Norman Line, will be the end man for George Hardy, interlocutor, in the Fidelis Minstrel and variety show to be presented Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 26 and 27, at the Hope Memorial Church gym, at 8:15 p. m.

The show, with a Showboat theme, will feature several variety acts, including dances, barber shop quartet, comedy skit and a magic act by Patti Miesse. Mrs. Bertha Woodin will be the accompanist for the show.

The Fidelis Class of the church's Sunday School is presenting the program. All proceeds will go to the building fund for a new church structure.

Political Rally Cancelled

The Franklin Twp. political rally scheduled to be held in the Rea Bow Improvement Association Hall has been cancelled due to the cold weather.

The meeting will be held on Thursday, Nov. 3, if the heating system of the hall is in operation at that time.

Hilliards To Leave League

3 Teams Leaving County League To Join New Loop

Hilliards and two other high schools will break away from the county league and join with five other teams to form a new football and basketball league starting in 1950.

The announcement was made by V. F. Patterson, secretary of the league association and principal of Hilliards High School. He named the following schools as those to form the league: Marysville, Worthington, Grove City, Westerville, London and Hilliards.

At present Hilliards, Worthington and Grove City are members of the Franklin County League. Eight other teams will remain in the league. The new set-up will begin with the 1950 football season and the 1951 basketball schedule.

Six names for the new league have been submitted. Students of all the schools will vote on the names. The suggested names are: All Star Buckeye League; Central Ohio Tri-County League, Little Buckeye League, Mid-Six League, Suburban League and Tri-County League.

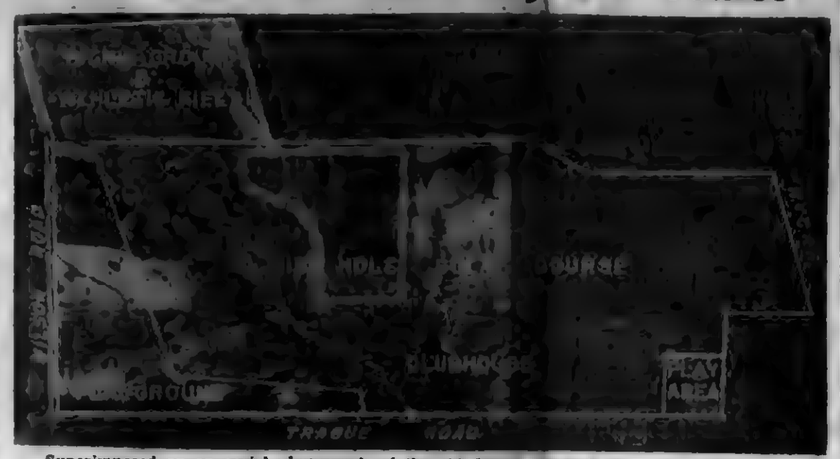
Representatives of the league will meet Wednesday, Nov. 9, at 6:30 p. m., at Boyd's Restaurant, in Worthington, according to Patterson.

These schools are situated in Franklin, Madison and Union Counties.

Drinking Fountains Stolen At School

John Lape, janitor of St. Mary Magdalene School at Roys and Parkside-ave, saw water spurting from the ground on the school's play area Friday morning. Investigating, he found that two drinking fountains valued at $50, had been stolen.

Earlier in the week vandals had entered the church and forced their way into three cabinets in the rectory.



Three More Groups Endorse School Levy

Three additional Hilltop organizations last week added their endorsement to the local school levy to be voted upon at the election to be held Tuesday, Nov. 8.

They are Hilltop Kiwanis, West High Boosters, and Hilltop Parents Association.

Other groups anticipate a similar action.

Work Starts On New City Golf Course

Superimposed on an aerial photograph of the old Jaeger estate is the architect's plan for the new golf course and recreation area on Trabue and Wilson-rds.

Phil Stout, president of the city recreation commission, drives the first stake in the laying out of the golf course at Trabue and Wilson-rds. The spot where this stake is being driven will be the 10th tee. The preliminary lay-out of the course has been completed, and the Recreation Department plans to plow and grade all the fairways this fall so the golf course can be available for use by 1951.

Hilltop Sports Title of New Video Show

George Williams, West High School athletic director, will head a new 15 minute television show, "Hilltop Sports," which will have its video debut Wednesday night at 7:30 over Station WTVN.

Guests on the first Wednesday show will be North High Coach Mike Hagley and East Coach Ralph Webster. Up for discussion will be the North-East football game, to be played Thursday, and the basketball coaches' clinic that will be held Friday at West High School. Webster is the secretary of the Ohio Basketball Coaches' Association.

Williams said that the program will be mainly about sports on the Hilltop. Sponsor of the weekly shows is the Modern Finance Co., 2558 W. Broad-st.

Mrs. Stella Dowdell Succumbs Today

Mrs. Stella May Dowdell, 74, 2234 W. Mound-st, died early Tuesday morning.

She is survived by two sons, Mark Johnson of Columbus and Robert Johnson of San Bernardino, Cal.; two daughters, Mrs. Mabel Dowdell and Mrs. Ruth Mitchell; a stepson, Harry Dowdell, 12 grandchildren, 11 great-grandchildren and a brother.

Funeral arrangements are being completed by the Wylie S. Shroyer Funeral Home, 2553 W. Broad-st.

RESUMES BUSINESS

Mrs. Mildred Sanders, real estate broker of 96 S. Hague-av, has resumed business after an extended illness.

Teachers, Parents To Meet In West Open House Tonight

By Myron T. Seifert

Hundreds of parents of West High boys and girls will return to school tonight at 7:30 and meet the 85 teachers on the staff there.

The traditional annual open house is sponsored by the school in cooperation with the local Parent Teachers Association, Mrs. L. S. Will, president, said today.

County Commissioners May Reverse Zoning Decision

Delay Action On Refusal To Rezone Eakin Rd. Tract

With one exception, changes approved in Franklin Twp. zoning regulations by the Rural Zoning Commission and the Planning Commission were passed by the Franklin County Commissioners last week.

The commissioners delayed action on the Planning Commission's refusal to grant a change in zoning on the Elizabeth W. Downing tract along the B and O railroad. A request had been made that the property be changed from "Residential" to "Heavy Industry." Acreage next to the Downing tract has been rezoned for "Light Industry."

In a letter to the commissioners, Harry C. Downing, 2050 Eakin-rd, claimed that the refusal of the planning commission to grant the rezoning request was based on testimony of persons who did not live in the vicinity of the property in question.

Downing claimed that of the property owners immediately surrounding the property, 48 were in favor of the change, five were neutral, and four were against the change. A petition favoring the change and signed by 37 property owners in the vicinity of the Downing tract, was read at the commissioners' meeting.

Commissioner C. P. Lauderbaugh said he saw no reason for keeping the residential restriction on the property since the surrounding property was now zoned for light industry. Commissioners planned to visit the property in question Wednesday morning before taking final action.

The commissioners seemed of the opinion that the property should be zoned for light industry, but not heavy industry as originally requested.

In a letter to the commissioners on Aug. 8, Downing said he had prospects of selling the property for use as a lumber yard.

To date there has been only one instance of the commissioners reversing a decision of the planning commission.

Among the changes approved by the commissioners was the changing of the Baker-Hickey property along the B and O Railroad north of Eakin-rd from residential to light industry.

The Baker-Hickey Co. had been allowed to remain in the district as non-conformers since the county zoning law is not retroactive. However, limitations were placed

West High Girl Semi-Finalist In Beauty Contest

Lois Ann Reeder

Lois Ann Reeder, 15, of 947 S. Warren-av, is one of six semi-finalists from Central Ohio in the Lux Radio Theatre beauty contest.

One of the six will be awarded a watch and have her photograph entered in the nation-wide contest. The picture will be sent to Hollywood. The winner will be selected by the number of Lux soap wrapper votes she receives.

Lois has already won a $22 make-up kit as a winner in the semi-finals. The contest began Oct. 17 and will end Nov. 14.

A sophomore at West High School, Lois is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glade Reeder.

If you wish to vote for Lois, send a Lux wrapper with your name an hers to WBNS or to her home.

Mrs. Wm. Harper Dies At Home

Mrs. Alice Minerva Harper, 73, died this morning at her home, 1963 Fairmont-av. She was a member of the Linden Church of Christ.

She is survived by her husband, William Harper; two sons, Denver E., 1981 Fairmont-av, and C. E., 1085½ Forest-st; four grandchildren; and a brother, Charles Truman, Byer, O.

Funeral arrangements are being completed by the Jerry Spears Funeral Home.

Wave of Pre-Hallowe'en Vandalism Hits Hilltop

Fire Victim Needs Clothes

A couple from McKeesport, Pa. have learned of Hilltop hospitality, but things still look bleak for Jack Brown and his young wife Gladys.

Jack was badly burned in a truck accident last Wednesday on Harrisburg-pk. He is in Mt. Carmel hospital now.

Mrs. Brown came to Columbus to be with her husband, and was taken in by Mrs. Paul Wichterman for a night. She is now staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Thomas, 170 N. Huron-av. Since she came without bothering to pack, Seiller's gave her a complete outfit of clothes.

Word came last night from McKeesport that the Ladies' Aid Society of the churches there will send an ambulance for her husband when he can be returned home. However, Mr. Thomas reports, all of his clothes were destroyed in the fire and he hasn't even shoes to wear home.

If you would like to help this young accident victim, donations will be accepted at the Record office.

'Window Decorators' Give Up Soap, Turn To Paint

An official request — right from the kids of all Hilltop schools—has been made of customers on W. Broad-st and Sullivant-av, to stay out of the way of Hallowe'en window painters on Thursday and Friday.

The Hilltop Kiwanis Club will distribute Thursday, through the schools in the community, paint with which young artists will paint Hallowe'en scenes on the window fronts of business establishments.

The seasonal pictures will be judged on Saturday morning by three men well versed in judging. They are, Judges Wayne Fogle and Fred L. Donnally and Joseph M. Enright, chief bailliff, all of the municipal court.

Prizes will be awarded to the winning artists at the Hilltop Community Council's Hallowe'en celebration at West High School, on Monday night. Winners will be announced at 9 p. m.

Only children in grades 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9, are eligible to participate, according to Bruce Tanner, acting chairman of the committee.

Serving on the Kiwanis committee with Tanner are Woody Clark, chairman, who has been ill; Don Smith, judges, and Lou Rausch, paint distribution.

J. B., W. Mound Staff Changes Made

Two changes in the staffs of West Mound Street and John Burroughs Schools were announced last week by Principal E. B. Graham.

Christena Leist will return to John Burroughs as second grade teacher. She has been absent due to an operation. A substitute teacher, Mrs. Anna Anderson, has been teaching in her place.

Mrs. Ruth Neiswander has withdrawn from the West Mound Street staff due to poor health. Her place will be taken by Mrs. Dorothy Hampson.

Coat Return Due To Record Story

An article appearing in last Thursday's Record was responsible for the return of a $90 coat taken from Seiller's Oct. 13.

Representatives of the firm knew who took the coat, a woman's leopard stenciled fur-lined short coat, but said that no action would be taken if the coat was returned.

Soon after the appearance of the story in the Record, the coat was returned.

ATTAINS 11% OF GOAL

The West Residential Division of the Community Chest campaign had attained nearly 11 per cent of its goal by the first report.

The second report of the drive was due today at noon at the Southern Hotel, according to Mrs. Benjamin F. Knepper, 2672 W. Broad-st, co-chairman of the division.

Blind Pianist To Appear In 'Stars' Show Wednesday

The Hilltop's own Alec Templeton, blind Paul Zavatsky, 11, of 696 S. Wayne-av, will be the featured pianist on the YMCA's "Stars of Tomorrow" talent show at the Old Trail Theater, at 9 p. m. Wednesday.

On the program with the "stars" show will be a top double feature showing Bing Crosby's "Top Of the Morning," and "Summer Holiday" starring Mickey Rooney.

In addition to the sightless, youthful pianist, who plays popular and classical musical arrangements, other "Stars of Tomorrow" will be Charles Dailey, 12, of 255 S. Harris-av, and Gene Peaks, 12, who will present a guitar duet.

An accordion solo will feature Helen Guyton, 12, of 267 N. Hague-av, and eight-year-old Carroll Ann Laufhutte, 1552 Union-av, will dance a ballet number. Don Shepard, 22, of 487 Josephine-av, will sing and whistle.

A chorus line of 12 dancing girls from West High known as "Modelettes" will appear in the show.

Tickets for the show are on sale at the "Y" office, N. Ogden-av, and W. Broad-st, and at The Hilltop Record office, for 45c. Funds from the show go to maintaining the Hilltop YMCA program.

West Class Studies Polio

Information on polio, its probable causes, results, preventative measures, and treatment, now highlight the health classes of West High School. There are 450 boys enrolled in the study of this work under the supervision of O. D. Lehman.

For the past six weeks, 16 classes in health education have been concerned with this perplexing disease of more than 4000 years standing.

Films, charts and provocative discussions are held in Mr. Lehman's health seminar on the disease.

A manual on the scientific aspects of the malady is provided each student, who, following a unit of work, is tested on the subject covered.

Responses are many, and questions are legion in class work. Interest is at a high-pitch, and all are eager to learn the wherefore, whyfore, cause and treatment of polio.

Lois Neff Featured In Firemen's Minstrel

Lois Neff, 2262 Springmont-av, will be a featured vocalist in the firemen's minstrel show at the Hartman Theater, Oct. 27, 28, 29 and 30.

Miss Neff has appeared in many stage, radio and benefit shows. She is a senior at West High School.

Dummy Causes Near Accident On Eakin Road

A wave of pre-Hallowe'en vandalism hit the Hilltop over the week-end with at least four cases of property damage being reported as well as numerous cases of garbage strewing.

Hallowe'en pranksters almost caused a death or injury on Eakin-rd near the B and O tracks when a car containing a family of five skidded and nearly turned over trying to avoid a full sized dummy dressed as a man, last Saturday evening.

Seek Pranksters

Sheriff Ralph J. Paul ordered his deputies to attempt to trace the originators of the prank.

Officers found the dummy when they answered a complaint that a body was lying on Eakin-rd near the tracks. Sheriff Paul issued a warning against "jokes of this kind which might end in tragedy." He added that "acts of violence and destruction will not be tolerated."

Car Roof Slashed

Mrs. Harry Woehrle reported that the top of her new convertible was clashed in front of the Woehrle home, 302 Columbian-av.

A picket fence was knocked down at the home of Mrs. Mae Blackburn, 648 Binn-blvd, and a trellis was torn down at the home of Mrs. Herman Chilcote, 130 Powhatan-av.

Broken windows were reported at 128 S. Algonquin-av.

4 Hilltop Youths To Participate In Peace Contest

Four Hilltop boys and girls will vie for honors at the 25th Annual Peace Declamation Contest to be held at the Hilltop Church of Christ, Burgess and Olive-st, Friday, Nov. 6. Rev. J. C. Jordan is minister there.

The four speakers and their topics, include: Gail Hinton, 14, "Pursuit of Happiness"; Alice Wilson, 16, "What Manner of Men Are We?"; Kenneth Steele, 16, "War is a Business"; and Nancy Uhl, 16, "Our Task."

Winner of the Hilltop contest will receive a bronze medal, and an opportunity to compete in the county contest.

County contest winners will meet for elimination the first Sunday in January, winners of which will compete for state laurels, entitling the finalists to college scholarships and cash awards.

Judges for the Hilltop contest Nov. 6, will be: Mrs. Lewis Trout, Mrs. Ray Burgess, and Roscoe Rineheart.

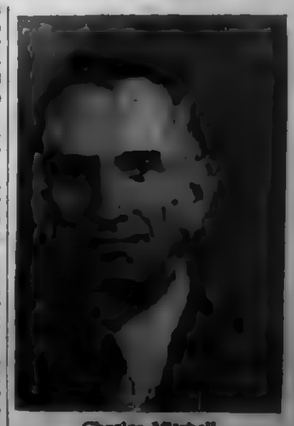
In 'Fair' Condition After Ladder Fall

Charles Marx, 71, is in fair condition in White Cross Hospital following a fall from a ladder at his home, 275 N. Hague-av.

Marx suffered a broken left leg and heel and possible internal injuries. He was taken by the fire department emergency squad to Mt. Carmel Hospital and later transferred to White Cross.

'Fit As A Fiddle' Says Local Man On 136th Birthday

We've all heard of people born on Feb. 29 of leap year who have only one birthday every four years. At the other extreme is Charles Mitchell of 86 S. Richardson-av. He has two birthdays a year.



"Feel fit as a fiddle," Mr. Mitchell said Oct. 9 as he celebrated his 136th birthday.

Mr. Mitchell celebrates Sept. 7 as the birthday his mother gave him, but Oct. 9 is the birth date that the Madison County Court House records.

So Mr. Mitchell gets two birthday cakes a year. His wife, Anna, takes him out to dinner on the September birthday, and he treats her on Oct. 9.

"C. B." (as his friends call him) was born in Mt. Sterling in 1881. "It's an easy year to remember, because it's the same forwards and backwards," he says. He is a whiz at contests. He spends hours thinking up slogans or sending in blanks. He has won quite a number of prizes.

Mitchell is a monotype operator with the Spahr and Glynn Printing Co. The Mitchells have six children, three of whom live on the Hilltop. They have nine grandchildren, all Hilltoppers. They will have been married 40 years Thanksgiving.

"The Cat's Pajamas"

It's anybody's guess as to how—or why—we Americans come to use goofy expressions like that.

But from the East Coast to the West, we make ourselves understood with such wierd combinations of jumbled jargon.

"The cat's pajamas" is one of our national nifties. It's a curt little phrase meaning fine, good . . . the best!

Now, we've never heard of a community being called "the cat's pajamas" . . . but by this definition the Hilltop is just that kind of a community.

People who have lived here for a long time state they just wouldn't be at home anywhere else. There is something about the Hilltop that makes it a choice community in which to live. Investigation reveals that this is a thing called "community spirit."

Folks on the Hilltop have a way of getting things done for their community. They work together for a better Hilltop. They build.

A main link in this backbone of the Hilltop . . . this community spirit . . . is the aggressive leadership of individual business men and women here.

This leadership deserves the reward of your patronage of these business firms. Your purchases of their merchandise and services is a further contribution to the strengthening of the Hilltop. Your purchases off the Hilltop or with non-independent firms adds nothing to this community strength.

Think it over!

These Individual Business Firms Appreciate Your Continued Patronage:

on new buildings being erected on the property.

A stop order had been issued when the Blackstone Grave Vault Co. had started construction of a building on the plot. Under the new zoning classification a building permit can now be issued for the building.

The Blackstone Co., a Zanesville firm, had also indicated that it might build in Marion Twp.

Another change approved by the commissioners was the rezoning of the southeast corner of Plainview-dr and Wilson-rd from residential to local commercial.

The owner, James Kesterson, plans the erection of a filling station and confectionery there.

SYNOPSIS

Marvell Courtney becomes acquainted with his little daughter, Katherine, when he returns to Boston from a distant city to attend his late wife, Elizabeth's funeral. They had lived apart for years. He is despised by his aristocratic Back Bay in-laws, especially by brother-in-law Proctor whose tyranny had helped wreck the marriage. Proctor is furious when he finds that the deceased sister has left her entire personal estate—and the custody of her daughter—to this estranged husband. Lawyer Ben Hall, an old family friend, is called in to contest the will. He tries to make peace between the men, but fails. Marvell decides to term back Katherine's guardianship to Proctor and to take up his broken engineering career in New York, once more. But Proctor washes his hands of the child, discarding her to her "irresponsible" father's care. He refuses Kitty from the house. Kit and her daddy enjoy their first gay adventure together, breakfast at a famous Boston hotel.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

SHE sat in front of the dressing table while her aunt fussed with her hair. She fidgeted with the bumps in her stockings made by the long underwear that encased her legs underneath. As she sat on the bench, her head hung low, her dark hair falling over her forehead, her aunt was touched with sudden pity. The child was so unknowing. Had she been older, Emily would have led her gently to her mother's old room for a silent farewell. Emily's sentiments were like the sweetish paste of homemade valentines and flaked off just as easily. "Do hurry, dear," she begged nervously. She went into her bedroom and looked hastily through a leather box that held odds and ends of inexpensive jewelry. She found a little blue enameled watch that hung from a bluebird pendant.

"Would you like to wear this?"

"Oh—Aunt Emily!" She stuck her chest out to receive the pin.

"You may keep it," her aunt said as she pinned it on.

"Is it going?" she asked anxiously, forgetting her thanks.

"No, we must get the correct time downstairs." Emily kissed her again. Katherine was not at all surprised. These last few days had been full of unexpected gifts and attentions from strangers and family alike.

Then as her aunt helped her on with her coat, she saw a suitcase standing at one side of the bed. "That's my mother's," she pointed out. She read the initials "EBC."

"It is yours now, Katherine." Emily pinched her tam into shape. "And you're going to take it with you on a little visit for a few days."

"For overnight?" Now she was startled.

"With the Halls—you like them, don't you, dear, and little Charles?" Charles was a strong, stubborn boy, a good head taller than Katherine and the word 'little' confused her.

"Who is he?"

"The Halls' little son, Katherine. You know him. You see we are going to be upset here for a while . . ." she hadn't the faintest idea of how to continue and she was conscious of how very badly she was managing it.

"But how will I get to school?" she asked in a voice perilously close to a wail. "The play, Aunt Emily, the play."

"Why you will go with Charles every morning. Now don't cry, dear. You don't want to upset your father crying, do you?"

She didn't want that at all. The mention of her father checked her. She took a long breath, and pushed back her coat collar so that the grown-up watch would show.

Annie came in to carry down the bag. She wanted ever so to kiss Miss Katherine goodbye, but she kept her place in the presence of Mrs. Barlow.

Marvell, waiting in the dim hallway, watched them descend the stairs in single file. He almost expected them to vanish into the shadows at the foot of the staircase. He was trembling a little with excitement. Emily peered around uncertainly. "Hello, there," he called, stepping forward. Emily noticed with approval that he held a hat in his hand.

"All set?" he asked gaily, bending down a little to get a better look at Kit's face. She had a great deal on her mind—the overnight visit, the watch to be wound, the play—and her face was unusually grave.

"Hello," she said uncertainly. An usual Aunt Emily was talking over her head.

"Here is the bag. I think I have everything necessary. Let us hear, won't you, Marvell?"

Katherine didn't quite catch what he said for suddenly from behind, she was swallowed up in Annie's arms. "Bless you, baby," whispered Annie moistly. Before Kit could turn around Annie had run off through the back entry.

She was waiting now for Aunt Emily's last orders, "Brush your teeth after, not before . . ." "Take a nap if they ask you . . ." but no words came. Just the touch of her aunt's lips on her forehead.

"My watch," Katherine began, trying to tell her that she would take care of it for ever.

"Goodbye," murmured Aunt Emily hollowly. Katherine's voice was a small echo as she followed Marvell and her mother's bag through the door.

Marvell had kept the cab. He lifted her into it with such a swing that she clutched the watch for safety.

"Sawyer's," Marvell directed. "Do you like lobster?" he asked.

"I guess so." She turned back her coat collar. "What time is it? Aunt Emily gave me a watch and it isn't going."

"What time is it, cabby?"

"Just after twelve, sir."

"Can you fix it?" She leaned in his direction and he felt her soft breath on his fingers as he awkwardly unpinned the pendant. The first turn of the stem indicated that it was broken. Damn it, he thought, why give her something broken?

"We'll have to have it fixed in a shop," he said pinning it back crookedly. She looked at him dubiously—was he sure? Perhaps it had been broken by the rough leap into the cab. She rubbed her finger over the dial for a moment. Then she forgot it in her eagerness to tell him all about the play.

She was in it heart and soul he could see that. He had no tale that could match it. She was all the parts, and all the players. He did not envy the intensity of her world, he had the same intensity himself for the world he was about to make. What he did wish was that he could touch her for a moment with some charm that would allow them to pretend together. He was the audience when he yearned to perform before her and delight her with a hundred magic tricks and truths. But he was only the reflection of her delighted performance. And even had it been possible for him to have told her that they were going away together—what new things they would see, how they would live—he knew he could only have arrested her attention, not enchanted it.

The lunch was an utter failure and he had planned it so differently. When they got to Sawyer's, it was at the noontime rush. The small noisy restaurant was filled with hearty men. The shells of hundreds of oysters being split open, cracking against each other, rose in waves as forceful as the waters from which they had been lately dredged. It was getting warmer and the smell of fish—baked, broiled, fried, raw, stung their noses. Kit shrank back. Marvell realized that here again it was too much of one thing at a time. Having gone thus far wrong, he made matters worse by standing at the oyster bar and calling for two orders of bluepoints. She could not reach here and when he gave her one from his plate, she almost made herself sick on the first swallow. Her eyes looked tortured. He felt she was accusing him of unmentionable cruelties and that his neighbors would begin to comment upon it. As a matter of fact, her thoughts were on her mother's bag which was soiled by shredded sawdust and kicked at by passing feet. It had so pretty a cover, too. Marvell in desperation paid for the uneaten oysters and shouldered her up, bag in one hand, out of the place. This hurt her dignity more than anything else and she choked audibly. Marvell set her down abruptly. The next cab took them to the Parker House in awkard silence. But here, too, there was too much of everything. The vacuum-like room, the hushed steps of the waiters, the heavy silverware and the extra heavy water glasses overwhelmed them both. This is a horrible farewell, thought Marvell glumly.

REWARDS BASED ON Achievement

RARELY are competent, dependable Doctors, bricklayers or salesmen produced on a foundation of "subsidized security" or "paid idleness." Human nature is just not built that way. Man must strive for his rewards.

The Doctor's rewards and clientele are based on the confidence of patients, built up through years of achievement. He has to study hard, work hard, render service—in order to build and retain a practice.

A great deal of the response to treatment depends on confidence in the Doctor. Not only is there physical reaction to this feeling of confidence, in the method of treatment, but belief in the Doctor causes us to follow instructions more carefully.

In our present free economy, as his rewards are based on his personal achievement, the Doctor must render the highest type of service, of which he is capable. The vast majority of American Doctors prefer it that way.

Glenwood Center News and Notices

Note this change. The Hallowe'en Dance and party for teenagers will be held at Glenwood Park Thursday night, Oct. 27 instead of Wednesday night as previously announced. The dance will begin at 7:30 p. m. and continue until 10 p. m. Music for the dance will be recorded. There will be refreshments served.

A reminder—Hallowe'en party for children under 13 will be Friday afternoon, Oct. 32. Children are asked to come in costume for there will be prizes for the best costumed boy and girl.

Girls who want to get on a volleyball or basketball team, and who are interested in learning how to play these games, please contact Pat Matthews at Ra. 7416 or call in person at Glenwood Park any afternoon after 2 o'clock.

Dick Koontz reports that there are still openings in the preseason basketball league for boys at Glenwood. Contact Dick immediately if you have a team to play or if you want to get on a local team.

Something new — baby sitting service. Through the courtesy of the Glenwood Girls Club, you can obtain a baby sitter by calling Pat Matthews at Glenwood Park any day after 3 p. m. Miss Matthews will be glad to explain how the baby sitting service is handled and will get 'a capable girl to serve you.

We urge all adults to visit Glenwood and see the work that is being done there.

So said the Sun Life Agent when he delivered my son Bill's Junior Adjustable policy — but he didn't have to tell me that. I know what a help it would have been to me if, when I was twenty-one, I had been given a life assurance policy that could be continued as Whole Life, Life Paid-up at 65, or Endowment at the same age, for as much as five times the original amount without increasing the premium. Especially when that premium was based on rates for a child. I didn't have this great advantage, but I'm making sure my son has it. How about you?

West Splashes To 27-6 Win Over Bulldogs On Rain-Soaked Magly Field

By Dave Miller

A determined and fighting West High football team looked like the Cowboys of last year as they eased to a 27-6 win over the South Bulldogs under the Magly Field arcs last Friday evening.

A never-ending rain marred play considerably for both teams, but it hit the visiting Bulldogs hardest, as the Pups fumbled 15 times, having 11 of them recovered by the Cowboys. These numerous miscues led to all except one of the Cowboys' touchdowns, pretty much telling the story right there.

With about two minutes left in the game, Pemberton sent his first team to the showers, and there is where it really looked like teams of the past two seasons at West.

South scored with just six minutes elapsed in the opening period, and it looked like another loss up until about three minutes were left in the second period, when the Cowboys scored a duo of touchdowns to lead at halftime, 14-6. They then added two more TD's in the final quarter to sew up the situation.

South received the opening kickoff, but, failing to advance, Tackle Dick Ruh punted to the West 39. After Fullback Walt Binkley went through the middle to the Cowboy 43, Bill Thrush, quarterbacking this game for the West Siders, threw a pass that was intercepted by Augie Graumlich, South center, and thus set up the lone South touchdown.

After two passes by Quarterback Chuck Walston were incomplete, the latter threw a 30-yard aerial to Marion Wright on the West 13 yard stripe. Bud Lusear, speedy Bulldog back, went to the West five, where, with fourth down and goal to go, Marion Wright broke through off-tackle for the lone South score of the game. Dick Ruh's attempted kick was blocked by practically the entire West line. The opening quarter ended with South ahead, 6-0.

After a series of ball exchanges in the second period, West received a punt on the South 35, after the Bulldogs were fighting in the "shadow of their own goal posts." Walt Binkley and Ronnie James on consecutive carries went to the South 35, and on the next play Clarence (Skoots) Golden, Cowboy halfback, ran out of the arms of at least four or five would-be tacklers, and went over to tie the score. Bob Birle quickly untied it, though, kicking the conversion through the uprights and West led, 7-6.

Marion Wright received the kickoff by Dave Lazenby on the South 40, but fumbled and Bob Wilson, Cowboy guard, recovered. Ronnie James, Charlie Hunter and Clarence Golden on successive runs went to the South 31, where Bill Thrush completed a pass to End Jim Rudolph on the South 26. After two plays in which the Cowboys failed to gain, Birle faded back to punt on third down and instead of booting he threw a pass to Ronnie James on the 25. Ronnie scored the first of his two touchdowns for the day, scampering down the right sidelines and into the end zone. Birle again kicked the extra point, and West led at half time, 14-6.

Early in the final period, the Cowboys tallied their third TD of the evening. After an exchange of balls, Birle of the Cowboys booted to the South 11, where, on the first play from scrimmage, South's Bud Lusear tried a pass, which was intercepted by Bob Epps of the Cowboys. After Golden ran to the 17, Thrush passed to big six-foot, five-inch End George Crissinger, who was tackled on the one-yard line as the third quarter ended.

Thrush, Binkley and Golden all tried the middle of the South line for that one yard to open the fourth period, but the Bulldogs held, until Ronnie James cut around left end for the necessary yard and the touchdown on fourth down. Birle kicked his third straight extra point, and West led, 21-6.

South received the kickoff, failed to advance, and was forced to boot. Ruh, standing in the end zone, kicked to Birle on the South 29, where he was downed. However, a 15-yard clipping penalty on the visitors set the ball on the 14, from where Thrush threw to End Jim Rudolph, who splashed into the end-zone for the Cowboys' final scored. Birle's attempted kick was wide.

Hilliards Defeats New Albany 53-7

Hilliards' Wildcats ripped through weak, oft-defeated New Albany last Friday to the tune of 53-7, putting the former in a pretty positive position to hold second place in the county league.

Mifflin's victory over Worthington causes the Wildcats to have to share second place standing with Worthington; temporarily at least.

Only a little less than what happened was expected. New Albany went into the game with a record of no wins, no ties and four losses. The big Blue and White team had only lost one game, 14-7, to Worthington. In their other games no TD's had been scored against them.

The Wildcats meet Gahanna Thursday night for Hilliards homecoming. Gahanna holds the undisputed third place position with three wins and two losses and will provide a better challenge to Hilliards.

Hilliards' second string performed some superb ball handling when the reserves racked up more points in the second half than did the regulars in the first portion of the tourney.

New Albany	0	7	0	0	7
Hilliards	12	7	7	27	53

New Albany scoring: Touchdown—Ulry. Point after touchdown — Pace (pass). Hilliards scoring: Touchdowns—Anderson 2, Fisher, Shaner, Evans, Cowgill, Lutz, Winkler. Points after touchdowns — Foster 3 (placement), Winkler, 2 (runs).

598 Basketball Coaches Meet At West High Friday

By Dave Miller

West High School, coming into its own in Ohio high school athletic circles, will be host for the Ohio High School Coaches' Basketball Clinic Friday.

Coach of basketball and baseball at West, George Williams, announced the plans of the clinic last week and their regular schedule throughout the day.

Williams disclosed that there will be at least 598 coaches at the meeting. The clinic will be under the sponsorship of four different organizations. They include Ohio High School Basketball Association, Ohio High Athletic Association, Ohio State University Athletic Association, and West High School.

There will be three college coaches and four high school coaches to speak at the clinic. The college coaches will speak in the afternoon, and the high school mentors in the morning. The speeches will cover the subject of fundamentals and various plays, along with the new rule in basketball for the coming 1949-50 season.

Interesting things will attract the many coaches throughout the day, with the aforementioned speeches, movies, and many other features included in the day long session. One of the new changes in basketball this year has already been added to the West gym. It is the new ruling of having orange-colored rims on all baskets, making the hoop much more easily visible.

In the morning session of the clinic, the coaches are asked to be at the school by at least 8 p. m., for registration, coaches are invited to see movies of last year's Ohio High School Class A state basketball finals, played at the Fairgrounds Coliseum.

The clinic gets under way officially at 9 p. m., immediately following the movies.

High school coaches speaking include Warren Scholer of Hamilton and Paul Walker of Middletown, the Class A finalists last year, and Joe Martin of Lockland Wayne and Clyde Vannaman of North Canton from the Class B schools. Vannaman, this year, is coach at Hubbard, O., but last year guided North Canton into the state Class B finals.

Around noon, right after the completion of speeches by the high school mentors, lunch will be served in the West High cafeteria to the more than 600 coaches.

After luncheon the Ohio coaches will hear speeches from three college coaches. They are Eddie Hickey of St. Louis University Harold Anderson of Bowling Green and Tippy Dye of Ohio State University.

To round out the clinic, the officials of the meeting are hoping to have a meeting downtown in the evening, but as yet it is not definite.

Ohio Hunters Prefer Pheasants, Rabbits

Hunters throughout the State of Ohio apparently favor dabbling a bit with all the wild species in their hunting, but will, when pinned down, express a preference.

For instance, in 1946, a survey made for the Ohio Division of Wildlife showed that for every 100 hunters who indicated a preference for hunting pheasants, 58 preferred rabbit hunting, 1 preferred gray squirrels, 14 preferred raccoon and 11 preferred fox squirrels. Regardless of preferences, in 1947, 81 percent of the hunters hunted rabbits, 70 percent hunted pheasants, 48 percent fox squirrels, 31 percent gray squirrels and 12 percent hunted raccoon.

The 1948 game kill survey completed recently shows that out of 9,412 usable questionnaire cards, hunters averaged 3.49 rabbits each, and 1.65 fox squirrel, 1.01 pheasants, .87 gray squirrel, .82 raccoon and .67 groundhogs.

Nation On Giggle Spree Says Joke Seller On Hilltop

Phil Ross, who has opened his third Trick Shop at 11 S. Wayne-av, said today that the nation is on a giggle-spree.

"Everyone wants to cut-up, everybody wants to be the life of the party," he said. "All the old tricks and practical jokes are getting back in circulation. People are doing anything for a laugh."

Ross, a gent who enjoys practical jokes and magic tricks as a hobby, has a constant thumb on the nation's funny pulse. He started selling tricks in Cleveland 10 years ago. Since then he has operated two novelty shops and is now opening the third store.

"People don't want the subtle stuff," he said. "They're going in for the old horn-honkers, things with a loud whistle and a bang perfume that smells like night under a Bombay wharf. That sort of stuff."

"Jokes don't change like women's hats," he said. "A few new ones come along, but don't last. The most popular are the same old numbers that had 'em falling out of their buggies and chuckling into their mustache cups 75 years ago."

Queens Will Reign At West and Hilliards Homecomings

HILLIARDS ROYALTY: Step by step one of these beautiful young girls will be chosen Hilliards' Homecoming queen to reign over the Hilliards-Gahanna game and post-game coronation dance tonight.

Actually one of the first three girls, all seniors, will be the queen. Her name will be announced at the game and she will be crowned at the dance following. The other girls will form her court.

The girls are, up the steps, Frances Hart, JoAnn Price, Shirley Bolender, all seniors; Lois Ann Moore and Nancy Murray, juniors, and Margie Wagner, sophomore.

Supervising the homecoming activities are the following committee members: Jack Flickinger and Reva Nichols, seniors; Doramy Fassig and Owen Miller, juniors; Jim Swormstedt and Patty Ringe, sophomores; and Kathryn Mock, Faythe Sheehan and Irma Whaley, faculty members.

QUEEN BETTY: Betty Roederer, 432 Belvidere-av, will reign as homecoming queen at West High School as the Cowboys meet Cleveland Garfield Heights Nov. 4. Forming the queen's royal court will be Shirley Cline, Jean Deyo, Marilyn Gauggel and Betty Walker. (Photo by Montrose Studio)

'End Lake Pollution' City Atty. Urges

City Attorney Richard W. Gordon this week sent a letter to the Franklin County District Board of Health requesting "mandatory action" in removing the source of pollution of Westgate Park lake.

"An examination of the state laws and court decisions discloses that the district board of health has the mandatory duty of abating and removing all nuisances within its jurisdiction and also has the authority to accomplish the same," Gordon said.

Source of the sewage has been traced to eight houses on the west side of Derrer-rd, outside the city limits. County officials have said that the residents along the road have not petitioned for the construction of a lateral sanitary sewer along Derrer-rd.

"It is evident that the District Board of Health has investigated in this area and has a record of the source of pollution. The pollution from these houses has brough about a public nuisance within the city limits. Its source being in the county, the matter comes within the jurisdiction of the county," Gordon added.

Add. Seeks City Water

Residents of Money-Back Addition are preparing petitions to get city water service from the water main extending north out Hague-av.

At latest report 140 signatures had been obtained on the petitions. There are approximately 254 lots in the addition.

The petition was initiated by Mrs. Richard Biggs and Mrs. Roy Polus. They are being assisted by Mrs. Charles Atkins.

30% of Goal Reported In West Chest Drive

The West Residential district reported 30% of its goal in the Community Chest drive at last Tuesday's meeting Mrs. Benjamin Knepper, division chairman, reported.

The next report will be given Thursday noon at a luncheon at the Southern Hotel. The goal at this time will be 60%.

Mrs. Knepper said that the drive was "going very well," but that "those who can afford it will have to give more this year to make up for the unemployed and others who are unable to give at all."

Mrs. Knepper commended the fine work of those who are assisting her in the drive.

Council To Get Butler-av Street Lighting Question

The matter of street lighting for Butler-av is expected to come before City Council next Monday night, according to H. T. Van Ness, president of the High Ridge Civic Association.

F. P. Shea, chairman of the association's civic committee, has been in contact with officials of the city division of electricity. He has been assured cooperation by the division, Van Ness announced today.

Van Ness expects a large delegation of Butler-av residents to be present in council chambers when the issue comes up for discussion.

Another question the association is pushing is traffic regulations on streets running north and south of W. Mound-st, between Ryan-av and Derrer-rd. This matter is now before the city traffic commission and the city board of safety.

Butler-av residents are expected to have to make a choice between the conventional type of street lights, which can be installed at no cost to the property owner, or the boulevard type, as they are known, which would cost each home owner approximately $50, according to Van Ness.

Horse Show Set For Hilltop Riding Club Sunday

A horse show, featuring English and western classes, will be held Sunday, Oct. 30, at 1 p. m., at the Hilltop Riding Club, S. Eureka-av and Eakin-rd.

Judges for the English class are Mrs. Frances Willeke and Jean Rittinour. For the western class the judges are Roy Redifer and Harold Hughes. Trophies and ribbons will be awarded for each class.

According to Wally Hunt, manager of the show, 50 entries from Central Ohio are expected in the 12 classes. The classes include: neck reining on time, stock horse, plain horse, spotted horse, pleasure class, musical chairs, jumping, pleasure horse, children's equitation, three gaited, five gaited and jumping stake.

Admission is free.

FOOTBALL TV PROGRAM

The Hilltop YMCA will sponsor a television show of the Ohio State-Northwestern football game at 1:30 p. m., Saturday, at the Hillcrest Baptist Church. The public is invited.

What Do You Think . . . ?

The color of the spread on your bread, and the cost of riding a bus downtown — the issues at the Nov. 8 election are as personal as that.

About this time of the year, newspaper offices are flooded with material from the supporters of both sides of election issues, but the important thing is the way our readers feel about these questions. We would like to know how YOU feel on any of the issues coming up on the Nov. 8 ballot.

Here are the issues: Should the law permit the manufacture and sale of colored oleo; should each county have one more probate judge; should each candidate for office be voted on separately (office-type ballot); should we have an additional tax for metropolitan parks; should we ratify the city ordinance licensing the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. transportation system, and fixing the fare; should prices be fixed for five years on electric current in the city; should the city police have a 40-hour week; and should a four-mill tax be levied to support the schools.

Won't you let us know YOUR opinion on these things by Monday. Send letters to The Hilltop Record, 2465 W. Broad St.

Paul Zavatsky 'Stars' Winner

The piano playing of sightless, 11-year-old Paul Zavatsky, 698 S. Wayne-av, impressed the audience at the Old Trail Theater last night and won first prize in the weekly "Stars of Tomorrow" talent search.

Mitzi Kaufman, 446 S. Roys-av, who sang in the first show of the series, came back last night as a rhumba dancer and won second place honors.

Third prize went to Helen Guyton, 267 N. Hague-av, for her accordion playing.

Entries are already being lined up for next Wednesday's show. The official entry blank appears on page 5A of today's Record.

In 'Fair' Condition After Boxcar Fall

James P. Byrd, 33, of 285 S. Wayne-av, suffered a possible pelvis fracture and multiple cuts and bruises early Tuesday night when he fell from atop a boxcar onto the Big Four loading platform at Spruce and High-sts, police reported.

Fire Department emergency squadmen took him to Grant Hospital where his condition is reported as fair.

Planning Comm. To Hear Zoning Cases Nov. 7

Two Hilltop cases will come before the Franklin County board of zoning appeals at a public hearing on Monday, Nov. 7, at 7:30 p. m., in the office of the Franklin County Planning Commission in the Court House Annex.

Ivan E. Pusecker, 142 S. Warren-av, has made application for a permit to make use of a building, which is now used as a hotel, and a barn at 3179 W. Broad-st, as an art studio and for housing art students. This property is located in Prairie Township. Mrs. Mary Martin, 917 Whitethorne-av, as the applicant for Boy Scout Troop 219, has requested permission to erect a building for troop meetings on the west side of Whitethorne between Dartmoor and Eakin-rd. This is situated in Franklin Township.

Harold L. Butz, 2441 Chambersav, Briggsdale, has applied for permission to build a three-car cement block garage with an upstairs apartment at the southeast corner of Chambers and Central in Briggsdale. This is also located in Franklin Township.

Leaves To Study In Switzerland

Neil B. Mowrey

Neil B. Mowrey, son of Captain and Mrs. H. Mowrey, 2935 Crescent-dr, is in New York where, next Sunday evening, he will go aboard a TWA plane for a 25-hour, non-stop flight to Zurich, Switzerland. There he will be met by Mr. and Mrs. Herman Schmid, owners and operators of the Bellevue-Palace Hotel, Berne, where Mowrey next week will begin a two year course of training in the hotel and food business.

Mowrey, a West High School graduate and World War II veteran, attended Muskingum College and Capital University. He was a letter man on the football and wrestling teams at West and a letter man on the Muskingum grid team before he enlisted in the navy. For the past 18 months, he's been on the registration desk at Hotel Fort Hayes.

His parents and Mrs. Joseph A. Davis, Sr., 1250 W. Broad-st, went with Mowrey to New York to "see him off" on the overseas journey.

Campbell To Write Column

William D. Campbell, art instructor at West High School for 22 years, will write a weekly column for The Hilltop Record starting in the Thursday, Nov. 3 edition.

The column, "Think This Over," will deal with the observations, past and present, of the 70-year-old teacher, psychologist and philosopher.

"Doc", as Campbell is known to his Hilltop friends and former students, lives with his wife at 3000 W. Broad-st. Mrs. Campbell, a well-known water-color artist, aids her husband in his writings with helpful criticisms.

Campbell will not only write about art and artists, which has made up his life's career, but his column will cover a variety of subjects dealing with the humanities of life.

36 Years In Schools

Revered in the hearts of his former students, "Doc" has played an important role in the Columbus public school system for 36 years. Before he came to West High, Campbell was art director of Columbus schools from 1907 to 1921. During that time he introduced design and craft work in the schools, and became known throughout the country as the "father of school posters."

The colorful, wiry artist and writer is a native of Brooklyn, N. Y., and is of straight Scotch decent. He is a graduate of the famous Pratt Art Institute in New York. Campbell is an honorary member of the Ohio State Chapter of Sigma Pi fraternity.

In addition to art, writing, and knowing and liking people, Campbell is well versed in another field—music. In 1911 he founded and conducted the Columbus Public School Orchestra, the only juvenile orchestra in the country to play classical music.

Capacity Crowd Expected At Hilltop Hallowe'en Party

Next Monday is Halloween Night and the night for the huge Hilltop Community Council Halloween Party to be held at West High School, starting at 7 p. m.

This annual celebration has attracted thousands in the past, and is expected to draw an even larger crowd this year. The auditorium, cafeteria and gymnasium of the school will be utilized in order to handle the crowd.

The schedule for activities in the auditorium runs as follows: movies, 7:15 and 9:30; dance revue, 8:45; awarding of window painting prizes, 9:15.

A costume masquerade parade will commence at 8 p. m. in the gym. Prizes will be awarded to four groups, 2 to 6 years, 6 to 9 years, 9 to 12 years, and 12 and over. There will be three classifications, funniest, prettiest and most original costumes.

Dancing to Carl Hartley's Orchestra will be going on in the gym from 7:15 to 10:30.

Refreshments will be served in the cafeteria. In addition, fortune telling booths, a fish pond and a stand for witches' brew will be located there.

The public is invited to attend. There will be no admission charge.

Organizations sponsoring the party are Hilltop Community Council, Hilltop Kiwanis Club, Hilltop Kiwanikwe Club, Hilltop Business Association, American Legion Camp Chase Post 98, American Legion Camp Chase Auxiliary, VFW Westway Post 3441, Blue Star Mothers—Glenwood and West Units, St. John Lutheran Sunday School, Highland Avenue PTA, John Burroughs PTA, West Mound PTA, West Broad PTA, West High PTA.

OPPOSES BUS SALE

Emile Reiss, former Hilltop attorney and candidate for mayor in 1951, filed an objection Saturday with the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio against the proposed sale of the transportation system of the Columbus & Southern Ohio Electric Co. to a new firm.

AUXILIARY TO MEET

The Camp Chase American Legion Auxiliary No. 98 will hold its regular meeting at the post headquarters, 10 S. Burgess-av, Friday, Oct. 28, at 8:15 p. m. Mrs. Ray McVay, newly installed president, will preside at the meeting. All members and friends of the Auxiliary are invited.

ON VIDEO SHOW

She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Quincy Brown.

Pemberton Leads As Contest Enters Last Period; Miller 2nd, Klopfer 3rd

The biggest report period to date in The Hilltop Record's big $3000 subscription campaign found several upsets in the standings.

Mack Pemberton turned in by far his largest report since the contest started and jumped from third place to first place, the first time he has held this position since the race started.

Mrs. Robert Miller continued to hold down second place in the contest with a very slight edge over Shirley Klopfer, who has maintained first place since the start of the drive, but is now third.

Fourth place honors this week went to Mrs. Marguerite Ward, who has maintained a steady drive to hold a position up near the top. Mrs. George Neibler was in fifth place, followed by Jerry Walsh in sixth.

In number seven position was George Tyler of Galloway. Edyth Calland was eighth, Clara Cannon was ninth and Dolores Davis dropped to tenth.

Other contestants who continue to turn in good reports include Nelson Carson, John Apostalou, Clarence Thompson, Patty Manus, Mrs. Carl Spohn and Thurman Bonday.

Wednesday marked the end of the second period of the campaign and now the drive enters the final period. It is scheduled to be concluded on Nov. 14.

The above standings are the last to be reported until the drive ends on Nov. 14. All reports from here on will be made in sealed envelopes to be deposited in the Hilltop Branch of the Ohio National Bank and opened in the presence of the judges at the time set for the final accounting.

A very keen interest in the drive is being shown throughout the community and many people have come to the front to give valuable assistance to their favorite candidates during the last period.

No one candidate has so large a lead that it cannot be overcome in the three remaining weeks.

Candidates selling new subscriptions and those for more than one year will have a definite advantage in the final period.

CCL ENTERTAINS CHILDREN

The Westmont CCL will entertain its children with a Halloween party Sunday, Oct. 30, from 2 to 5 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Robert Howison, 60 N. Brinker-av. Mrs. William Erwin and Mrs. Maurice Newberger will act as assistant hostesses.

Miss Marian Murnane, Mr. White Wed At Chicago Ave. Church

A late summer wedding took place Sept. 3 at 8:30 p. m. in the Chicago Avenue Church of Christ for the marriage of Miss Marian Louise Murnane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman J. Murnane, 99 Stevens-av, to Mr. Robert A. White, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert B. White, 111 Dakota-av. Rev. J. E. Gordon read the double ring service.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of heavy white satin fashioned with a fitted long torso and shaped lace yoke and long fitted sleeves which came to points over each hand. She wore two strands of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom. Her fingertip veil of imported illusion was gathered to a heart shaped orange blossom tiara. She carried a bouquet of snow white roses.

Miss Dorothy Cassidy was maid of honor in a peach gown and carried a bouquet of Better Times roses with white pompoms. Miss Meldred Nelk and Mrs. Frank Clark, bridesmaids, wore blue and yellow, respectively, and carried bouquets of roses and pompoms.

Laura Lee Brown was flower girl in a pink gown and carried a bouquet of pink roses and white button pompoms.

Mr. James Kay served the bridegroom as best man while Mr. Harry Hoffman and Mr. Frank Clark seated the guests.

Mrs. Murnane greeted her guests at the reception following the ceremony at her home in a yellow gown and wore a corsage of Talisman roses. The bridegroom's mother wore an aqua gown and also wore a corsage of Talisman roses.

For their wedding trip to Cincinnati, the new Mrs. White changed to a black faille suit with green accessories.

The bride is a senior at Central High School. Mr. White was graduated from that school and is now associated with the Kroger Co., but is also attending Franklin University.

Misses Kardos, Armour, Fishinger, Brides-To-Be, Announce Plans For Weddings

Three Hilltop brides-to-be are announcing the final plans for their weddings which will be held Saturday, Oct. 29.

Miss Marilyn B. Kardos, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Kardos, 342 S. Burgess-av, will marry Mr. Richard M. Slane, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey A. Slane, 3636 Maize-rd, at the Maynard Avenue Methodist Church Saturday, Oct. 29 at 7:30 p. m.

A reception will follow the open-church ceremony at Balcony Hall, Worthington.

Miss Kardos is a graduate of West High School and is employed at the Farm Bureau.

The bridegroom-to-be was graduated from North High and Ohio State University and is now associated with the Farm Bureau as an insurance underwriter.

The wedding of Miss Ailsa Armour to Mr. Donald T. Burke will take place at 9:30 a. m. Saturday at St. Mary Magdalene's Church with Rev. Raymond Bauschard officiating. Miss Armour is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Armour, 136 Letchworth-av, and Mr. Burke's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Homer Burke, 163 Whitethorne-av.

Miss Armour's sister, Doreen, will act as her maid of honor and their other sister, Faye, will be flower girl. Misses Eva and Betty Burke, sisters of the bridegroom, will be bridesmaids.

Keith Helber will be best man and Homer and Ray Burke will seat the guests.

At the reception the hostesses will be the Misses Jean and Margaret Armour, Pat McDonald, Pat Sapp and Julia Graham.

The bride-to-be was graduated from St. Mary's High School and is associated with the Central Ohio Paper Co. Mr. Burke graduated from Central High and is now employed by the post office.

Mr. and Mrs. L. K. Fishinger, 273 S. Westgate-av, are announcing the coming marriage of their daughter, Phyllis, to Mr. Virgil Crawford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Crawford, 719 S. Roys-av. Rev. J. B. Shellhaas will officiate at the ceremony which will take place at 7 p. m. Saturday, Oct. 29.

The prospective Mrs. Crawford was graduated from West High, attended Ohio State University where she became affiliated with Alpha Chi sorority, and is now employed at the Bancohio Corporation.

Mr. Fishinger is also a graduate of West and is now associated with the Farm Bureau.

"Adoption" Is Topic At Kiwanikwe Meet

Members of Kiwanikwe who convened at Schmelzer's Restaurant Tuesday, Oct. 25, were told about "Adoption" by Mrs. Ernest Cady. Mrs. Cady, a niece of Mrs. T. S. Fox, a member, has three adopted children of her own.

The members were also presented with a banner by Otto Mattox bearing the motto "Kindness to Others."

During the business meeting an announcement was made that 10 dollars will be donated to the Hilltop Community Council's Hallowe'en party.

Marilyn Shroyer performed several dances at the meeting.

A "pound basket" made up of pounds of groceries contributed by members, will be collected at Shank and Saunders by Nov. 22 and, with a turkey, will be given to a needy family.

Kiwanikwe chorus practice will be Monday, Nov. 7.

Cowboys Out To Sink Pirates In Thursday Game

By Dave Miller

West High School's footballers play host to their neighbors, the Central High Pirates, at the Magly Field stadium tonight, and in it they will be seeking to throw the City League race into a scramble.

The Cowboys will enter the game as underdogs because of their two setbacks in four outings as compared to Central's undefeated record in three games in the City League.

The Cowboys defeated Central for the past two seasons, but in 1946, the Pirates defeated the Cowboys, 12-6, in the last game of the year. From that game onward, the locals won 12 straight city loop games, before being stopped by North in the opening game of this year. In 1947, the Cowboys won, 26-7, in the first game ever played under lights at Magly Field, and last season, the Cowboys, again undefeated, scored 19 points in the last quarter to eke out a 25-19 win at Central.

Central so far this season has won three games, lost two and tied one. They beat Linden, 45-0; East, 7-0; and South, 13-7; lost to St. Charles, 7-6; and Ironton, 21-20; and tied Dayton Fairview, 6-6. The Bucs are at present in a two-way tie with North for first place, both owning 3-0 records in the City League.

The Cowboys, in their scrimmage yesterday had the second team using Central plays, with the first team defensive unit trying their skill at stopping them.

Central will probably employ in their backfield, Emilo Rivetto at quarterback; Harry Hoffman and Jim Sadler at the halfs, with Adam Smith at fullback. Smith and Hofman are the speedsters, with two other boys also in the offensive picture for the Pirates. They are Sophomore Back Bill Hairston and Sophomore End Howard Jackson. Hairston has scored 13 points for the Pirates so far this year. Jackson, although an end and a sophomore at that, is the top scorer on the team with his end-around plays. So far in all games, he has tallied four touchdowns.

The Cowboys are expected to start the same team that beat South last week. That backfield includes Bill Thrush, a quarterback; Ronnie James and Jerry Johnson at halfs and Walt Binkley at fullback.

Pemberton pointed out in his talk with the local gridders throughout scrimmage that a hard-charging line can stop Central. The Pirates, on their runs, usually has the quarterback faking to at least two men on every run, before handing the ball off, and thus if a fast-charging line is up against them, they can be in on top of them before the play begins.

Probable starting lineup:

Central	Pos.	West
B. Webb	LE	J. Rudolph
J. Hoffman	LT	D. McDermitt
E. Reeb	LG	D. Will
R. Sprouse	C	B. Epps
J. Kessler	RG	B. Thatcher
C. Armbrust	RT	C. Eppert
H. Jackson	RE	G. Crissinger
E. Ricevuto	QB	B. Thrush
H. Hoffman	LH	R. James
J. Saddler	RH	J. Johnson
A. Smith	FB	W. Binkley

White Elephant Sale Featured At Mound Fall Festival Oct. 28

Mothers in the PTA of West Mound Elementary School are delving into attics and storerooms to find useful items for the White Elephant Sale in connection with the Fall Festival Oct. 28, at 7 p. m. at the school, 2051 W. Mound-st.

Other features of the festival include a snack bar, where coffee, doughnuts, root beer or wieners may be purchased. Mothers are donating cakes, baked goods, jellies, aprons, doll clothes, lunch cloths, pot holders, needlework, candy, etc. for the bazaar. There will be a comic cartoon movie for the children. The public is invited.

The proceeds from the sale will go for improvements at the school. In past years the PTA has purchased a movie projector, kindergarten equipment, the playground equipment and blacktop for the area beneath the swings.

Household Hint

A windy—but not too windy—sunshiny day is best for washing blankets, so that they will dry quickly and keep their fluffiness. Hanging too long in the sun will fade cotton blankets and may scorch woolen ones.

JOE BRIGGS Says:

There were fewer wrecks in the horse and buggy days because the driver didn't depend wholly on his own intelligence.

Within a very short time a new car, representing someone's life savings, can become a worthless wreck. The big question: Is the entire investment headed for the junk heap—or was this car sensibly protected by ample insurance? Inquire about our policy. 2596 Sullivant. RA 3194.

Household Hint

For safety's sake, never run a vacuum cleaner with one hand, while you remove a metal lamp out of the way with the other. If either appliance happens to have a loose wire, the current may run through your body.

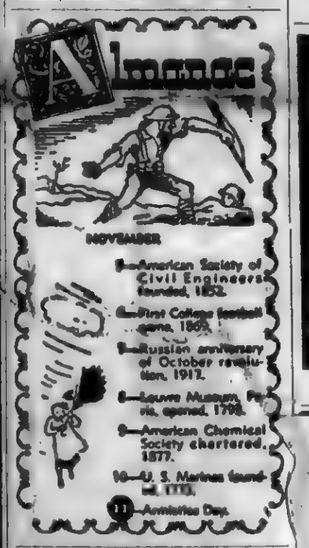
W and S Office Wins Sales Trophies



The Hilltop office of the Western & Southern Life Insurance Co., 2405 W. Broad-st, won top sales production honors in its division which covers parts of three states during a four month period which ended in September.

The office, according to C. W. Whetstone, 505 S. Harris-av, manager of the leading district, won permanent possession of three trophies. It had temporary possession of them in June.

W. B. Richards, 268 Brehl-av, was named leading associate manager, and Lee B. Chatfield, 635 Hilltonia-av, won honors as the leading agent in the district.

Four Girls Enter 'Man's World' Of T-Squares and Drawing Boards At West

By Myron T. Seifert

Coeds studying mechanical drawing at West High School are (from left to right) Judy Ward, Joretta Kline, Margaret Ringer and Sue Vawters.

Practically every occupation and profession is now represented by women — and West High School, in its curricula, makes possible for girls a training which until last year has been a "man's world."

Yes, the field of mechanical drawing at the Hilltop school is now jointly a bi-partisan, co-operative course, open as an elective to both boys and girls.

At the beginning of the school year, four girls had indicated a desire to compete with boys in Teacher C. S. Kennedy's mechanical drawing classes. These girls are Joretta Kline, Margaret Ringer, Sue Vawters and Judy Ward.

Dawn Dennison, 17 years old, 982 S. Richardson-av, said this week that the girls had come through with flying colors thus far, passing the necessary examinations in instrument use, line work and orthographic and dimensioning in the basic course.

"I'm taking mechanical drawing because it's interesting, and I like very much to draw," reported Margaret "Sis" Ringer, 2648 Elliott-av.

Margaret aspires to become a teacher, either mechanical drawing or physical education.

Joretta May Kline, 747 S. Wheatland-av, took the basic course because she "wanted something different to do besides the usual routine of English, history and shorthand."

Joretta expects to make drafting her life's work.

Judy Ward, 31 Haldy-av, 16 years of age, has designs on drafting and architecture following her high school work. Art and English are declared second favorites in her school work; her hobbies include swimming and reading. Judy placed third in interior arrangement of a room at the Ohio State Fair H. S. drafting competition.

Only new femme addition to the "blueprinters" is Sue Vawters, 2185 Springmont-av. Sue, 15, is a 10B student and, in addition to mechanical drawing, takes special interest in the courses of art and Spanish.

She plans to attend Ohio State University, where she will major in interior decorating.

WEST GRADS AT OSU

Among the 1949 graduates of West High School attending Ohio State University are the following: Dale Cline, Fred Wolverman, pre-medical; Tony Lombardi, Ruth Laymon, Mary Lou Wolske, Stanley Charles, Bob Cromwell, Bob Cochran, Jack Vincent, Vic Lehmkuhl, Joanne McFarland, arts and science; Fred Harris, engineering; Barbara Canter, Martha Canter, Martha Jones, journalism; Barbara Coffey, Willeen Bretz, nursing; Joan Harrison, fine arts; Janet Patton, physical education, and Nancy Boyle, commerce.

Odd Facts

In Los Angeles, Calif., a woman filing suit for divorce, charged that every time she was near her husband she broke out in a rash from head to toe.

The editors of a local magazine in Hanover, N. H., received a subscription check from Magog, Quebec, made out to the order of "Business Reply Envelope."

Briggsdale And Brown Road

By Mrs. Harry C. Downing

Briggsdale PTA is sponsoring a Hallowe'en party tomorrow evening, Oct. 28, for the school children and their parents. Following the grand march there is to be a magic show and refreshments. Prizes will be warded for the three best costumes. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Roederer and Mrs. William Woodyard are in charge of arrangements.

A wiener roast was given by Mrs. Oakey Bapst for the girls in her Sunday School class at Briggsdale Methodist Church. The party took place at the Roadside Park at Harrisburg. Those present were Alice Rummel, Karen Reber, Maxine McVey, Nannett Gibson, Alice Harness, Joanne Jarvis, Patty Scofield, Dorothy Parret, Mary Lee Downing, Rosalie Lockwood, Mrs. John Lockwood, Mr. and Mrs. Rummel, Linda and Gilbert, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Reber, Mrs. Bapst and Jimmie, Donald and Robert.

Mr. and Mrs. William Woodyard, 2120 Eakin-rd, spent the week-end in Dayton where they attended the annual Grand Lodge sessions.

The regular meeting of American Legion Auxiliary, Paschall Post 164, Grove City, took place Wednesday evening, Oct. 26. Newly elected officers were installed.

Hallowe'en parties were to be given this afternoon in each room at Briggsdale School. Teachers were to be assisted by the room mothers.

The Low Down On High Ridgers

By One of Them

"Buzz — buzz — buzz!" went sewing machines. Lots of chatter and lots of fun were had at Mrs. P. G. Blakely's home. Members of the W. Mound Elementary School PTA were gathered together on Wrexham to sew aprons and doll clothes for the annual fall festival. Though needles stuck their fingers and one mother cut her tongue as she tried to break a thread, no one needed a blood transfusion. They want to do it again.

Roederer's daughter, Betty, and Caligiuri's son, Carl, are West's senior class officers. Proud parents are these Hi-Ridgers.

The Ed Merritts have a new television set. It's a Motorola, and thy're crazy about it.

Babb's son, Howard, takes Miss Harman to be his lawful wedded wife. She must be a good cook, because Howard loves to eat.

Frank Shea had his upstairs finished, I hear. Does he plan to have a house warming too?

Hilda Bentz bought a new pair of shoes downtown. When she got home and showed them to her husband, a mistake was revealed. One shoe had a high heel and one had a medium heel. The only thing she could figure out was that since she had tried on several pair, the clerk had accidentially wrapped the odd ones. All's cleared up now; they were gladly exchanged.

Bud Wheeler lost his wrist watch and he put an ad in the paper. He got results: found it himself two days later between the cushions of his davenport.

Hallowe'en's just around the corner. One of our neighbors suggests that since children are chasing cops this year, that on "pennies night" the child reverses his act and gives a penny at every doorbell he rings, instead of asking for one.

Neil Hampstead sent off a letter the other day and failed to put a postage stamp on it. He was only sending it elsewhere on the Hilltop, but it somehow got stuck in with some other letters and went to Columbus, Ga. — back to Columbus, Ind., where it was caught and sent back to him for insufficient postage and wrong address. Here it went all that distance free and still hadn't gotten to its destination; so he tore up the letter and made a phone call instead.

Safety matches are still a hazard if precaution isn't taken, says Hal Franklin. He placed a burning cigarette unconsciously atop a pad of matches when he was playing cards. His arm was singed and the excitement of the blaze led to a re-deal when he jumped up and his cards fell on the floor. He should smoke cigars.

Mardi Club Meets At Kelleys Oct, 19

The Mardi Club met Wednesday, Oct. 19, at the home of Mrs. John Kelley, 746 S. Terrace-av. A short business meeting and collection of dues was followed by a social evening of bridge. Prize for high score was won by Mrs. Harrold Walter.

Members present included Mrs. William Populin, Mrs. Clyde Floyd, Mrs. Charles O'Connor, Mrs. Otto Luesa, Mrs. Lee Henne, Mrs. Harrold Walter, guest, Mrs. G. M. Anderson and the hostess.

Mrs. Henne will entertain the group on Nov. 16 in her home at 302 Belvidere-av.

The Myers Fete London, O., Woman

A surprise birthday dinner was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thurman Myers, 209 S. Richardson-av, Sunday, Oct. 23, in honor of Mr. Myers' sister, Mrs. Roy Garrett, London, O.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Roy Garrett and son, Johnny, and Mrs. Rollie Myers, London; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Lightle of near South Solon, O.; Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Myers and son, Garry, and daughter, Esther; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Myers and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Myers, of near Mt. Sterling, O.; and the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Thurman Myers.

Prevent Hunting Tragedies

The season for good hunting is about to begin. Unless 1949 is an exception to previous years, the newspapers will report numerous instances, involving the wounding or killing of hunters by accident.

Nearly every community in the nation, has at one time or another, experienced the sense of futile grief that comes from a tragedy in the field, which, in the absence of human error, could have been avoided. Despite the general realization that firearms are dangerous, human beings, often take a chance and, by doing so, take the life of somebody else.

We have seen several collections of safety rules, designed to warn hunters of danger. The 11 sent out by the Conservation Department of the State of New York several years ago deserve wide circulation and study by all who plans to take to the fields and woods in search of game:

(1) Never carry loaded guns in automobiles or other vehicles.

(2) When afield, hunting birds, keep abreast of your companion.

(3) In loading, never point a gun in the direction of your companion.

(4) In climbing over stone walls and fences, first break or unload your gun.

(5) A bird quartering to the right in the vicinity of your hunting companion should never be fired on by a hunter on the extreme left and vice versa.

(6) Never leave a loaded gun standing against a tree or lying on the ground where a dog may get at it.

(7) Always keep your gun pointed away from your companion when you stop to talk.

(8) In handing a gun to a person for inspection, be sure it is unloaded.

(9) Never shoot in the direction of your companion because you consider yourself a good marksman. You will be taking a dangerous chance.

(10) Carry a gun pointed down to the left. If you shoot left-handed, walk at the extreme right of the party.

(11) At all times, be careful.

SYNOPSIS

Marvell Crosbie becomes acquainted with his little daughter, Katherine, when he returns to Boston from a distant city to attend the late wife, Elizabeth's funeral. They had lived apart for years. He is despised by his aristocratic Back Bay in-laws, especially by mother-in-law Proctor whose tyranny had helped wreck the marriage. Proctor is furious when he finds that his deceased sister has left her entire personal estate—and the custody of her daughter—to this estranged husband. Lawyer Ben Hall, an old family friend, is called in to contest the will. He tries to make peace between the men, but fails. Marvell decides to turn back Katherine's guardianship to Proctor and to take up his broken engineering career in New York, once more. But Proctor snatches his hands of the child, disregarding her to her "irresponsible" father's care. He orders them from the house. Kit and her daddy enjoy their first gay adventure together, lunching at a famous Beacon hotel. Across the table Marvell joyfully tries to win the child's esteem and is not displeased with the progress he is making.

CHAPTER TWELVE

THE TROUBLE was that Katherine was unused to so much excitement. Her plain, early lunch at home held no distraction and her small stomach responding to the assault on each auditory and sensory nerve curled up inside her and made her outwardly numb. Marvell thought that she was afraid of him. He had an uneasy feeling that Proctor was enjoying this indirectly, that he had even counted on it. Depressed, he watched her valiant efforts to eat the thick lamb chop and the paper-green peas. Her every gesture confirmed his conviction. He could not wrench her out of the little space that was familiar to her. And yet Proctor invisibly, inexorably insisted, sitting between them with a terrible thin smile. "Look," Marvell wanted to say to him. "Don't push her so. She takes up so little room. Let her stay with you till she can manage for herself. Even if she turns from me to you for always." No answer, but the terrible thin smile.

"Ice cream?" he asked. He called the waiter and ordered her dessert and a cognac and coffee for himself. In the business of softening her ice cream with her spoon, she became more talkative again.

"I don't think Mary Frances has ever been here," she offered.

Marvell took courage with the brandy. "We'll ask her sometime and anyone else you like."

"After the play?"

"We'll celebrate," he promised. She widened her eyes and he imagined she was reading his betrayal.

"What would you like to do best of all, Kit?" The name slipped out again and went unnoticed. "Not right now," he went on hurriedly, afraid she might demand to be [illegible], "but for the next little while?"

"Be the delay in the play." He looked knowing. He had half expected that reply. "It's because I'm not yellow haired and pretty," she explained.

"I like dark women much better." He smiled at her. "Someday I will point you out to people and say 'that's my daughter, there. Tall and dark—and dark!" She was pleased.

"But then what?" he continued, pressing her just a little further.

"Have you stay." He hadn't really imagined she'd say that. He looked closely at her to see if it was a primness of speech—he decided not and he ran head on in spite of himself.

"Would you like to live in New York with me?" For a foolish second he dared himself to make the final choice her reply.

She shook her head. "I'd like to live in the country," and she wrinkled up her nose as if she remembered something particularly satisfying. He hadn't meant it seriously, he told himself, as he felt for his wallet. She had gotten up from her chair and come around to him expectantly, her hand on the bluebird.

"Oh, of course," he said. "I'll have it fixed for you." He unpinned it, wrapped it up in his handkerchief and tucked it away.

"Are we ready?" He put down the bills. "We are going to the Halls you know." She nodded. "Aren't you due for a nap?"

"Not any more," she said scornfully.

As they crossed the lobby, he stepped up to the desk, to reserve a room. He had to give Doc an address of some sort and this was as good as any. He signed the register and then looked about for his daughter. She was sitting a little way off on a large tapestry sofa her hands sedately folded in her lap, with a kind of forlorn dignity about her that suggested she was already learning how to wait patietnly for him in hotel lobbies, in railway stations, in boarding house parlors. I bet she'd never cry, he thought proudly. He had forgotten for the moment that he had just decided the other way.

The streets were at the low ebb of mid-afternoon activity when Marvell turned off State Street into Ben's office building, which was prominent for its honeycombs of legal partnerships. In the reception room, hermetically sealed on three sides by solid rows of calf bound volumes, there was a traditional silence that made Marvell feel a darn sight more respectful than any church.

He did not have to wait long. A stooped, spectacled young girl led him to Ben's door and Ben himself maneuvered him inside with a barely perceptible movement. He spoke cheerfully to Ben, whose face and manner were so blended with his professional background that he seemed another man. His desk was cleared of all but a few papers and between two windows stood a tall secretary with claw feet and pale brass handles. A spray of some early flowering fruit had been placed here double bearing, as it glimmered against the glass doors. The tiles, the book cases blended unnoticeably with the woodwork. Marvell was impressed by this show of solidarity. As a builder, he was conscious that Ben and his kind were the stone quoins that strengthen men's interminable brickwork of legal protection. He sat down in an Adam armchair facing Ben and said gratefully, "It is good of you to take Kit in until this darned fuss is over."

"We are only too happy to do so," replied Ben. His head moved up and down solemnly as if the seriousness of the occasion had made him top heavy.

To Marvell, the whole thing was extraordinarily simple now—it had only been a matter of seeing everything clearly and Kit had set him straight on a number of things this noon. He leaned forward eagerly, "Look, Ben' I've thought it all over and I want to return the money to Kit, have Proctor appointed her legal guardian . . . Wait a moment," he held up his hand as Ben started to speak. "Proctor should have that job. Does the court have to appoint [illegible]? And then Kit can go right on there as if nothing had happened. She thinks you're going to have a party on Chestnut Street and that's why she's there. I could bring them all some ice cream and cake later on and they'd never know the difference—she and your boy."

"I was given to understand by your call this morning that Katherine was in your hands."

"Well, Proctor did turn her out of the house this morning."

"Turn her out?" Ben's infection suggested that this was an unfortunate expression.

"If he could have gotten a moving man, the furniture would have been on the curb." Marvell laughed with good humor that grated on Ben's nerves. "But he didn't, naturally, know how I felt then. I want him to go on as before—this never should have happened although Elizabeth meant it kindly. Now you can tell him what the next steps are."

Ben was silent an unnecessarily long time it seemed to Marvell. He moved impatiently in his chair.

"Proctor has taken his affairs out of my hands," Ben finally said.

"Oh, the devil! When, this morning?"

"Yes, then."

Marvell was instantly sorry. They had been friends for a long time and now on his account Proctor was depriving himself of the little comfort he could derive from an old association. He jumped up impetuously. "I'll go to him at once. He doesn't understand."

"Why don't you let things alone?" asked Ben wearily. "After all, you are the natural guardian of your daughter—it is your responsibility and the will was Elizabeth's desire. There is nothing to mend by going."

"You don't understand, either, Ben. This is a legal affair. Why, darn it all, we are brothers-in-law. We have a bond in Katherine. There is a family feeling in Proctor, I know, and when I tell him how I realize that he should carry on as regent, so to speak—when he understands I don't want to harm Katherine's future or take anyone's money—I've already resigned from the firm—he may be grudging, but he'll be relieved. Did he say anything to you about Katherine's leaving this morning?"

"Only that he was obeying Elizabeth's request." He could not find words to tell Marvell of the cold, chiseled bitterness of that brief meeting." I tried to dissuade him from leaving me—as a friend at any rate," Ben went on apologetically. It was painful to remember that he had almost pleaded with Proctor to whose aloofness there had been no approach.

Marvell nodded, "I should have seen him before."

JOB'S DAUGHTERS NEWS NOTES

By Patti Holycross

This has and will be a busy time for Bethel No. 3. There are lots of things coming up and a lot of things that have happened.

Last Wednesday night yours truly was initiated in the Eastern Stars and the next night Mr. and Mrs. George Roberts and I were guests of Ann Harter, guardian of Bethel No. 22 of Delaware. Following the meeting they entertained Bethel No. 2 of Marion for their friendship night.

Since I'm talking about friendship night, now would be a good time to tell you what our bethel has planned for Oct. 29. We are planning our friendship night by entertaining Bethel No. 22 of Delaware with a wiener roast at Griggs Dam, shelter house No. 2 at 7:30 p. m. All Job's Daughters and their friends are invited to attend. Every girl from our Bethel is asked to bring her own food.

And now for some less cheerful news: we will have to hold our meeting Thursday night as we originally planned; we had tried to meet another night but couldn't get the room. However, we will still have initiatory work. I know a lot of us will miss the West-Central game but the only thing I guess that we can do is hope that West will win.

Jean Meservey who is one of our past queens left Columbus to go to work for the Navy department at Arlington, Va. We will miss Jean on our side lines but at the same time we wish her lots of luck on her new job.

I am sorry to say at this time that Pete Commins, an uncle of Mary Commins, our first messenger, passed away over the week-end.

Well that just about winds things up in my column for this week. Don't forget about our inspection Nov. 17 at the YMCA and turn in your reservations to Mrs. Billingsley as soon as possible.

One more thing as I told you last week our choir sang for a meeting honoring the present worthy matrons last Saturday night and I understand that our choir received a lot of compliments from the matrons.

This is your reporter signing off now and I'll be seeing you Thursday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Vina of Columbus; Mrs. Esther Chambers and daughters, Linda and Willa of West Jefferson, called on Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Wilson Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Hensley and children, Donna Lee and Stevie, spent Saturday with Mrs. Hensley's sister in Columbus.

Carl Rooker of W. Rich-st, Columbus, called on his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Rooker, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Compton and family of Grove City, spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. William Compton.

Mrs. Lucinda Hensley attended a program at Skidmore School last Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Bucy of Roys-av, Columbus, called on their niece, Mrs. Eva Ramey, Friday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Larcom and daughter, Alice of Columbus, spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Everett Hensley and family.

Donna Lee Hensley was surprised with a birthday party at the Galloway School last Monday afternoon. Her guests were the pupils of the third and fourth grades. Mrs. Fanny Hensley, Donna Lee, mother and Mrs. Lucinda Hensley, her grandmother, served ice cream, cake and bubble gum. Games were played and all enjoyed a good time.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Boggs and children Thelma, Jack, Douglas, Ronnie and Jimmy spent Sunday visiting at Plain City.

Mr. and Mrs. James Bennett and sons, Ralph and Cecil, spent last Friday at Circleville Pumpkin Show.

Mrs. Hilda Williams of Columbus called on Mrs. W. O. Wilson Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Frances Conley spent a few days last week visiting at Dayton.

Prophets Preach Righteousness — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Isaiah 5: 5; 23:; 28; 58:1-9a; Jeremiah 35.

A man had a vineyard and he fenced it in, planted it with choice vines, built a tower and winepress, and looked for it to bring forth fine grapes, but it brought forth wild grapes.

The man took away the hedge, broke down the wall, laid the vineyard waste and let it come up to briers and thorns; he even commanded the clouds to rain no rain on it.

Woe unto them, saith the Lord, that rise early and drink strong drink until night, but they regard not the work of the Lord, neither consider the operation of His hands.

Is not this the fast I have chosen, asked Jehovah: to deal bread to the hungry; when thou seest the naked to cover him; and hide not from thine own?

MEMORY VERSE—Psalm 101-2.

Visiting Choir To Sing At Westgate Youth Program

The youth program at Westgate Methodist Church on Sunday night will present a musical program by the choir of the Religious Training Institute, 1647 E. Long-st.

This institute trains missionaries and religious leaders and their students come from all over the United States and Bermuda.

They will present the program at 6:30 p. m. for the combined youth groups. The public is invited to attend this program.

Another feature of the program will be two trumpet numbers by one of our own Hilltop boys, Edward Lane 204 S. Wagner-av.

The young people will begin their program at 5:30 with a 25c supper. Young people are invited to the supper.

Revival Services To End Sunday

The rest of this week and on Sunday will be the last chance to hear Dr. S. E. Nothstine of Visalia, Calif., evangelist, who is conducting revival services in the Hilltop Community Church, 179 N. Huron-av.

Services are 7:30 p. m. and 10:45 a. m. Sunday. David Skipper of the Hilltop, is the soloist. Rev. J. L. Dean is the pastor.

Liturgist At Lutheran Rally

Rev. George Schultz, Jr.

Rev. Russell J. Olson of the Hilltop Lutheran Church, Rev. C. T. Langholz of St. John Lutheran Church, Rev. E. J. Klamfoth of Bethlehem Lutheran Church and Rev. Arthur Rismiller of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, New Rome, have announced that members of the choirs of their churches will participate in the musical program at the annual Reformation Rally at Memorial Hall at 8 p. m. Sunday.

Rev. George Schultz, Jr., director of Stewardship for the American Lutheran Church, will be the chief liturgist.

He heads the committee appointed by the Columbus Lutheran Pastoral Conference to arrange for this rally.

Quaker Meet At Sullivant Ave. Church

The Alum Creek Quarterly Meeting of the Friends Church will convene at the Sullivant Avenue Friends Church on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. The six Quaker churches in this district, Sullivant, Highland Avenue, Alum Creek, Fourth Street, Orange and Mt. Gilead, will send delegates to this three-day Quarterly Meeting which will take up necessary business matters pertinent to the church work.

In addition to the business meetings, there will be special speakers at various services throughout the three days. At 10 a. m. Saturday Claude A. Roane, superintendent of the Ohio Yearly Meeting of Friends, will speak. The Ohio Yearly Meeting of Friends includes 55 churches in six states, and Rev. Roane will surely have a message of importance for the Alum Creek Quarterly Meeting.

Both Saturday and Sunday at 7:30 p. m. and Sunday morning at 10:30 a. m. the speaker will be Rev. Ora Lovell, professor at the Cleveland Bible College, which is an interdenominational organization sponsored by the Friends. Sunday afternoon at 1:30 p. m. there will be a special missionary service with Mrs. Edna Springer of Canton as the speaker. This Quarterly Meeting has missionaries in both India and China and this service will give an intimate view of the Christian work progressing in these two countries.

The public is cordially invited to any and all of these meetings. It is noted that Sunday School at the Sullivant Avenue Friends Church will begin at 9 a. m. next Sunday, 15 minutes earlier than usual, because of the special meetings to follow.

A Place Where You Can Be Yourself

The great outdoors is one place where you can forget trying to make an impression. We're all the same to Mother Nature. And you can be yourself -- and find yourself in the Church of your choice. Because we're all of the same Lord. See you Sunday.

On The Record

Hobgoblin Season Over For A Year

Fearing the worst, residents of the Hilltop awoke this morning to survey their property to see if garbage cans, front porches, automobiles and other articles were still intact.

If nothing was missing, it was with a feeling of relief that said resident sat down to breakfast. Hallowe'en is over for another year!

The celebration is a holdover of an old feast celebrated by the Druids of England. As it exists today it is a combination of classic mythology, Druidic beliefs and Christian superstitions. In different parts of the world Hallowe'en goes by such names as Nutcrack Night and Snapapple Night.

Many of the present day games stem from attempts of the maidens of olden days to find out whom they would marry. Even bobbing successfully for apples in Ireland was considered a sure sign that a girl would find a husband within a year. The only rewards offered today are an apple and a wet face.

Other methods of seeking future spouses were throwing a ball of yarn out the window, and landing a man much like a fish is reeled in today. Legend also had it that if a wet blouse was hung by the fire on All Hallow's Eve, an apparition of the future mate would come down the chimney and turn it so both sides would dry. Many an Irish lass has dropped off to sleep while waiting for this October version of Santa Claus.

Beggars' night probably also had its origin in Ireland. The peasants used to arm themselves with sticks and clubs and go about the countryside collecting "money, breadcake, butter, cheese, and eggs."

The Hallowe'en vandalism probably had its beginning in Scotland. Favorite pastimes there were taking cabbages that had not yet been harvested and beating them against doors. Another "bit of fun" consisted of fashioning hollow reeds and blowing a flaming stream of pitch through keyholes.

New Correspondents: Neighborhood and village correspondents are to a community newspaper what foreign correspondents are to a large press association.

This week we are proud to announce an addition to our list of correspondents sending in news from the Hilltop area.

Miss Elizabeth Stoll, 186 Norwich-av, Hilliards, will write a column of news of Hilliards and vicinity that will appear in the Record each Thursday. Hilliards residents having news notices may contact Miss Stoll by calling FR. 8-7651.

Congratulations: Word just came that a baby boy was born to Dr. and Mrs. Nandlal Parekh in Grant Hospital. The baby weighed in at five pounds, 12 ounces. Dr. Parekh is the chemical engineer from Bombay, India, who is currently living on the Hilltop.

J. J. Wright Wins Prof. Pig-Skin Football Contest

It was an honor class with a cum laude first prize winner in the Professor Pig-Skin Contest this week. Twenty-nine contestants reached the finals by guessing all four winners correctly.

J. J. Wright, 449 Hilltonia-av, wins $10 for his four guesses, three of which were nearly perfect. Here's how Wright picked them:

Game	Score	Wright's Score
Ohio-Northw.—	24-7	20-14
Browns-49'ers—	30-28	30-27
St. Charles-Univ.—	32-7	34-7
Central-West—	20-6	20-7

Second prize of two tickets to the Westmont Theater goes to Judy Lowmiller, 98 S. Sylvan-av. She ran a close second to Wright.

The contest for this week appears inside the Record today.

Hilltop Parents See TB Movie

The Hilltop Parents Association, at its last monthly meeting, saw a health movie, "Lease on Life," shown by William Browning through the courtesy of the Columbus Tuberculosis Society. Browning addressed the group on "Detection and Treatment." He distributed several health booklets.

The association's membership drive was successful but not complete, the president, Mrs. Elizabeth Shaw, announced. Therefore it is being extended to the next monthly meeting, which will be held Nov. 15 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Triggs, 44 S. Oakley-av, at 8 p. m.

The group voted its endorsement of the four-mill tax levy for schools at the October meeting.

Westway Post Against Moving VFW Headquarters

The Westway Post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, at its meeting on Oct. 21, passed a resolution opposing a proposal to move the VFW state office from Columbus to Bucyrus, O., it was announced by Alva O. Boystel, post commander.

According to the resolution, recent publicity inferred that the state department of the VFW "proposed to accept certain acreage" near Bucyrus on which to construct the headquarters of the VFW in Ohio.

The Westway Post opposed the move on the grounds that the department is now furnished without cost, by the government, office space, heat, light, janitor service " in the high rent area in the center of Columbus." These quarters are located near state government offices and the Veterans Administration, the resolution pointed out.

In addition, the resolution states, "the financial status of the department and the declining membership of the organization" does not warrant the move.

Another reason given was the fact that Columbus, where the present department headquarters is located, is centrally situated, with transportation from all parts of the state.

The resolution was signed by Commander Boystel and Harold E. Wright, post adjutant, and was approved by the Franklin County Council of the VFW on Oct. 25.

Tavern Owners To Hear Public Relations Man

E. M. Tharp, Columbus public relations consultant, will keynote a country-wide meeting of individuals and state and local organizations interested in the alcoholic beverage industry, 8 p. m. Wednesday, Nov. 16, with an address entitled "Are We Taking It Lying Down?"

The meeting, to be held in Maennerchor Hall, 986 S. High-st, is being organized under the leadership of the West Side Tavern Owners Association, Columbus' largest community group engaged in the sale of alcoholic beverages.

Mr. Tharp, well-known in Columbus for his participation in many outstanding civic and business promotions, is expected to emphasize the need for the development of good public relations by those engaged in the sale, manufacture and distribution of licensed beverages.

Officials of the association have announced that the meeting is open to all interested men and women whether they are affiliated or not with any trade organization or association.

Decision to support the county-wide mass meeting was reached unanimously at a recent meeting of the West Side Tavern Owners Association at Secretary Ralph Schmelzer's Restaurant, 3178 W. Broad-st.

Following Mr. Tharp's talk the meeting will be thrown open for general discussion and representatives of the organizations present will be given an opportunity to express their views in short "from the floor" remarks.

Spratley Given 2-40 Years In Hit-Skip Deaths

William H. E. Spratley, 108 N. Ogden-av, former president of the Columbus CIO Council, and a member of the United Steelworkers of America, CIO, last week was sentenced to from two to 40 years in the Ohio Penitentiary for second degree manslaughter.

Judge Myron B. Gessaman, in the County Criminal Court, sentenced Spratley, who pleaded guilty of five counts of the indictment in the hit-skip accident which killed Sadie Moore, 16, and her brother, Larry, 3, children of Mr. and Mrs. Vanity Moore, 1570 Harrisburg-pk, Briggsdale, last Aug. 30.

Spratley pleaded guilty of charges of reckless operation and speeding which allegedly caused the deaths, and to leaving the scene of the accident. However, he repeated his plea of not guilty to charges of driving while under the influence of alcohol.

Judge Gessaman refused him leniency and probation.

Scouts To Use Pistol, Rifle Ranges

Scout Troop 214, of St. Mary Magdalene Church, will have the use of the pistol and rifle range in the basement of the county jail, according to Sheriff Ralph J. Paul.

The scouts, participating in a special course, will use the range every Sunday morning, 10:30 to 12, and every Wednesday evening, 7:30 to 10.

John J. Martin, 484 Westgate-av, scoutmaster, Fred J. Kirn, 2993 Fremont-st and Howard Harris, 204 S. Westgate-av, assistant scoutmasters, will be in charge of the boys.

INJURED IN FALL

Alpha Morrison, 44, of 71 S Wayne-av, suffered a possible broken back Monday morning when he fell eight feet from the deck of an excavating shovel at the W. W. Williams Co., 835 Goodale-av.

Queen, Court To Appear On TV Show

West High School's homecoming queen and her court will be the guests of Coach George Williams on his new television show, "Hilltop Sports", over WTVN, Wednesday at 7:30 p. m.

Paul Schlosser, coach of Mifflin's county league champions, and former West High All-City halfback, will also appear on Williams' program.

Schlosser

When Queen Betty Roederer and her entourage make their appearance they will be making TV history. It will be the first time for a homecoming queen and her court to walk before the television cameras in central Ohio.

In addition to interviewing his guests, Williams, athletic director and basketball coach at West, will review the record of Cleveland's Garfield Heights' eleven, the team to meet West at the local team's homecoming on Friday, Nov. 3.

Schlosser, a Hilltopper until just a year ago, has coached two championship teams at Mifflin in his four years there. He graduated from West in 1936 after three seasons of football, under Harold Wise, now football mentor at Ohio University. Schlosser was named All-City halfback in 1937, the same year West won the city championship.

The queen's court to appear with Miss Roederer on the show, consists of Shirley Cline, Joan Deyo, Marilyn Gauggel and Betty Walker.

The Modern Finance Co., 2434 W. Broad-st, are sponsors of the program.

West Students Take Top Prizes At Horse Show

By Myron T. Seifert

West High students, in particular, fared well at the Hilltop Riding Academy Horse Show Sunday, Oct. 30. Trophies and blue ribbons at the local equestrian exposition were many, and the teen-agers added much interest and color to the show.

High school class winners included:

Senior high girls: Betty Roederer, who rode Bohemian Chief; Marilyn Gauggel on Silver; Jo Ann Bergman on Pal Boy; Joan Oliver on Silver and Shirley Anderson on Andy.

Senior high boys: Newton Thomas of South High on Golden Nugget; Jerry Shaw on Thunder; John Meservey on Barney; Billy Fischer on Silver; Bill Walton on Flash; Don Estell on Pal Boy; and Leslie Chesnut on Lady.

Junior high girls: Barbara Fisher on Silver and Jonda Lindsey on Magic Gold.

Junior High Boys: John Smalley on Bohemian Chief; and James Reed on Pal Boy.

Well Laid Plans Net Nothing

Here's the burglar's version of the doctor's story, "The operation was a success but the patient died."

A housebreaker forced his way into the Glenn Finley residence at 2686 Wicklow-rd last Thursday by ripping the rear screen door and cutting the glass out of the door. Before he ransacked two upstairs rooms he removed the screen from a second story window, apparently to use for a possible escape.

After all this trouble, according to Finley, he got nothing.

11th Ward GOP To Meet Thursday

James E. Hale, candidate for the Columbus Board of Education, will be the principal speaker when the 11th Ward Republicans meet at the Camp Chase Post Hall at Broad and Burgess at 8 p. m. Thursday.

The other Republican municipal candidates will be present and be introduced. The public is invited and refreshments will be served.

Commissioners Refuse Zoning Change Request

County Commissioners last week upheld the Planning Commission in refusing to change the zoning of the Elizabeth Downing tract along the B & O Railroad near Eakin-rd. Request had been made that the land be rezoned from residential to heavy manufacturing.

The commissioners tabled the request when it was first presented to them, to allow time to visit the property.

A petition bearing 75 signatures was presented at last Friday's meeting of the commissioners, requesting that the zoning change not be made. Harry C. Downing had previously submitted a petition signed by "46 freeholders of the immediate vicinity" requesting the change.

Downing said that the signatures on the opposing petition were those of people not living near the tract in question. He said that the change was endorsed by some 160 residents of the RainBow Addition, but that he did not secure their signatures to the petition because they did not live adjacent to the Downing property.

Downing added that, in the meantime, he would continue to circulate petitions asking that the rural zoning law in Franklin County be declared illegal because "public funds were used in electioneering for its passage."

Harold Hart Has 15 Barrows In Livestock Show

Harold Hart of the Rome-Hilliards-rd, has registered a large showing of 15 Poland China barrows for the forthcoming 50th anniversary International Live Stock Exposition in Chicago.

Livestock classes for the show are for breeding and fat cattle and sheep, fat hogs and draft horses. The Junior Live Stock Feeding Contest will have farm boys and girls showing their stock of their own feeding. The Exposition also features a light horse show, the International Grain and Hay Show and many other events.

West High Basketball Schedule Set

By Dave Miller

George Williams, head basketball coach at West High School, announced his 1949-50 cage schedule, under the new ruling in Ohio high school athletic rules which do not allow any basketball team in the state to play more than 20 games per year.

The local cagers, who already have been holding intramural leagues to get the boys back into shape, that is just the boys not playing football, will play a 20-game schedule this year, playing two teams they didn't encounter a year ago, Washington C. H. and Marion Harding.

The Cowboys have four returning lettermen, Phil Young, Jim Rudolph, Bill Thrush and LeRoy Hood. The team is expected to be built around these boys.

Following the final football game on Nov. 10, Williams will have all his basketballers out on the next day for the first official practice. Beside the four lettermen, Williams has five boys back who were on the varsity last year. They include Jim Rile, Jack Gammon, Jack Winnestaffer, Bob Epps and Bob Tewell.

Gooses Swoops -- Reeb Scoops

More than one city policeman found himself on a "wild goose chase" during the Hallowe'en season, but Patrolman Victor Reeb, 536 S. Eureka-av, is the only one who caught a wild goose. It happened one morning at about 3 o'clock last week as Reeb and Patrolman Richard Headlee, 158 Demorest-av, were riding on W. Broad-st near the city limits. A low-flying goose swooped toward the cruiser, Reeb reached out and caught the two-pound bird as it went by. The goose is reported to have complained, "I just flew in close for a gander," from its new home at the Columbus Zoo. (Columbus Dispatch Photo)

Photogenic Child Contest Opens

The J. Curtis Allen-Hilltop Record photogenic baby and child contest will get under way this week, following a short postponement due to Allen Photographers moving to a new location.

Those wishing to enter their baby or child in the contest should do so by calling Mr. Allen at RA. 2324. All pictures, except those of very small babies, will be taken at the new Allen studio, 2375½ W. Broad-st. Only pictures taken by J. Sifferlin Charges "Financial Tangle" In Auditors Office

Herbert A. Sifferlin, candidate for city auditor, this week charged that the present auditor has "dissipated certain funds running into millions of dollars over a period of years."

"The financial tangle," Sifferlin stated, "in the city auditor's office today will take a corps of experts to straighten out if the public is to get benefits of their tax money."

Sifferlin, for the past 13 years, has been examiner in the state auditor's offices, where he audited municipal records and accounts.

Shott Is Leading Dem. Contender For City Council

Of the six candidates running for city council in the coming election, the one about whom the most has been written and said, is probably Walter A. Shott, Jr. In his first city-wide race, Shott, a 31-year-old veteran, surprised political observers by running at the head of his party's ticket.

He has promised honesty in city government and has urged his audiences to restore two-party government to Columbus.

Walter Shott is a life-long resident of Columbus, graduated from South High School, went to the service shortly before the outbreak of the war, went overseas, and was a prisoner of war in Germany in the latter days of conflict in Europe. Returning to the U. S., Shott went through OSU, entered the teaching profession and is now employed by the Ohio State Life Insurance Co.

Walter Shott and his wife live at 475 Southwood-av. He is an American Legionaire and belongs to Benson Hough Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U. S.

Robert M. Draper, 74 N. Roys-av, is chairman of the Shott for Council committee.

Dollars And Sense

By John Kelley

Mr. Eyebrow

John L. Lewis and the writer were on friendly terms when we lived in Springfield, Ill., around 25 years ago. When a guy went down to White Sulphur last week, he agreed to maneuver a peek for us. Mr. Lewis must be getting up there.

It didn't work because John L. left for his ailing mother the same day our man got there. He reported, however, that the miners must be off-balance because the second-in-command issued "No comment" after the operators "took a walk".

No wonder he had no comment. In the first place the exec addresses the operators only in 20 dollar words and no one has THAT kind of verbiage at the ready. In addition, even if he doesn't act as his own word-coiner, the boss wasn't there to O. K. and rumble.

John will probably come out alright again. He has the stockpiles down to workable size finally, and he seems able to out-smart anyone at any time.

Don't get us wrong, please. We mean THIS time, only, and in no way even wish him well in this venture.

The Cleveland Trust Company in its Oct. 15 Business Bulletin stated:

"Whatever plan (contributory or noncontributory) might become standard, there is danger that the drive for pensions may go beyond the bounds of reason. The theory of providing for pensions within sound limits has become well established, but top-heavy costs could easily put too much of a burden on the economy.

"If excessive costs are shouldered by industry, it has the choice of cutting its expenditures elsewhere, which reduces the flow of money to the recipients, or of increasing the price of its products. The worker's real concern is to see that the purchasing power of his pension has not been lowered when the time comes to use it."

PUMPKIN STARTS BLAZE

Little Joan Chiappi's Halloween pumpkin scared a lot of people in her neighborhood. It set the curtains and window frame on fire last week. Joan, 13, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Chiappi, lives at 1324 W. Broad-st. Firemen estimated the damage at $80.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

THEY were both silent for a moment. Marvell fingered the brim of his new hat, Ben pulled at the cord of his eyeglasses. With a sigh as if turning to pick up a new burden, Ben continued, "The fact that he is withdrawing his business might mean that he was planning to break the will, do you see. It would be indeed awkward if I represented you both." He was considering the aspects of the matter entirely from the side of his remaining client. "But then the dismissal of Katherine would make a little sense and so I come to the conclusion that he has some motive of his own that is, perhaps, as you say, not legal . . ."

"We'll have to have it out together between us. It's pride, do you see, and his kind of love." Marvell crossed over to the secretary and touched one of the white blossoms. "Where did these come from, Ben?"

Ben looked startled at the irrelevant question. "I believe Miss de Fries brought them in from her garden."

Marvell had opened the door. "Sit tight, Ben. You may have us both back here in an hour."

* * *

There was no doubt in Marvell's mind as to the high purpose of his calling on Proctor. Half way up Newspaper Row, he stepped into a tavern to keep up the exuberance of this simple, generous decision. In other times he had fortified himself to meet Proctor for different reasons. He used to boast to Elizabeth that he could beard the ogre in his den any time, but he was aware, and so was she, that he could only carry it off successfully at a certain stage of bravado. Elizabeth had always hated those meetings, almost feared them. This time, he felt, even she would have lent a timid approval. Satisfactorily primed and deeply satisfied with his solution, he continued on till he reached the Common. Here his stride became more leisurely, his eyes following the movements of children, pigeons, dogs. He stopped often to pat the big dogs that loped in front of him, and turn upright fallen carts and tricycles that tangled up his path, receiving friendly stares from both the children and nursemaids for his pains. He was an attractive figure as he strode along, his coat open, his hat swinging in his hand, his eyes smiling even when his face was thoughtful. He took the wrong turning near the deserted bandstand and found himself out on Charles Street. Then he saw the flowers on the curb outside the flowershop. He cut across the street to the shop and walked in. The smell was cool and sweet, from a hundred tulip pots and the clouds of acacia that hung from the walls. He was looking for something less flamboyant, for, should he come to the house with a pot of tulips under one arm, he knew, from sad experience, he would not be judged in possession of his sober senses. Then he saw what he wanted. A few branches of cherry or apple, like those he admired on Ben's desk.

He carried them out triumphantly before him. They would light up a dark corner of that forbidding house, by heaven, even as he was about to light up a corner of Proctor's niggardly heart by this supreme gesture of trust and good will. He was practically giving his brother-in-law an open sesame to immortal life—if love and forgiveness were the Kingdom of Heaven. And what a city it was for immortal life, he thought, extending his blessing even to the rigidity of Back Bay. A city of churches, all believers in the [illegible] to come, there must be a half dozen of them in this vicinity. He saw one of the finest specimens rising up in rectangular gray stoned dignity ahead of him. He halted in front of the lectern and read the notices. The name of the rector, his assistant and the times of service; the gentle [illegible] that prayer was free to all at any time, the stronger admonition of the text: "He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment . . . and I will confess his name before My Father. Rev. 3:5."

Marvell repeated the sentence softly. To a man down and out, the word 'overcometh' was too big a mouthful for the last despairing sigh, but to a man on his way up, hare a tender petal brushed against his cheek in agreement, the strength of the Anglo-Saxon word fairly shouted a man on to victory.

He sprang up the front steps of the Barlow house and rang the bell. He could hear the vibration of the echo inside. The house might have been untenanted for the long silence that followed. Impatiently, he pulled the bell again. When finally the door was opened, his face was not clearly visible through the flowers, and Ellen had to step around him. "There's no one at home," she said quickly, her eyes taking him in from head to foot.

"I'll wait, Ellen." He took a step forward. "I'll wait till they come."

"I tell you there is no one in the house and won't be till late." She reached for the inner doorknob. Her defiance gave her away so that Marvell was sure that someone was not only at home, but standing not far from a window to watch him walk off dejected.

"Come, Ellen," he reprimanded pleasantly and put his foot against the door with such a shove that she had to let go the knob and could do nothing but follow him into the familiar gloom of the hallway. The heavy stillness struck him like a blow. He glanced quickly into the half darkened mirror as if to make sure of his identity. Ellen was at his heels. "Now, Mr. Coomes, there is no one about—you can't wait here."

He paid no attention to her hand on his coat and moved forward to the stairs when he heard—oh, he had known how it would sound—Proctor's voice. "It is all right, Ellen. I shall come down."

"I will come up," Marvell called, tossing his hat on a chair. They both started forward and met halfway.

"What do you want?"

Marvell extended the flowers. "For you." Proctor made no move to touch them. He had never known Marvell to come empty-handed to the house and he shrank distastefully from all his gifts—boxes of broken pastry, travel-stained overripe peaches, dark and wrinkled as a monkey's face, seeping stickily through the wrappings. Or these ragged branches that might have been torn off a tree in the Garden.

"They need some water," said Marvell, coming closer, "and we can't talk on the stairs."

Proctor stood back against the wall. He saw Ellen, her face uplifted, her mouth half-open, watching them with greedy interest. "You may go, Ellen."

Marvell slipped past Proctor, who was too thin to block the wide stairway completely. He went up to the library, walked over to the shelf above the books, and thrust the branches into the wide-necked opening of a Chinese vase. They quivered slightly as if remembering the movement of the lost bough.

"Water?" Proctor said nothing, so Marvell picked up the carafe from the sideboard and emptied it into the vase.

"What do you want?" Proctor repeated.

If he were warned by that expressionless tone, Marvell did not retreat.

"I want to part with you decently," he said with a disarming smile.

Proctor did not unbend, nor did he ask Marvell to sit down. His eyes flicked restlessly over him, but he stood very quietly near the fireplace.

Marvell, his hands behind his back, his feet spread apart, swayed ever so slightly back and forth as he talked. "Believe me, I know how upset you are. And I am sorry to be the cause of it. The past may be irreconcilable but surely we can reconcile the future."

Proctor turned his face to one side. His thin profile, his pale brown hair, the set of his controlled mouth, suggested an asceticism of body as well as mind. In that instant, Marvell admired him and was willing to interpret his silence as the dignity of suffering.

"I didn't come here for myself, Proctor," he continued gently. "It is for Kit—Katherine. I have just seen Ben and have told him that I want you executor in my place. I will refuse the bequest and everything will be as it was before."

"My sister's instructions should not be tampered with."

"But I have the right to refuse what does not belong to me! Her affairs were always close to you and Kit's should be because she is your link with Elizabeth and because she will make her home with you now, as I want her to do." He felt his way along in this sentence, waiting for the word with which Proctor would cut in and agree curtly to his offer and Kit's return.

"Her home is no longer with me."

"You can't mean that. This is her home," he pleaded, "the only place she has ever known."

"You should have thought of that before."

"You know how I shall have to live the next two years. I admit that I have failed—but you have not, and that is why . . ."

Proctor smiled, the thin smile that had foreshadowed Marvell earlier in the day. "You don't want your daughter?"

"That isn't the point," protested Marvell, who could not understand why Proctor kept bringing the issue back to him when it was Kit who was the center of interest. "Don't you see that with her mother's death, a strange and uncertain life will uproot and harm her. If you would only give her security, what burden could she be to you? You meant to yesterday; you said you were taking her to Maine."

"Did I?" Proctor still smiled. He had seen his brother-in-law boastful, accusing, but never humble. He was enjoying the new power of absolute command. It would have been unbearably sweet had he been able to make him cringe lower. He had almost forgotten the existence of Katherine, except as a means to humiliate this man. And even this was far less real to him than the suffering he felt he was sharing with Elizabeth in some mystical bond between them both.

"You see, I want her good. I will take every step to insure that."

"You can insure nothing, promise nothing. I do not want your supplication. I do not want Katherine."

Says More Money Should Be Spent On Westgate Park

John S. Bowers, candidate for city council in next Tuesday's election, today took a crack at the city administration for not spending more of the $775,000 bond issue on Westgate Park and its lake, "and a little less on flower shows at City Hall."

Bowers, an instructor of American government at Ohio State University, entered the row about cleaning up the lake in Westgate Park by saying the administration "has frittered away the $775,000 bond fund" voted in 1945.

"I believe the people on the Hilltop, "Bowers declared, "would have been better satisfied if more time and money had been spent on Westgate Park."

A native of Columbus, Bowers is a graduate of Ohio State University.

HI-Y MEMBERS SELL CHRISTMAS CARDS
By Earl Gates

The members of the Starling Junior Hi-Y are selling Christmas cards again this year. They hope that this year's sales will top those of last year. There are 20 cards in a box and they sell for $1.00. John Pittinger is in charge and orders will be taken by any Hi-Y member.

NEW STUDENT TEACHER
By Edward Green

Barbara Swoap is a new student teacher at Starling Junior High School who helps Mrs. Mentzer in the dramatics department. Miss Swoap likes both the students and the faculty of Starling very much and has found quite a bit of talent in her dramatic classes.

Miss Swoap is from Youngstown, and is a senior at Ohio State University. She likes Ohio State very much and is very unhappy about having to leave soon. When she graduates she would like to teach in Columbus and hopes there will be an opening at Starling.

At Ohio State she belongs to the Strollers Dramatics Club and the OSU Players. Her hobby is writing and her favorite sports are ice skating, skiing and tennis.

The students at Starling hope that she will enjoy her work with them and that she will return.

NEW CHEERLEADERS SOON
By Betty Freeman

Lately girls have been seen gathering in groups and practicing cheers during the lunch periods. This seems to indicate that Starling will have a really fine cheering section this year. The try-outs will be in charge of Miss Krumm and will be held during the first week of November.

All girls from the seventh grade through the ninth grade may compete in these tryouts.

FIRST TAX STAMP CONTEST
By Florence Ramey

The Tax Stamp Contest at Starling Junior High School for the month of September was won by Mrs. Rothenbush's home room with $344.08 worth of stamps.

In second place was Miss Miller's home room with $327.61 worth and third place was won by Miss Forbe's home room with $286.43 worth. Other home rooms were close behind but there were some who had none. The income from these stamps is used for school needs.

GOP Lawyers Back Donnally, Fogle, Gordon

The Republican Lawyers' Judicial Committee recently announced its recommendations of candidates for municipal judge and city attorney in the Nov. 8 elections.

The committee endorses Judge Fred L. Donnally and Judge Wayne Fogle for municipal court, and Richard W. Gordon for city attorney. All are incumbents.

Judge Donnally was born in 1896 in Gallia County, O. He now resides at 190 Clinton Heights-av, is married and is the father of one child. Judge Donnally was educated at Ohio State University and Franklin University. He has been a judge in the municipal court since Jan. 1, 1945.

Judge Fogle was born April 13, 1897, at Atlas, O. He now resides at 195 E. Longview-av. He is married and the father of two children. Judge Fogle received both his bachelor of arts degree and law degree at Ohio State University, and was admitted to the bar of Ohio in 1922. Judge Fogle was police prosecutor of the city of Columbus from 1930 to 1937 and became municipal judge in the city of Columbus in 1937.

Gordon resides at 600 Glenmont-av, and is married and the father of three children. Mr. Gordon was educated in the Columbus public schools and was graduated with a bachelor of arts degree from Ohio State University in 1927. In 1929 Mr. Gordon received his law degree from Ohio State University. Subsequent to his admission to the bar, Mr. Gordon taught Business Law at Ohio State University, engaged in the private practice of law and was the assistant city attorney from 1938 to 1945, and from 1946 to date has been the city attorney for Columbus.

PROPERTY OWNERS TO MEET

WESTGATERS WIN

Ralph Orendorff and Jim Bailey scored touchdowns for St. Mary Magdalene as the Westgaters defeated Holy Name, 14 to 7, in a parochial elementary league game last week at St. Mary Magdalene. Bailey went over after intercepting a pass and scampering 60 yards.

Three Little Words Spell Victory As Pirates Win In 2nd Half Comeback, 20-6

By Dave Miller

Central High's assistant coach, Frank Howe, yelled out three words early in the third quarter of last week's Central-West game and that trio of words spelled the difference last Thursday as Central's Pirates, undefeated in the City League, handed the local Cowpokes their third league loss of the current season, 20-6, at Magly Field.

In case you're wondering, those three words were "How about Cassady." Sound funny? Maybe so, but right there was decided the difference in a possible Cowboy win or a tie. Cassady is Central's little sophomore defensive back, who never got much of a crack at the offensive side of the Central picture.

But in the third period, after Central had retained possession of the ball, and with regular Fullback Adam Smith out with a turned ankle, Central Coach Dave Parks was looking for a fullback, and there is where Howe suggested Cassady. The little back entered the game, and in four plays he took the ball to the West one, where Central increased its lead and eventually won the ball game.

Neither team was too great as far as offensive spurts go, but West had a decided edge in one department. That was the tackling and blocking side of the contest. The Cowboys were making beautiful ankle-high tackles all through the game. Tackles Dick McDermitt and "Flip" Eppert and Guards Dick Will, Bob Wilson and Bob Thatcher played their usual brilliant game, with Will probably playing the best of his high school career, being in on practically every tackle, and recovering three Central fumbles.

Both teams were keyed to a "high pitch" before and throughout the game, with West probably being "up" for the game the most because of the fact that they hoped to scramble up the City League by defeating their neighbors. Central was a little more confident of [illegible] defeated record.

The 14-point margin by which the visitors knocked off the locals does not come close to telling the story of how close the ball game was. With the Cowboys trailing, going into the beginning of the final period, hopes were high that the Cowboys could repeat their performance of last year, when they came from behind at the beginning of the fourth period with 19 points to win over Central.

West handed Central their first TD practically on a silver platter when Quarterback Bill Thrush of the locals fumbled on the West three yard line, and Ken Johnson, Pirate tackle, recovered. Two plays later, Fullback Adam Smith bulled into the end zone for the first score. Harry Hoffman's attempted run for the extra point was short, and moments later the opening period ended in Central's favor, 6-0.

With only 2:23 left in the second quarter, the Cowboys scored their lone TD of the game when Ricevuto's fumble was recovered by Halfback Jerry Johnson and Guard Dick Will on the Pirates' 19. Bob Birle and "Skoots" Golden on consecutive runs went to the 10. Ronnie James ran to the eight for a first down, and on the next play Golden spun out of a tackler's arms and fell head first into the end zone. Birle's kick was wide, but Central was offside and he had another chance to break the 6-all tie. His second was also a bit to the right of the crossbars.

Central started the second half like a house afire, and after a 59-yard drive, broke the tie. They received the second half's opening kickoff on their own 41 and drove to the West 15 in nine plays. Cassady went off-tackle to the four, and after Quarterback Ricevuto failed to gain in two consecutive attempts, Sophomore Halfback Bill Hairston went around left end to score standing up. Hoffman ran the extra point. Central managed to score again on the first play of the final quarter, as Cassady again took over individually for the Pirates, and on three straight end around plays, drove to the West two-foot line. The quarter ended there and on the initial play of the fourth quarter, Ricevuto plunged over for the touchdown, and also ran off-tackle for the extra point.

West threatened with six minutes left in the game. Ricevuto's punt was blocked by Don Nazinger of the locals on the Central 22. Runs by Halfbacks Charlie Hunter and "Skoots" Golden and Fullback Walt Binkley put the ball on the Central two-yard stripe, and West had a real chance to score. However, the Cowboy line fell apart on the next play as Birle was caught behind the line of scrimmage almost before he had grasped the ball, and Central took over, ending the threat.

Score by periods:

Central	6	0	7	7	—20
West	0	6	0	0	— 6

Central touchdowns—Hairston, Smith, Ricevuto. Points after touchdowns — Hoffman (run), Ricevuto (Run). West touchdown—Golden.

Officials — Referee, Mike Kraumlauf (Purdue); umpire—Jack McLain (Ohio State); head linesman, Dick Larkin (Capital).

Gahanna Ekes Out 26-21 Win Over Hilliards

Hilliards ended its county league schedule by losing a close game to Gahanna to the tune of 26-21 as the Wildcats celebrated their homecoming last Thursday night.

This was an important loss for Hilliards. It means they dropped out of the second place they had been holding rather confidently. Now the Wildcats are forced to share the third place position with their victors, Gahanna Lincoln.

The Wildcats held the lead or the game right up to the last quarter, leading Gahanna by two TD's at the end of the first period, one and a conversion at the finish of the half, and by one point at the end of the third quarter. But the Lincolns came along with a push that gave them six more points.

Next week Coach Everett Fahrenholz's eleven meets their last year's county co-champs, this season's undefeated champs, Mifflin, under Mentor Paul Schlosser, former Hilltopper and West High All-City star halfback. The tourney will take place on Mifflin's gridiron.

Quarterback Shannel and Backs Winkler and Lutz scored the TD's for Hilliards, and Winkler scored two single points by running, while Foster place picked one.

Gahanna	0	13	7	6	—26

80 Students Join Hilliards Photo Club

Approximately 80 students have joined the photography club at Hilliards High School this year. Officers elected by the club are Don Patterson, president; Jim Canfield, vice-president; Aletha Gardner, secretary; and Flo Ann Tracy, treasurer. Charles Pickens is the club adviser.

St. Aloysius 'Heavy Weights' Still Unbeaten

The St. Aloysius elementary "heavy weight" football squad remained undefeated last week after a 0-0 tie game with St. Augustine.

The Hilltop team has defeated St. Mary 6-0 and St. Christopher 54-0 this season. A game with St. Catherine will be replayed because of a protest.

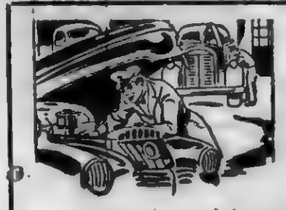
On Nov. 4 St. Aloysius meets Our Lady of Victory at King Avenue Field; on Nov. 8, Holy Name at the same gridiron; and on Nov. 15, St. Mary Magdalene on the State Hospital turf.

TO SERVE TURKEY

The WSCS of West Park Methodist Church will hold its annual turkey dinner Thursday, Nov. 3, from 5:30 to 8 p. m., at the church.

Hilliards Magazine Sale Tops $1,000

Students at Hilliards High School sold more than $1000 worth of magazine subscriptions in their drive to raise money to buy a new stage curtain and topped last year's mark.



The drive brought a total $1,082.35 in subscriptions. Seventh-graders in Room 15 were the winners. Their room will receive a radio as gift from the Curtis Publishing House. The individual who sold the most will receive a trophy.

'High Schools Develop Great Players', Clinic Coaches Told

By Dave Miller

The Ohio High School Basketball Coaches' annual clinic held at West High School for the first time last Friday afternoon was a "grand success" as acclaimed by Ohio High School Scholastic director, Harold W. Emswiler.

Seven coaches were honored throughout the clinic, four from high school ranks and the remaining three all from noted colleges.

In the morning session, the coaches were treated to movies in the auditorium of last year's state finals of the Class "A" division between Hamilton Public and Toledo Central Catholic, which the former won, 70-52.

Right after the finish of the movies, the coaches were taken by head of the clinic, basketball coach at West, George Williams, to the local school gym, and there the speeches and demonstrations of different types of plays were held for the rest of the day.

First speaker in the high school ranks was Paul Walker, head cage mentor at Middletown, whose team last season went into the state finals. Walker brought along six boys from his team to demonstrate the speech he was selected for, the "Fast Break Type of Offense." The chuckle of the clinic came up when Walker introduced his six basketballers, all but one over six feet tall, and two exceeding 6 feet, three inches, and then he brought laughs of admiration when he said his "big boys" were out for football.

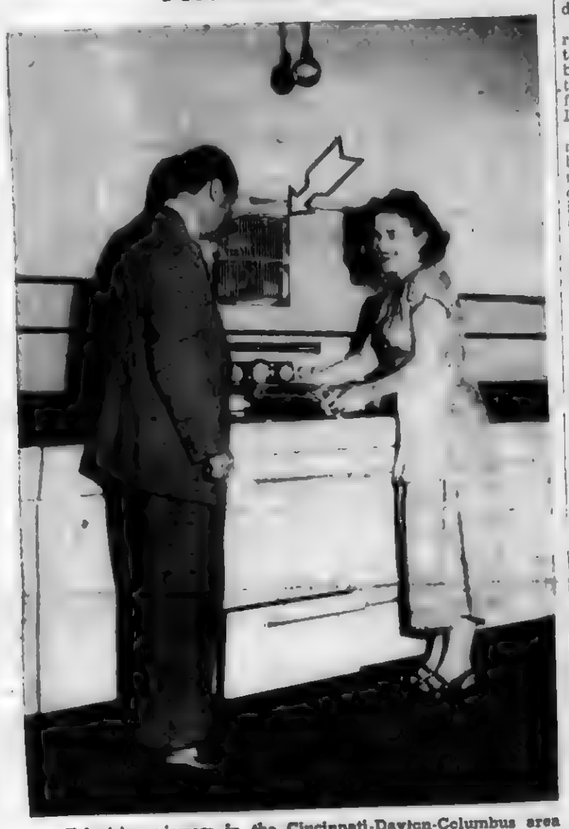
The next talk was by Joe Martin of Lockland Wayne, who talked on "team offense" and well he might speak on this subject, because his team of last year, which lost out in the state finals, averaged more than 60 points per game.

Warren Scholler, coach of last season's Class A champions, Hamilton, talked on the subject of "pressing defense", and he used both his boys and players from the Lockland Wayne to help him bring out his points in the different fields of team defense.

The final speaker among the high school mentors was Clyde Vannaman, last year of North Canton and this season now coaching at Hubbard, Ohio. He spoke on "Tournament Preparation."

Ed Hickey, whose St. Louis University Billikens have won 46 and lost only seven games in the past two seasons, led off for the college speakers on the subject of "Team Offense and Defense."

Hickey, while explaining the Billikens' three-lane fast break and control type of offense, in addition to the switching man-to-man defense, said "high school coaches develop the boys who make great records for the college coaches, like McCauley did for ours."



Harold Anderson, coach of Bowling Green's Falcons, who won 27 and lost six last year, let the coaches in on some tricks that might have made his teams among the highest-scoring in the nation.

Anderson brought along his varsity team to demonstrate his points, featuring six-foot 11-inch Chuck Share, who drew a lot of wishful "oohs and ahs" from the nearly 800 mentors. Anderson listed hard work, desire, knowledge of fundamentals, physical condition, spirit and pride as necessary for cage success.

Ohio State's Coach Tippy Dye, who was also master of ceremonies, for the speeches throughout the clinic was the seventh and last speaker on the program. Dye used his Buck varsity squad to demonstrate his subject of "Team Defense." He was concerned with straight and switching man to man defenses.

Tippy placed emphasis on the double-defensive teaming used by his Bucks last year to stop McCauley and Minnesota's towering Jim McIntyre, who played against the Bucks. McIntyre was held to only 12 points, and McCauley 19, a sum considered low for these great stars.

ILG Ventilation To Sponsor Television Here

Television viewers in the Cincinnati-Dayton-Columbus area were introduced to a new television advertiser in this area when the Ilg Electric Ventilating Co. of Chicago, makers of the world's most complete line of electric ventilators, joined sponsors of the popular "Magic Telekitchen" program over Station WLW, starting Monday, October 17.

Catherine Beck, star home economist on this daily one-hour program, emphasizes the need for modern ventilation in the home as she demonstrates an Ilg Electric Ventilator in her model kitchen.

The program originates on WLW at 1 to 2 p. m. Monday through Friday, and is telecast to viewers in the Cincinnati-Dayton-Columbus area.

Band Salutes Halloween Season At Central Game

West High Band paid tribute to the Hallowe'en season in the half-time show Friday, pumpkin, cider jug and skull and crossbones saluting the October holiday.

The West band went into its regular ramp formation, and after the band was formed in a block at the North goal posts, they played a special Hallowe'en fanfare, stepping off with "Goblins' Holiday."

In this formation the band made a witch. From there, the band stepped into a blackout formation, making a pumpkin, with eyes, ears and mouth, while playing "Peter, Peter, Pumpkin Eater."

From that formation, the band formed a cider jug, with members in the middle of the jug holding letters spelling out cider, and playing, of course, "Little Brown Jug."

Out of this formation the band went into a weird skull and cross bones, and played "Dry Bones." The usual then proceeded with the band forming a block "C" for Central and playing their fight song, "Red and Black." From this, Drum Major Ray Fenner led the entire band into a script "W" for West, and going into the formation, the band struck up with the two fight songs.

Two Y Clubs Organized At Highland School

Two new clubs at Highland Avenue School, which were recently organized, are under the sponsorship of the Hilltop YMCA. The clubs are known as the Wildcats and the Beagle Boys.

The Wildcats have 14 members and as yet have not elected officers. The Beagle Boys have 17 members. Their officers are Charles Coe, president; Bill Chappelear, vice-president; Don Hallam, secretary; Billy Ruffing, treasurer, and Richard Harris, sports representative.

The clubs meet weekly for a short business meeting, followed by recreation. The program for the clubs consist of model building, braiding, movies, swims and basketball. The members plan and execute their own meetings and events with the supervision of a "Y" group leader.

Football Show Outfits Cost West $14,000

By Myron T. Seifert

Few spectators realize, as they watch a West High football game, that the uniforms of the team, band and rope twirlers constitute an investment of more than $14,-

The Cowboy football attire costs $128.90 per player. Coach Mack Pemberton advised. Sixty boys are outfitted at a cost of $7,734.00.

Equipment of the marching band, exclusive of instruments played, is $66.75 per musician. The famous music makers' outfits cost $4620 for the senior high band; Junior High members buy their own equipment.

Itemizing the musicians' equipment, the figures read as follows: megaphone, 90c; uniform, $60; plume, $2; spats, $2.25; lights, $1.25; gloves, 75c.

Rope twirlers sport an $18 outfit to amuse the crowd with their twirling antics.

That football hero idea must of necessity have an expensive uniform.

When the flashy Cowboy dons his complete outfit and parades his wares before the thousands of enthusiastic spectator on Magly Field, or elsewhere, you not only see an animated physical figure of approximately 169 pounds in action (grossing almost a ton of flesh for the 11 players) but a well outfitted gridman, bedecked with togs that would make any community proud.

Comes a downpour of rain or snow, and a sea of mud blemishes Magly Field. If the togs are too soiled, they are immediately sent to a local dry cleaner for renovation and put into circulation for the next game, thus adding to the cost of the football show.

Break Windows Of West Principal

Some extremely inconsiderate youths, apparently using the Hallowe'en spirit as an excuse, committeed the malicious act of throwing 15 rocks through the front windows of the home of Irvin F. Young, principal of West High School.

The attack on Young's home at 155 S. Stanwood-av, occurred last Thursday night.

Donnally Seeks Re-election To City Court Bench

Judge Fred L. Donnally, a candidate for re-election to a seat on the Municipal Court, is a member of the Board of directors of the central YMCA, and a past president and member of the executive board of the Camp Fire Girls.

He has also served six and one-half years as a member of the Franklin County Selective Service Board, and as a member of the Republican Central Committee from Ward 19. Judge Donnally, reared on a farm in Gallia County, has been a resident of Columbus for 36 years.

Appointed Assignment Commissioner of Municipal Court, he served in that capacity in 1942 and 1943, becoming Public Defender in 1944. Judge Donnally was appointed to the Municipal Court bench on Jan. 1, 1945, and was elected to that office on Nov. 6, 1945.

Carpenter Backs School Modernizing

Elwood L. Carpenter, a member of the law firm of Addison & Carpenter, 16 E. Broad-st, is a candidate for the board of education at the election to be held Nov. 8.

Carpenter is particulary interested in raising funds for the construction of new schools and a modernization program for those schools which may be rehabilitated, along with the provision for adequate play ground equipment and supervision for every school in the city.

He is married, resides at 88 West Beechwold Boulevard, and is the father of two children, Mary Ann, aged 3, and Ralph, aged 6, attending the first grade in the Maple Grove Church.

This Should Become An Economic Law

In galloping through a business analysis by Paul E. Belcher, published by the First National Bank, of Akron, Ohio, we ran into a sentence which ought to go places:

"The trend toward a welfare state . . . will end whenever more than half the voters are required to pay for benefits they themselves do not get."

This statement ought to be dignified as Belcher's Law and be put into textbooks on economics. We are now in the phase where the good shepherds of the welfare state hope to keep the majority contented by extracting the bulk of the dough from the minority. When the minority runs out of funds, the test of Belcher's Law will be at hand.

Tuesday Is Your Day . . . Make Use Of It

It is an off year election but when next Tuesday rolls around why not plan to make a special effort to go out and vote. Your vote is needed to show that the American way is still strong and alive.

City councilmen, school board members and other important officials are to be elected. Study the qualifications of the candidates and vote accordingly.

Many important issues are on the schedule: The oleo question, the Metropolitan Park tax, the office type ballot, the street car fare and light rate question, the policeman's forty-hour week.

You owe it to yourself to get out and vote! You are not a true American unless you perform this duty.

Heads Legion Banquet Comm.

Arthur J. Bellar

The Camp Chase Post of the American Legion will hold its annual past commanders' and past auxiliary presidents' banquet at the Riviera Restaurant, 360 N. Sandusky-st, on Thursday, Nov. 17.

The banquet will begin at 6:30 p. m., with floor shows at 9 and 11 p. m. Dancing will be until 2:30 a. m. Tickets for the dinner and entertainment will cost $2.

Arthur J. Bellar and Mrs. Edna C. Bellar are banquet co-chairmen. On the auxiliary committee with Mrs. Bellar are Mrs. Mary Thompson, decrations; Mrs. Bertha Planck, reception; Mrs. Esther Austin, reservations.

The Legion committee, with Mr. Bellar, consists of Frank Schmidt and Mike Austin, publicity; Dewey A. Stout and Vernon Fiscus, tickets; and Jack Bellar, reception.

The banquet will honor Stout, past commander, and Mrs. Mary Fiscus, past president of the auxiliary.

The dinner will be limited to 200. For reservations call Mrs. Austin, LA. 6267, evenings, or AD. 9921, Ex. 624, days.

Issues Top Tuesday Ballot; 2 Hilltoppers In City Race

Three state issues, a county park levy, and three municipal ordinances, will be among the most important issues decided at next Tuesday's election.

Voters from all over the state will decide upon "the manufacture and sale of colored oleomargarine"; whether each county shall be allowed more than one probate judge; and whether the state ballot should be changed from a party type to an office type.

Franklin County voters will vote on a tax levy for building and maintaining metropolitan parks in the county.

In the city, voters will pass on ordinances fixing the electric and bus fare rates. They will also decide if members of the police department will have a 40-hour week with an eight hour working day.

Two Hilltoppers are among the contestants for city offices. Henry A. Koontz, 485 Hilltonia-av, is running for re-election to city council and Charles H. Jones, 355 S. Chase-av, is seeking election to the board of education.

All offices in the townships bordering the Hilltop (Franklin, Norwich and Prairie) are being hotly contested. In Prairie Twp. the voters will decide whether or not to keep the rural zoning plan that they adopted just a year ago.

The race in villages around the Hilltop will have most candidates running unopposed. The one exception to this is the Hilliards mayoralty race. Both Lester Armentrout and Everett Fawcett want to be mayor of Hilliards.

Archibald Rodgers of Valleyview and G. K. Roesch of New Rome are running unopposed for mayor of their respective villages.

The question that has had no organized opposition in the election is the proposed levy to meet school expenses in the city of Columbus. This is a renewal of a two-mill levy and an additional two mills. The board of education has requested that only 2.7 mills of this levy be collected during the first year of the five year period, because of a promise made in 1946 that the tax rate would not exceed 20 mills before November, 1950.

Early Installation Of Butler Ave. Lighting Seen

H. T. VanNess president of High Ridge Civic Association, presented at the City Council meeting of Monday, Oct. 31, the petitions for street lighting on Butler-av. Through Councilman Henry Koontz, the lighting question was acted upon by council and placed before the Service Committee.

VanNess spoke before the committee, outlining the five points in favor of the street lights; viz the crime wave in this section during the last 10 months, the value of lights from a standpoint of quality appearance, traffic safety, economy and efficiency, and the general safety and well-being of the neighborhood.

The service committee at once placed the question before the Division of Electricity. The records collected by High Ridge Civic Association show a preference by the residents of Butler-av for the conventional pole and extension arm type of fixture.

It is expected that a complete report on the Butler-av project will be available at the next meeting of the association Nov. 15.

HBA Backs Four Mill School Levy

The Hilltop Business Association's executive committee this week endorsed the school levy which goes before the voters on Tuesday, C. H. Campbell, association secretary, announced today.

Movies of the Ohio State-Northwestern football game will be shown at the November meeting of the HBA to be held Tuesday, Nov. 8, at 6:45 p. m., at the Westgate Methodist Church.

Booster Election Postponed

Last night's meeting and election of new officers of the West High Boosters Club were postponed indefinitely. The new date set for the meeting will be announced in The Hilltop Record.

Carroll Scholl First In 'Stars' Contest Wed.

The fifth and last round of the preliminaries in the "Stars of Tomorrow" contest took place last night at the Old Trail Theater. The first and second place winners will participate in the finals Nov. 16 at the theater to determine the grand prize winner.

Carrol Ann Scholl, 3030 Olivest, drew the most applause from the audience last night with her tap dance, thus putting her in first place.

Betty Harper, 54 Dakota-av, was awarded second prize for her singing.

An acrobatic dancer, Carol Christy, 264 N. Ogden-av, won third place listing.

Winners of The Hilltop Record subscription contest will also be announced at the Old Trail Theater Wednesday, Nov. 16, and the awards will be presented.

Hilltop Lions Get Charter Sunday

Melvin Jones, founder of the International Lions Association, will be in Columbus Sunday to personally present a charter to the newly-formed Hilltop Lions Club.

The presentation will take place at a banquet at 5:30 p. m. in the Neil House. The downtown club will serve as the host at the banquet. The Columbus Northern Club will receive its charter at the same time.

Governor Orders Probe Into Cause of Fire

A fire that may have been the result of a precautionary measure against fires raged through the top floor of one wing of the Columbus State School for more than an hour before being brought under control yesterday afternoon.

Fire department officials believe that the fire may have been started by sparks from an acetylene torch being used to remove an old fire escape from the building in preparation for installation of new ones.

Estimates of the damage were between $250,000 and $300,000.

Approximately 50 inmates in the burned wing of the building, known as Apartment A, were all removed safely. Training to form lines and leave the building promptly was credited with saving the lives of the "mentally immature" girls and women.

Ten attendants also lived in the damaged section of the building. Many of them lost most of their personal belongings.

Pupils in the damaged section will be housed in other buildings of the school for the time being. Dr. F. L. Keiser, director of the school, supervised the evacuation.

The first alarm of the fire was sounded at 1:43 p. m., and the second and third were sounded within the next 10 minutes. At its height, the blaze and smoke were visible from downtown and most parts of the Hilltop.

Governor Lausche visited the scene of the blaze shortly before the firemen brought the fire under control. He said the fire "was a misfortune, but we can rejoice in the fact none of the children was hurt."

State Welfare Director John H. Lamneck expressed the opinion that the 75-year-old building would not be worth repairing. He said it would cost nearly $600,000 to repair the building.

Water in the school had been shut off earlier in the afternoon, but was turned on at 1:50, after a new valve was installed in the main tunnel.

The fire was declared "out" at 4:48 p. m., but two companies of fire equipment remained at the scene all night as a precautionary measure.

Dan Wedemeyer, the school's superintendent of maintenance, was making a fire inspection of the building when the blaze broke out.

Seiller's Sets New Store Hours

Seiller's Department Store has announced that, beginning next week, their store hours will be from 9:30 a. m. until 9 p. m. on Monday. They will also remain open until 9 p. m. Saturday.

Seiller's is one of a group of Hilltop Business establishments that will give a double number of "S and H" green stamps every Monday.

Other stores that will issue the green stamps are Wolfe Electric Service, 2427 W. Broad-st; Mechem Shoe Store, 2469 W. Broad-st; Hilltop Jewelers, 2421 W. Broad-st; Hilltop Tune Shop, 2392 W. Broad-st; Bob's Gulf Station, 2435 W. Broad-st; Economy Variety Store, 2402 W. Broad-st; and Hilltop Garage, Sales Service, Inc., 2370 Sullivant-av.

PLAN STAG SMOKER

A stag smoker and fish fry will be held at the Westway Post VFW Hall at 2393½ W. Broad-st, Nov. 11. All veterans of World War I or II are invited to attend, whether they belong to the post or not.

Victim Seeks Stolen Papers

Thieves ransacked the home of Clarence T. Lytle, 180 S. Harris-av, Sunday, taking a bank containing $50 in dimes and a black metal box of important papers. The money was being saved by Lytle's little boy.

The box contained insurance policies, three bank books and the papers on the Lytles' home and car. Lytle believes that the thieves may have discarded the papers, and is offering a reward for their return.

Police officials theorized that the burglars are the same who have ransacked other houses in the city recently. They are believed to have entered through the back door with a skeleton key.

Wolfe Life-Time Chairman of Rea-Bow Assn.

The Rea-Bow Improvement Association revised its charter at the last meeting, making George W. Wolfe, 856 Midland-av, lifetime chairman of the association.

Announcement was also made at the meeting that a township political rally will be held at the Rea-Bow Hall at 8 o'clock Thursday evening. Candidates for the township offices have been invited to attend and speak.

The grand opening of the hall, at Whitehead-rd and Clarendon-av, will be Saturday. Awards will be given to the life time members of the organization at this time. There will be musical entertainment.

Stage Set For West High Homecoming

Football, Parade, Dance On List Of Festivities

Homecoming at Magly Stadium tomorrow and Saturday evenings, Nov. 4, 5, holds much for thousands of West High Alumni and students when they return to their alma mater to renew old friendships.

Highlighting the festivities, of course, will be the gridiron contest featuring the West High Cowboys vs. the Cleveland Garfielders, Friday evening.

Preceding the nocturnal pigskin contests Thursday evening at 7:30, a pictorial cavalcade will parade down Powell-av way to the south end of the stadium, and enter Magly Field from this point.

West High's band, under Clair Barnard, will lead the traditional parade, with Queen Betty Roederer and her court of beauties, Marilyn Gauggel, Joan Deyo, Shirley Cline and Betty Walker.

Half-Time Activity

Adding Wild West color to the parade will be horseback riders Loretta Grocms and Bill Fisher astride their respective western class show horses.

At intermission time much splendor and fanfare will be devoted to Queen Betty and her bevy of lovelies. With Carl Caliguiri as emcee, Senior Class President Dick Lehmkuhl will escort Queen Betty to her beautiful improvised throne, formed by the marching band, following the parade. Ralph VanAtta will accompany Betty Walker and Shirley Cline, and Roger Horn will escort Marilyn Gauggel and Joan Deyo.

Right Foot Stunted, Hilltopper Seeks Partner In Shoe Buying

Now is the time to come to the aid of a worthy young lady in distress. Treva Charles of 652 S. Harris-av has a problem, and perhaps you can help her.

When Miss Charles was 13 months old she suffered an attack of infantile paralysis which caused her right foot to be smaller than her left. Whenever she buys shoes, she either has to buy special-made shoes, or two pairs—identical in style, but different in size. Both are expensive.

Now she is looking for another young lady—perhaps between 20 and 40 years old—who is crippled in the left foot and has a normal right foot. If this person, wherever she might be, has a size 4½ left foot and a size 7½ right foot, and would like to buy shoes with Miss Charles, both could save money and have a larger variety of shoes.

Miss Charles, who works in the State Industrial Commission office in the State Office building, already has four such pairs of play shoes.

If you know anyone who can fill the bill, call Miss Charles at her home, RA. 9714, or call The Hilltop Record, RA. 1125.

SW District Scout Honor Court Tonight

Boy Scouts of the southwest district will hold their court of honor tonight at 7:30 p. m., in hearing room No. 2, at the State Office Building.

Mr. Joseph Hill, a boy scout with Admiral Byrd's first Antartic expedition, will show films of the trip and tell of his experiences. M. E. Sensenbrenner, district chairman, will welcome court. Presentation of an attendance plaque will be made by Clifford Matthews, field scout executive. Rev. A. W. Witherspoon will give the invocation.

Presentation of advancement awards will be made by Robert Miller, second class; V. A. Barbee, first class; Vernon Sanford, star and life awards; and Ray Eyerman, merit badges.

Twp. Committee Back Incumbents For Offices

The Franklin Township Nonpartisan Committee this week endorsed eight incumbent township officers for re-election to their various posts.

Endorsed by the non-partisan group were Harry C. Shonting and Otto (Gus) Peeples for trustee; E. Robert Banker and E. C. Miller for justice of the peace; C. Joy Winters, Elbert L. Becker and Lawrence E. Wells for school board; and John L. Quelette the unopposed candidate for constable.

The committee is made up of the following: Albert Tinaple, 4212 Fisher-rd; Neil Rouse, 1851 Jackson-pk; A. L. Wing, 1655 Brown-rd; Mrs. Lafayette Wareham, 505 N. Harris-av; Merrill C. Shade, 2145 Harrisburg pk; Chas. (Ben) McNeal, 1033 Harrisburg-pk; A. Dallas, 3265 McKinley-av, and Paul Wichterman, 1640 Reaver Lane, secretary.

Little Record Ads Bring Lots of Calls

Those little Record want ads are selling just about everything nowadays.

Mrs. W. W. Dye, 261 Eldon-av, sold her Ironrite ironer by 6 p. m. the day her two-line ad appeared.

Mrs. Harry Starcher, 196 Belvidere-av, invested 38c in an ad which resulted in the sale of a tub and lavatory to the first of four callers.

Mrs. A. D. Peterson, 267 S. Westgate-av, had no difficulty in selling her living room suite. Twenty-four people inquired about it.

Have you placed a Record want ad lately? If not, jump on the bandwagon with the many other Hilltoppers who are reaping results in our live-wire classified columns. Just phone RA. 1125.

About Folks You Know

By Helen James, Society Editor

Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Booth and family of Chicago returned home Monday after spending a few days with Mr. Booth's parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. S. Booth, 514 N. Harris-av.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd McIntosh of Cleveland have been guests at the home of their cousins, the the Misses Burnside, 92 N. Powell-av, this past Friday and Saturday.

And we hear that Jean Williams, 52 Powhatan-av, just started a new job in the office of the Gas Company the first of this week.

Birthdays will be giving the H. L. Hetterscheidt family, 193 Midland-av, a hard time next week with three coming close together. David will celebrate his seventh birthday on the seventh day of this month while his big brother, Harry, Jr., 1301½ W. State-st, will become of age Nov. 9, and their father will add on another year Friday, Nov. 11. Happy birthday to all three!

Mrs. Gertrude Hendry, 2744 Ridge-av, entertained her Get-Together Club with a Hallowe'en party last Saturday night at her home.

The Charles A. Bennett family, 1590 Safford-av, had some southern visitors over the week-end, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Blinn of Kentucky and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bennett of Cincinnati came up to visit them.

Sally Jean is the name given by Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Gray, 2260 Safford-av, to their new little daughter who arrived last Monday. Sally Jean weighed seven and a half pounds at birth.

We just found out that Angela Ebbert, formerly a resident at 179 S. Ogden-av, was lucky enough to find an apartment and moved in just recently at 135 Lechner-av.

ENGLISH GIRL MARRIES MR. JENKINSON SATURDAY, SEPT. 17

Mrs. Robert E. Jenkinson

Miss Bonita Marie Cabry, 146 S. Ogden-av, and Mr. Robert Edward Jenkinson were united in marriage at the Broad Street Methodist Church Sept. 17 at 7:30 p. m. with the Rev. W. P. Castoe officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Cabry, Blackpool, England, and Mr. Jenkinson's parents are Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Jenkinson, 926 S. Roosevelt-av.

Given in marriage by Mr. Earl B. Parsons, Miami, Fla., a friend of the family, the bride was attired in a gown of ivory satin styled with a bustle which ended in a full train and long sleeves which ended in a point, and carried a bouquet of buff roses. Her fingertip veil of illusion was gathered to a heart-shaped tiara which was edged with pearls. Her only jewelry was a gold locket, a family heirloom.

Miss Marianna Parsons, 146 S. Ogden-av, maid of honor, was dressed in a blue aqua taffeta gown styled similar to that of the bride. She carried a nosegay of pale pink shadowed gladioli. The bridesmaids were Miss Peggy Pratt and Miss Mabel George who were gowns of pink taffeta.

Mr. Jenkinson chose Mr. Wilford Crise to be his best man and Mr. Jack Fugate and Mr. Harry Graham seated the guests.

The reception was held immediately following the ceremony at the church parlor. The Misses Berniece Powell, Mickey Gray and Tina Corday were hostesses.

The new Mrs. Jenkinson attended St. Kentigerns School, Blackpool, Lancashire, England. Mr. Jenkinson was graduated from Bexley High School and is now attending Ohio State University where he is a member of Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity and Phi Eta Sigma honorary.

Both are teachers at Jimmy Rawlins Dance Studios. They are now making their residence at 1500 N. Fourth-st.

The bride arrived here a year ago from England, where she was a dancer in London. Until she was married, she resided with her aunt, Mrs. P. Scott, 146 S. Ogden-av.

Says Police Morale, Efficiency Would Rise With 40-Hour Week

Editor's Note: The following article was prepared for the Hilltop Record by Kenneth E. Miller, detective sergeant of the Columbus Police force and recording secretary of the Fraternal Order of Police. He lives at 300 N. Hague-av.

* * *

Members of the Columbus Police Department are hoping that the voters will improve the working conditions of their law-enforcing officers by voting "yes" for the 40-hour week.

For more than five years the employees of the nation's major industries have enjoyed a five-day-week with holidays off while the members of the Columbus Police Department have labored through 48 hours every week.

The improvements resulting from a 40-hour-week in the Police Department would be in the common interest of the voters. In the eyes of the average citizen the principal improvements would be:

(1) Improve morale. An organization can never be efficient and perform its duties to the best of the common interest if its members are not contented and in high spirits.

(2) Increase efficiency. Under the 40-hour-week, every policeman would have a definite, outlined job and would accomplish it to the best of his ability because of the high level of morale.

(3) Attract applicants with a higher educational level. The 40-hour-week with present payroll scale will appeal to men of higher educational levels who desire security and a pension after years of faithful service.

(4) Create a larger reserve police force. The reduction of the Police Department work-week from 48 hours to 40 hours will create a reserve force one-sixth larger than previously and will aid immeasurably in emergencies such as fires, floods and manhunts.

Gordon Seeks Second Term As City Attorney

City Attorney Richard W. Gordon, who is seeking re-election to his second term, is running on the slogan "Why Swap Lawyers in the Middle of a Lawsuit?" Mr. Gordon, elected to his first term in 1945, is at present engaged in the fight against public utility on four fronts. He is fighting for the lowest possible utility rates for electricity, bus service, telephone service and gas.

Mr. Gordon resides at 600 Glenmont-av with his wife and three children. He was educated in the Columbus public schools and graduated from Ohio State University College of Law.

Survey Shows City Transit Fare Lowest

By Robert B. Stearns

It seems to be a foregone conclusion that we'll vote the power rate down and retain the 5c fare, with free transfer.

Because Columbus is already overwhelmed with all sorts of publicity on electric rates, and because similar information has not been published, we decided to look into the trolley fare angle. Unless we are mistaken, this is the first time comparative transit fares have been printed.

Consideration of these figures makes it obvious that our electric rate is making up the 5c fare losses. "5c Fare" has become a political football for both parties for the simple reason that there are more riders than meters. It is too bad the mayor and council have to suffer for policies adopted when they were in knee pants. The honesty of the gentlemen is unquestioned.

City Transit Rates In Ohio
(100,000 or more)

	Tickets	Cash Fare	T'fers
Akron	$.0833	10c	free
Canton	.0625	10c	none
C'einnati	.1250	13c	free
Cleveland	.1250	13c	1c
Columbus	.05	6c	free
Dayton	.0714	10c	1c
Toledo	.09	10c	1c
Y'town	.10	10c	1c

(American Transit Association)

Our town is the only city in the group with less than a dime cash fare, as well as the cheapest of the lot by a wide margin.

At first glance, Canton would appear to be hard on our heels. However, there are no transfers at all in Canton. So rides which we blithely make on a nickel would cost 12½c in tickets at 6¼c or 20c in cash.

It is also interesting to note that Cleveland has the highest fare of all. Cleveland Transit System is municipally owned and operated.

The American Transit Association reports that public transportation is facing a serious crisis. The efforts of transit people in all cities above 100,000 will be discussed in a coming issue.

GROUP DISCUSSES 'FADS'

West Junior-senior High PTA study group will meet at 1:30 p. m. Wednesday, Nov. 9, in the school apartment. Mrs. Ralph Jordan and Irvin Young, principal, will discuss the topic, "Are Fads and Frills Fundamental?" Tea will follow with Mrs. P. R. Purkey in charge. All mothers of the school are invited.

'Think This Over'

By William "Doc" Campbell

"Boiling Yourself . . . and Your Work"
(A'La Football) for young or old

Dear Reader: To introduce this new series of feature columns, I thought you would like to know how I got into writing the column for the Record. Well, here 'tis. Retiring from teaching, I found that I must do something or "go nuts", so, as I had "talked" the early part of my life, it would be wise to "write" at the end of it.

This "bug" bit me several months ago—about July — and, knowing that a "friend at court" would be advisable, I contacted one of my finest pupil-friends of several years ago, Sam Alford, who is successful with his own Thrift Finance Company on the Hilltop. He was tremendously interested and made a call on C. Carlton Hartley, publisher of The Hilltop Record. The result was not too enccuraging, but Mr. Hartley consented to see me at some future date.

For months and months I wrote and re-wrote six articles that might be of passing interest to the people on the Hilltop, and then came the "jumping off" time. A few weeks ago I phoned the Record for an appointment. It came at 2 p. m. on a Friday. I was there 20 minutes early, and was ushered into the "band-box", extremely modern office of Mr. Hartley. Opposite me at his desk-table was this energetic business man and booster for the West Side.

Now was my game "A'La Football" to begin. I desired a "touchdown" and was putting everything I had into getting it. Having on my best blue suit (no levis), a modern tie and my white 'kerchief sticking out of my upper left pocket, I was all set. I took off my hat (perhaps gray hairs would help) and "took the ball". I blew the first whistle!

I said (right off the bat): "I want to write a column for your paper." (He never batted an eyelash). "I believe it is ripe for one . . . different in character." So, (I ran with the ball) for five minutes . . . told him I had written a column for the Ohio State Journal for two years and for the Columbus Dispatch a while on "Better Homes" and that thousands know me on the Hilltop, etc., then (he got the ball) asked me many pertinent questions, etc. . . . then (I received the ball again and ran!) . . . read my suggested topics to him, such as "Television", "Tolerance", "Three Books In My Life", "Great People I Have Met or Seen," such as Caruso, Oley Speaks, etc. Then—and only then—did he lean over and take the first article and read it (the ball was getting in my possession!) I watched his face, not embarrassingly, looked at the great two walls of thick "brick glass" that permitted light, but no "peekers".

He read on and finally said, quietly, "Fine." (Gosh! I held that ball tight). Then he read three more articles, and I was coming (up to the goal post). He then took his pencil and sketched the way the column might be placed, etc. (O, that ball). From there on I was (kicking over the goal post). He talked business and financial matters and after a short "give and take" I agreed with him on all important matters. As man to man we concluded this "selling yourself and idea." I arose to leave (he never once hurried me). The half-hour was one of niceties and business dealing. I shook his hand and it was over. The "touchdown" was mine and I sincerely hope, his too! (CHEERS)

Well, you younguns and others too, if you desire to "sell yourself", be punctual, look neat, don't brow-beat your man, offer concrete evidence of your worth (I offered six articles, not just one), be well mannered, not too intrusive, and if the other fellow wants your stuff "YOU ARE HAPPY" and have sold yourself and your work.

JOE BRIGGS
Says:

Some people think they are worth a lot of money just because they have it.

YOU ARE WORTH MORE THAN YOU THINK!

The jolting fact revealed in a recent insurance tabulation is that the average family in the United States has less than $2000 protection against loss by fire—loss of furniture, household equipment, loss of clothing, and personal effects. A $2000 limit of compensation would hardly cover the value of one family's clothing and effects alone. The picture is even more alarming when viewed in terms of the current cost of replacing these necessities in today's inflated market. In many instances, clothing and furnishings cost nearly twice as much as they did in 1939. A bad fire or burglary could be a crippling blow. Are you prepared against such exigencies? See or call Joe Briggs, 2596 Sullivant Ave., RA. 3194.

Stage Set For West High Homecoming

Donna Spring, last year's homecoming queen, will introduce Queen Betty and her court to the football audience at half-time. Herbert Deems, well-known West High alumnus, will have a special message for all voters.

Rope-Twirlers Reform

Rope-twirlers will add much atmosphere and color to the football melee when they perform with their lariats before the game and at half-time. They are Bobbie Gordon, Mary Anne Amos, Carolyn Gordon, Thelma Mugrage and Roland Sunker.

Sequence of the band show at half-time will follow this pattern: Junior High Band will form "Hi"; then the senior band will join the juniors, forming "Grads" in saluting the alumni of West.

The junior band and the senior band will form simultaneously a "school house" and the word "levy", singing an appropriate song made up for the formation. The junior band will then form a "G" while the senior band forms a "C" for Cleveland Garfield. The senior band will then go into a baton formation and spell out the name "Betty" in honor of the queen. Next the senior band will form a heart with an arrow piercing it.

Form Huge Crown

Both bands will climax the show with a combined band formation making a huge crown. The queen and her court will be announced in the crown and the playing of the Alma Mater will ring down the homecoming football game curtain.

The West High School Alumni Association will sponsor the annual homecoming dance in the school gym on Saturday night, Nov. 5, from 9 to 12. Glenn Harriman's band will play. The price will be 75 cents a person, Bill Wolohon, alumni president, disclosed.

At the intermission, when the queen and her court will be introduced to the audience, they will receive gifts with the compliments of the alumni association.

Coach Mack Pemberton will introduce his associate coaches, Mr. Randall and Mr. Heischman, and the football team.

Parties Split On New Ballot

Next to the oleo question, probably the most controversial issue on Tuesday's ballot is the one on the Office Type Ballot. Members of both major political parties are on either sides of the question.

The labor unions are united against the ballot reform. The League of Women Voters, which many times in the past has lined up with the unions on "liberal" questions, is for the Massachusetts type ballot, as it is known.

A bill which proposed this amendment change was defeated by the state legislature in its session earlier this year. If a majority of the electors cast their votes in favor of the new ballot form, the constitution of Ohio will be amended.

Sponsors of the ballot argue that it is better because all candidates for any office will be grouped together with the name of their political party beside their name, instead of running the names in party columns. Candidates' names would be rotated as they are now on the city nonpartisan ballot.

Opponents to amendment, which would affect general elections only, state that the office type ballot would double printing costs and eliminate the use of voting machines. They also argue that passage of the amendment would mean a special session of the legislature because the change would invalidate present election laws.

Miss Merriman Holds Party After Game

Martha Merriman, 44 S. Sylvan-av, entertained with a Hallowe'en party Thursday evening following West's football game.

Those present were Susan Redman, Joan Lehman, Ruth Lorenz, Joan Courtney, Carolyn Smith, Linda Hardacre, Audrey Merritt, Kay Glass, Barbara Booth, David Rismiller, Clark Redick, David Apel, Bob McLinn, Bob Frederick, Billy Coon, Ronnie Kirkpatrick, Glendyn Davis and Jack Howell.

Levy To Provide Park, Recreation Expansion Funds

Coming before next Tuesday's voter will be the question of whether to vote yes or no on a new tax on property. The purpose of the tax is to acquire and improve lands for metropolitan parks in Franklin County.

A vote "no" means that the Columbus metropolitan park board will have no funds to maintain existing recreation areas or obtain new parks in the county. A "yes" vote means a considerable expansion of the program.

Dr. Edward S. Thomas, chairman of the metropolitan park board, has announced that the tax levy will be one-tenth of one mill and will provide funds to be used only for the acquisition and improvement of land for metropolitan parks.

One Cent On $100

The levy asked by the park board would amount to one cent of tax on each $100 of valuation annually for 10 years. It would cost the owner of a home valued at $5000 on the tax duplicate 50 cents in one year. The levy would cost the average home owner in Franklin County about the price of a pack of cigarets annually.

In asking the public to approve the levy, Dr. Thomas, curator of natural history at the Ohio State Museum, warns that unless natural areas of streams and woodlands within the plans of the park board needed for park purposes can be bought within the next few years, they may be destroyed by suburban development and lost to the citizens of Franklin County for public use and recreation.

Plan Big Darby Park

The master plan prepared by the park board shows that the board is considering sites for parks along Big Darby Creek and various other streams in the county. The metropolitan parks being country parks some distance from built-up sections are easily reached on less traveled country roads.

"Fun Time" Program Opened At YWCA

Mrs. Chester O. Cramer, of the YWCA committee for Teen-Age Program has announced the opening of the fall "Fun Time" for junior high school girls, a Saturday activity at the "Y" during the school year.

"Fun Time" includes a variety of interests for teen-agers. There are games and singing, dramatics, dancing, craft work, gym periods and swimming.

Beginning at noon with lunch brought from home, the girls spend the afternoon working and playing together. They may make costumes and scenery for a dramatic production, or fashion Christmas gifts from leather or clay. After these and other activities, they conclude the "Fun Time" day with an hour's plunge in the pool.

A medical examination is required for swimming, and an appointment may be made by calling the Health Education Department of the YWCA, AD. 9121.

"Fun Time's" fall term will continue through Dec. 3.

Hillcrest Group Holds Board Meet Nov. 10

The Women's Missionary Society of Hillcrest Baptist Church will meet Thursday, Nov. 10, at the church at 1 p. m., for an executive board meeting.

Special music for the program will be given by Mrs. Maurice Thomson. Abie Mae Simmons, graduate of BMTS and missionary in southern Ohio, will be guest speaker. Mrs. Ralph Bieber, Jr., will have the devotions.

Cowboys Set For Homecoming Tilt

By Dave Miller

West High's grid forces will play host to a "not so easy" Cleveland Garfield Heights eleven this Friday evening under the Magly Field arcs in a non-league homecoming encounter.

Although the visiting Clevelanders haven't a too impressive record, they're expected to give our Cowboys a battle, who also haven't a too exciting mark to date. The Cowboys will be out to get their first non-loop win of the season in three attempts. They lost to Marion Harding and Upper Arlington in the first two contests of the season, and as yet haven't won a non-league game.

Beat Linden, South

Their record to date includes two wins and five losses. They have skidded past Linden McKinley, 6-0; and South, 27-6; while losing to Marion, 20-0; Upper Arlington, 33-0; North, 19-13; East, 20-7; Central, 20-6.

Cleveland Garfield Heights, coached by Foster Elliott, always has respectable teams among the upper-state schools. However, this year they are having about as dismal season as our locals are.

They have won two, and lost four, one lost different than West's record. Neither has tied to date. The Blue and Gold have beaten Cleveland Berea, 19 to 13; and Cleveland, 7 to 0; while suffering defeats to Cleveland East, 52 to 0; Cleveland Maple Heights, 38 to 7; Cleveland Heights, 14 to 0; and Cleveland Central, 20-7.

Mentally Ready

However, as always before stated, records mean nothing when gametime starts, and one thing is sure if nothing else, West's Coach Mack Pemberton will have his boys at least "mentally" ready for the 1949 homecoming game, which will soon be history.

The probable starting lineups:

West	Pos.	Cleveland
J. Rudolph	LE	J. Gallagher
J. Bowen	LT	A. Huber
B. Wilson	LG	T. Garbasi
B. Apps	C	B. Zelle
D. Will	RG	F. Pugely

Hours of Practice Needed to Perfect Technique of West High Rope Twirlers

By Myron T. Seifert

Many West High students have attained a high degree of dexterity in rope twirling, a popular extracurricular activity at the Cowboy school.

One group in particular devotes many hours to training routine, under the expert guidance of E. T. Stone, chemistry teacher, who is adept at rope-twirling.

Steeped in the intricacies of "handling the manila", the twirlers refuse to take a backseat with any other high school rodeo-twirling group in the country.

Traditionally a part of West High, the story of the West High ropes stems back to the year 1946, when among others, Jim Cockfield and Don Watkins, now students at Ohio State, introduced to West High School the adroit handling of the lasso.

Present senior high members of the group include Barbara Gordon, a junior, Roland Sunker, a senior, and Jim Harter, a sophomore.

Junior high twirlers include Mary Anne Amos, 9B, Carolyn Jeanne Gordon, 8A, and Thelma Lou Mugrage, 8B.

Appropriate accoutrements for the Cowboy group were designed by Rhoda O'Harra, sewing instructor, and made by parents of the ropers. Boots and hats were purchased by the twirlers.

Hours and hours of practice are required to become proficient in this art. Intricate formations include the wedding ring, juggles, handshakes and step-in and step-out. More spectacular manipulations of the rope are staged by the ropers when they toss the lariat up and over the head, and the merry-go-round when a 14 foot rope is needed.

Most difficult trick, the students say, is the king of tricks, "The Texas Skip," in which a number ten rope, 35 feet long, is used with a two ounce brass honda to make a huge loop.

Six newcomers to the "rope circle" this year are Merrillyn Thompson, Alice Wilson, Joy and Jean Wright and Kathryn Thomas.

The ropers have already performed before thousands of spectators who have heaped praise upon them.

Numerous football games and variety shows have featured the showmanship of West High twirlers.

They have a show and routine of their own and have entertained numerous groups, including DAR, Eastern Star, Soldiers' Hospital patients at Chillicothe, State Hospital and the national magic convention.

Certain standards must be met, Mr. Stone said. Members must be able to do well 10 rope tricks the first year in order to qualify for a felt cowboy emblem.

After three years of service, one of which must be in senior high, a letter "W" is awarded. If the participant continues his work until his senior year he is eligible to receive a gold pin.

GLENWOOD WSCS TO MEET

Glenwood Methodist WSCS will meet Thursday, Nov. 3, in the church parlor. The morning study period will begin at 10 o'clock and Chapters 6 and 7 of the study book, "Japan Begins Again," will be presented by Mrs. Glen Myers and Mrs. M. W. Seiller, respectively. Mrs. G. B. Nessley will review "Seven Stars." Luncheon will be served by Circle 4 with Mrs. Stephen Nemes as chairman. The afternoon program will begin at 12:45 and "Jesudas, the Outcast", a film on India, will be shown. Mrs. Paul Karn will sing. The business meeting will follow the program with Mrs. P. C. Edwards presiding.

TO SPONSOR BALL

Members of Wings 56, 48 and 29 of Nightingale Cottage will sponsor, a Harvest Ball on Saturday, Nov. 5, in the ballroom at the Deshler Wallick Hotel. Howdy Gorman and his orchestra will play for dancing from 10 p. m. to 1 a. m. Gwen Kagey and her dancers will present a floor show entitled "Dance of the Americas."

Looking Ahead with

Jean Worrel

We are all interested in the other fellow's job. If you don't mind I am going to tell you something about my job . . . the job of selling life insurance.

Some of you think of a life insurance man as a high-pressure salesman who hasn't any thing to do but waste your time. But there are others of you who know the real value of an insurance man. Someone once said that the life insurance man is the unsung hero of a better way of life. All he strives to do is to offer you security, if there is any such thing in a world gone haywire. Life insurance is the average man's estate. It is peace of mind — and sounder sleep, your family's support and comfort in your final absence. It is your own tangible link with the future . . . your nearest approach to immortality. To anyone with a family, it is as much a necessity as bread, or shoes, or shelter. And, because our individual insurance needs vary about as widely as our finger-prints, the Sun Life insurance man must be much more than a fast-talking salesman with a mind for figures. He must be a financial analyst and counsellor, father-confessor and expert on trusts, taxes, wills and human nature. But his hardest job is finding prospects who desire accurate knowledge and sound advice on the subject. If he can catch them in a receptive mood, gently win their confidence and make them face their responsibilities like men, then he is a happy man because he has done a good job of making life happier for those who follow after. That is MY job. Won't you let me help you, tomorrow?

Dem. Lawyers Back Poorman, Alcorn, Holden

"Columbus electors have the opportunity to raise the standard of the municipal court," stated David B. Sharp, campaign chairman of the Democratic Lawyers Club.

"Our candidates," Mr. Sharp announced, "are Walton G. Alcorn and Joseph J. Poorman. They are both men with capable legal experience, having practiced law for more than 19 years."

The Democratic Lawyers are also backing Henry L. Holden for city attorney.

Old Age Group To Convene At Glenwood Center

The Golden Agers—the senior citizens of the community—will meet at the Glenwood Recreation Center at 3 p. m. Tuesday, Nov. 8, the city recreation department announced today.

This is the first such meeting of elder residents of the Hilltop. The organization and program of the group will start with Tuesday's meeting.

The recreation department will furnish the rooms, games, supplies and leadership for whatever type program the Golden Agers choose.

OUR RECORD

1. Columbus is one of the first Cities in Ohio to completely mark all of its streets with easily read well made signs.
2. Much work has been done and much is still in progress for the enlargement of the present sewage treatment works.
3. Many miles of new sewers, both sanitary and storm are being built to eliminate flooded basements.
4. We have increased by more than 25% water storage to prevent shortage in case of drouth.
5. We have completely rehabilitated the Dublin Road Purification Plant which today is probably the most modern of its kind in the United States.
6. We have erected hundreds of new street lights and more will go up right along.
7. Our flower shows put on semi-annually receive favorable comment from our citizens as well as thousands of visitors who make a special trip to Columbus to see them.
8. When we took over, our City was last in the United States in recreation activities. We are not yet among the leaders but have come a long way and should be at the top in a few years.
9. An effective smoke abatement and smoke control program is now under way and getting fine results.
10. The City operates three markets. Two were destroyed by fire and rebuilt. Today our market houses are modern, well equipped and sanitary and a credit to our Community.
11. Our Air Port today is in first class condition and will become a vital factor in transportation and freight business, benefitting all our people.
12. We now have the necessary equipment and we are carrying into effect a thorough street repair program. Our citizens see it in operation every day and approve.
13. We are revising City Truck Routes to keep these heavy and dangerous vehicles from residential areas to protect our school children.
14. WE HAVE CONSISTENTLY FOUGHT FOR AND OBTAINED THE LOWEST POSSIBLE UTILITY AND TRANSPORTATION RATES. WE ASK RE-ELECTION TO CONTINUE TO FIGHT FOR THE BEST INTERESTS OF THE PEOPLE OF COLUMBUS.

Starling Junior High News Notes

CENTRAL OHIO TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION MEETS
By Patricia Munson

The students of Starling Junior High School, along with all other students of the Columbus Public Schools, enjoyed a day's vacation last Friday, Oct. 28. This was the day of the annual Central Ohio Teachers' Association meeting, held this year in the city of Columbus. The opening session was at the Coliseum on the State Fair Grounds. Afternoon meetings were arranged for the various groups and were held throughout the city. The evening general session was held at Memorial Hall on E. Broad st.

STUDENT TEACHER IN ART CLASSES
By George Stone

There is a student teacher in the art classes at Starling Junior High School this fall. His name is L. E. Moll. He is a student at Ohio State University and will graduate at the end of this quarter. Mr. Moll is a member of Delta Phi Delta, an honorary art fraternity. His home town is Wauseon.

Mr. Moll came to Starling the first of October and will be there until Dec. 9. He is enjoying his visit at Starling and the students hope he will continue to like it there.

NOVEMBER PTA PROGRAM
By Joyce Hackney

The November PTA program will consist of combined instrumental, vocal and dramatic talents. The theme of the program will be a mock television show. The instrumental work is under the supervision of Mr. Dale; the vocal work will be directed by Mrs. Gross; and Mrs. Mentzer and Miss Swoap will have charge of the dramatic part of the production.

PTA MEMBERSHIP CONTEST
By Joyce Hackney

There is a contest every year at Starling to increase the membership of the PTA. This contest is held between the home rooms with three prizes awarded: $3, $2 and $1. This year's first award was given to Mr. Smith's home room with 47 members. Second prize went to Mrs. Rowlen's room with 23 members and third to Mr. Pace's home room with 21 members. The total membership for this year now stands at 402.

ASSEMBLY
By Alvin Funk

Starling Junior High School held its second assembly last [illegible] Oct. [illegible]. The purpose of this assembly was to bring to the students' attention the proposed four mill levy. Three student council members, Jerrie Remaly, Edward Green and Don Stierhoff questioned two faculty members about the four mill levy. The teachers who took part in the first period assembly were Mrs. Dixon and Mr. Pace. Those in the second period assembly were Mrs. Miller and Mr. Peck.

Student talent was displayed both before and after the main part of the program. Thelma Kidwell and Roger Horch played a trumpet duet and Juanita Shaver played a piano solo as the opening numbers. After the discussion, Constance Sonner tap danced and Carl Sally played a saxophone solo.

Y-TEEN MEETS
By Joan Stamper

The Y-Teens of Starling Junior High School held its second meeting Thursday, Oct. 20. To this Y-Teen meeting the girls were supposed to bring a five-cent chocolate bar for "Chocolate Week." These bars will be sent to the children of Europe for Christmas. Starling sent three boxes of bars, wrapped as Christmas gifts.

At the meeting Rosemary Zimmerman, Alberta Puckett, Wilma Headly, Nancy Vogt and Helen Dickson were chosen as the home room announcement committee. Rosemary Zimmerman is the chairman.

Anita Bellomy, Jeanette Puckett, Barbara Squeo, Iris Blatt, Carole Summers and Ann Mosely were appointed as the program committee.

Joyce Sahr and Judy Karns were chosen to make Y-Teen posters; Joyce Jones was appointed the music director.

So far this semestor the Y-Teens have 66 members. Vera Adams is president, Doris Saunders is vice-president, Yvonne Brewer is secretary, and Millie Bartolucci is treasurer. Miss Forbes is their advisor.

PTA SPONSORS DANCE
By Dorothy Jones

The first dance of the fall semester for Starling Junior High School was held Friday night, Oct. 21. Starling dances are sponsored by the PTA and are always successful.

Teachers are usually stationed in the building for the safeguard of the pupils. Those attending this dance were Mr. Hicks, who stamped hands, Mr. Dale, Mr. Nader, Miss Mohler, Miss Cherington, Mr. Walsh, Miss Scofield, Miss Kelly and Mr. Bruin.

The band was from South High. It lived up to all expectations for the numbers they played were enjoyed by everyone.

STARLING JUNIOR HIGH PRAYER MEETING
By June Grigsby

Some of the boys and girls of Starling Junior High School have felt the need and have gotten together for a prayer meeting. Mr. Huber has given permission for them to use room 9 at 8:15 every Tuesday and Friday morning. They will have Scripture readings, prayer, and a song or two. Similar meetings have also been started at West, McKinley, Central, Roosevelt and East High Schools.

TAX STAMP COUNTERS CHOSEN
By Marilyn Greene

Four girls have been chosen to count the tax stamps which are turned in at Starling Junior High School. These girls are Florence Ott, Nancy Weber, Shirley Littler and Marilyn Greene. They work in room 19 the eighth period by checking all the stamps that are handed in by the different home rooms. Mrs. Mentzer, a new teacher at Starling, is in charge of the work.

Vote For the 4-Mill Levy

Three Hilltop organizations, the Hilltop Kiwanis Club, the West High Boosters, and the Hilltop Parents Association, have added their names to the list of organizations endorsing the four mill school levy to be voted on in the Nov. 8 election.

This is the second editorial of a series explaining what the levy is and how it will help the Columbus schools.

What Is the 4-Mill Levy?

1. The 4-mill levy is a proposal being submitted to the people at the November election.
2. It is for the operation of schools.
3. It is an increase of 2 mills over the present rate.
4. It has no connection with the bond issue. All money from bond issues for new buildings or additions to old buildings is voted by the people at regular elections and cannot be used for other expenses.
5. It will help boys and girls by:
   - (a) providing for better teacher morale and higher standards of instruction,
   - (b) a broader program of education, supplemented by services in special fields.
   - (c) better school building conditions and equipment.

It is imperative that the 4-mill levy carry on Nov. 8. To lose this issue would mean losing an amount approximately equal to 16% of the 1948-1949 operating budget. The reason for this is that the 2-mill levy which was passed in 1947 is included in the 4-mill proposal.

Why a 4-Mill Levy?

An inventory of the financial resources of the Columbus Board of Education reveals that it has too little money to buy an acceptable amount and quality of schooling for the children in the Columbus Public Schools.

The school superintendent in a speech to the teachers on Sept. 14, says "We must strike in three places if we are to create an educational atmosphere conducive to real growth."

The three places are:

(1) general adjustments and some professionalization of salaries,
(2) expansion and implementation of services,
(3) maintenance and improvement of physical plant conditions.

Odd Fact

A 17-week-old baby in Jacksonville, Fla., surprised all members of her family recently by standing on her own two feet and hitching her way all over the house.

If you have genius, industry will improve it; if you have none, industry will supply its place.

Letters to Editor

Dear Carl:

It is not often one passing out the flowers has the opportunity of being the recipient and it is with very deep appreciation I wish to thank you for the lovely bouquet of neckties and your article in The Hilltop Record regarding the Broad Street mum planting—but I feel you have contributed as much as anyone to make this project a success, so this week the roses go to you and also a bouquet of mums. Again thanking you and with best wishes,

Objects To Rink In Westgate Park

Editor, Hilltop Record:

While away from home until the 1st of April we are having The Hilltop Record sent to us. Upon reading the Oct. 13 edition I was somewhat aghast at the article regarding the suggestion of a skating rink in Westgate Park! I say now, why not let's really do things in a big way? Why not also a roller coaster, a dance hall and all the other trimmings which are included in a regular amusement park?!

Naturally we who live around the park object the most to such an idea and I am sure E. O. Melvin himself would object to one if he knew that it was to be constructed right near his residence. However it means more than that; it means we would have to tolerate the traffic of cars in and out at all hours, especially at night; cars driven by youths, most of whom drive recklessly and have no sense of fear or danger towards any one else; the honking of horns and all the other noises which more or less go along with it.

We have lived along Westgate Park for 10 years and it isn't nearly so peaceful and quiet these past few years as it was. So please let's don't put anything more in it to make it worse.

To quote Mr. Melvin, "We want the parks to reach their ultimate goal, which is the good of most people." You know, for the past hour I have been trying to figure out just how a skating rink in the park would be of any benefit to me—or to him either! After all, Columbus already has regular skating rinks for those who enjoy that sport. "Most people" to him must mean the youngsters who are always looking for a good time. To me "most people" would be those who have homes and families, who have the taxes to pay, etc.

My idea of a park (of course I could be wrong) is a place of beauty in a city where people can go to relax, to take their families on picnics, to get away from all noise and confusion of city life found on the streets. If Mr. Melvin really desires to do something worthwhile for Westgate Park he should make an effort to have street lights installed around it, something which would be for the "good of most people." As E. F. Schilling says—and I wholeheartedly agree with him—"the park is attracting immorality" — and who should know but we "who live bordering the park?"

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

IT WAS like a nightmare where the heavy weight crushed down against the defenseless sleeper. It was the nearest thing to panic Marvell had ever known. His hands were clammy with sweat. "But for her mother's sake," he cried. The effort to speak out of this numbing fear choked his words. "She is part of Elizabeth. You moved heaven and earth to keep her with you. Why not her child?"

Proctor's face darkened. "Her child?" he asked as if he had never believed in Katherine' existence.

"Look," urged Marvell, holding on to his strongest appeal, "she is to be in a play soon. Her heart is set on it. Let her stay for the term. She expects you to come and see her in it. She expects to come back here tomorrow as if nothing had happened. She takes up so little room."

Proctor indulged in one of his rare laughs. "I thought that of you once. We could afford to keep you on, you took up so little of our life."

Marvell turned away, his eyes on the Chinese vase that stood on the bookshelf near the window.

"But I am not concerned with you any longer, nor with Katherine."

Marvell widened his eyes against the tears that pressed against his eyelids. He swallowed against the sharp pressure in his throat. This sudden warm feeling that was so unfamiliar to him embraced the child in wonder and tenderness and reached out to Proctor in pity. He was thrusting Kit off in her defense and it was the most human thing he had ever done. Marvell winked rapidly and cleared his eyes, but when he turned back to Proctor he did not see the nakedness and pain he expected. The man was as superior, as scornful as ever, the thin smile crooking his lips.

"My sister bore a good deal," he spoke slowly, choosing his words. "She was willing to protect you in every way—even to provide security for your daughter."

Proctor's eyes glittered as he bent his head forward, barely moving his lips. "See that you take her out of this house. Not a stick of Elizabeth's is to go with you. The money you can have. It means nothing."

Marvell shuddered at the thought of what Elizabeth must have brushed against every day for the last few years. The very room seemed sinister now. If Katherine had been upstairs, he would have rushed up to her, carried her bodily out of the house. But she was safe. He took a deep breath and was surprised to hear his own voice, not shaking, say steadily, "I shall let myself out."

• • •

Ben was not optimistic enough to believe in Marvell's parting words that he would be back in an hour, but in his deepest pessimism he had not expected him to drop out of sight for twenty-four—and when the twenty-four had increased to forty-eight, Ben became extremely upset. He left his office at dusk and went straight home. Fanny, quick to assuage any discomfort in his way, was giving him a late tea in the upstairs sitting room.

"I shall have to start making inquiries soon, Fanny," he said nervously for the fourth time. "This is devilish awkward."

"He is not at Proctor's." She handed him his tea, sweetened, and stirred, and even cooled a little so that he would not absent-mindedly burn his mouth.

"Good Lord, I didn't think he would be—two days in that house alone with Proctor would make him a prisoner or a corpse. Did you call Proctor?"

"No, I made some excuse to Emily about Katherine's diet. She was very embarrassed, poor thing, she said she hadn't had a glimpse of Marvell since the day before yesterday."

"We need say nothing yet, dearest. She is quite used to his being away—and she has a good deal on her mind these days with the play."

"I don't see how he can expect to get through life so irresponsibly. He makes trouble for himself—a thing like this is..."

"What you are not quite bold enough to say, dear," amended Fanny, "is that you fear he has gone off on a bender."

"I wouldn't have believed that man is a chronic drunkard. He's too good-natured."

Fanny tapped her foot thoughtfully. "I thought fat men and imbibers were always good-natured."

"You are thinking of Falstaff," replied Ben half testily. There was no use denying it, he was getting stouter these days and he had always had the reputation of being good-natured "I don't mean that exactly," he explained. "I mean there is too much light in him. Your real alcoholic has a good deal of darkness. Proctor would be admirable."

"A gloomy drinker. But he's all darkness, Ben, and I think your real alcoholic has to have a spot of light in him somewhere that he drinks toward."

"This doesn't get us anywhere in locating him," Ben sighed. "Does Katherine seem happy?"

"Contained, rather. She gets along well with Charles though he teases her unmercifully about the play. She doesn't resemble Elizabeth at all, does she?"

"Elizabeth was so eager," he said, and thought, a little too quickly, how grateful he ought to be, how grateful he was, that he was not in Marvell's dubious position as Proctor's brother-in-law, which he would have been had he married Elizabeth as he had once wanted badly to do. Not that his position with Proctor could be much more strained than it was. He had always thought of Elizabeth as a young girl, uncertain, volatile, needing a steadying tenderness. He had been so prepared to give that, and he never needed it with Fanny who, if anything, tenderly steadied him. And yet the last time Elizabeth had come into his office, she had been woman enough. Tired, perhaps, but steady in her care for the people she loved. As he let himself wander over those old emotional fields, he could not help appreciate how much better he had known Elizabeth than Marvell.

"It is such a pity, all this fuss," said Fanny. "Why did it have to happen?"

"Something had to happen, my dear. It was long overdue."

"Did you see the letter, Ben?"

"No, thank God, I did not. If anything has happened to Marvell in New York it would take some time for us to hear..."

"Oh, darling," said Fanny patiently—they had gone over every possibility time and time again—"one always hears of those things. Nothing ever happens to a man like Marvell. It's you or I or Emily who break our legs in public parks and disappear out of sight."

Ben had learned from Katherine that her father had stopped at the desk in the Parker House to register and a call there had yielded the information that Mr. Coomes had occupied Room 407 for one night; that he had dispatched a telegram to New York and had received a reply in return. Now, although Ben had dispairingly gotten Marvell down to New York and into a series of mishaps in his mind, he could not quite believe that Marvell would forget Katherine.

Fanny rang for the maid to remove the tea tray. She arose awkwardly, her pregnancy now apparent under the thin dress.

"I've promised to read to them," she said. "Then you and I will have dinner alone and you are not to worry while you eat." She put her arm through his and smiled into his usually placid face, now puckered with indecision. He stooped and kissed her forehead, suddenly grateful for everything she meant to him. As he straightened up, he saw Marvell standing in the doorway.

"Where have you been?" asked Ben irritated by the sudden relief.

"Oh, Marvell," cried Fanny, "we are so glad to see you. Sit down for a fresh cup of tea." The maid stood at his heels, peering around him.

"On a voyage of disoovery," he answered Ben's question. He stood there, a little out of breath, his crumpled hat in his hand. "I'm a little muddy and mussed." His shoes were scuffed from much walking.

"Did you walk back from New York?" Ben asked meaning to sound sarcastic and only succeeding in being mildly skeptical.

"Never went there. How are you, Fanny?" I missed you the other evening." He took her hand and led her back to her chair. He looks as if he'd slept in his clothes, she thought ruefully. She did not take her eyes off him and Ben resented a little the admiration she was bestowing on Marvell in spite of his wear and tear.

The Manchester Guardian, generally esteemed as one of the six world's greatest newspapers, had this to say before devaluation: "Where do we go from there? We shall not go far if the government thinks that the main adjustment of policies will have to be on the American side. We have not the strength to enforce it.

"In 1931 this country exported its troubles to other countries, which were compelled by the slump in raw materials to trade on British terms. There is no slump now, and America, having prevented its trade recession from tumbling over into a slump, is stronger than ever.

"We shall have to make the greater part of the adjustment here in this country. Until there is evidence that the relation between work and reward is being adjusted to more reasonable rewards in this country, the world will not regain confidence and sterling will continue to be hawked around for what it will fetch. It ought not to be hard to take such an obvious decision."

The above appeared in the Sept. 1 issue, and is the first and only one to arrive on a new subscription. It was written well before our strikes began.

God Comforts His People

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Isaiah 40:4-11; 42:5-9; 54:1-8; 65:17-25; Luke 4:16-21.

By Alfred J. Buescher

The Lord shall feed His flock like a shepherd: He shall gather the lambs with His arm, and carry them in His bosom, and shall gently lead those that are with young.

They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint.

The Lord hath anointed Me to preach good tidings unto the meek; He hath sent Me to bind up the broken-hearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives, Jesus read from the scripture.

They shall build the old wastes, they shall raise up the former desolations, and they shall repair the waste cities, the desolations of many generations.

MEMORY VERSE—Isaiah 41:10.

Kimes Named Student Minister Of Local Church

Robert Kimes, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Kimes, 132 Highland-av, has recently been appointed student minister at Broad Street Methodist Church. Robert graduated from West in the class of 1947 and entered Ohio Wesleyan University where he studied during his freshman and sophomore years. He became affiliated with the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity there and was vice-president and chaplain during the fall semester of 1948.

During his high school years Robert was president of the Youth Fellowship at Glenwood Methodist Church for two years and also was active in the district work of the Methodist Youth Fellowship.

While he is working with the youth and assisting Dr. Walter P. Custos in the pulpit at the Sunday morning service he is continuing his schooling at Ohio State University, where he is a junior in the college of arts and science. Following his graduation from Ohio State University, Robert plans to enter Drew Theological School, a Methodist Seminary in Madison, N. J., where he will continue his studies. Robert has a sister, Nancy Kimes, who is an 11A student at West High School.

Household Hint

To protect your kitchen sink from stains, put a rubber drainboard pad in it, cutting it down to fit if necessary. Do not make it a permanent fixture. Use it only when washing dishes or cooking, when hot pans will be put in the sink.

Rev. H. N. Brobst 25th Anniversary Celebration Sun.

Rev. Harry N. Brobst, pastor of the St. Matthew Lutheran Congregation, 80 Martin-av, will celebrate his 25th anniversary as minister of that church on Sunday, Nov. 6.

A special service will be held at 10:30 a. m. with Rev. William N. Emch of Dayton delivering the sermon, and Rev. August Zell acting as liturgist. Lois Haywerth Maurer of Springfield will be a program of guest speakers and entertainment with a reception following.

Rev. Brobst was called to St. Matthew congregation on Aug. 31, 1924, from St. Paul Lutheran Church at Coldwater, O., and was installed as pastor on Nov. 2, 1924.

In his 25 years he has performed the following official acts: baptized 326; confirmed 310; married 217 couples; buried 178; communed 12,587, and has preached approximately 1,650 sermons.

He was married in 1904 to Elisabeth Muyer of Greenville. They have two children, Frederick E. Brobst, 809 S. Cassingham-rd, and C. Paul Brobst, 221 Letchworth-av.

The Low Down On High Ridgers

By One of Them

Spooks were seen over the week-end. Reinhardt's Hallowe'en party was a humdinger. There were two ghosts, one pirate, a witch, and the rest came in odds 'n ends. The climax was when the witch took off her mask, it wasn't a she after all. Mack Metz was the victim. He won first prize too.

Sue Vawters is the future interior decorator among the Hi Ridgers. All the young brides will be catering to her for advice in furnishing their homes.

Mrs. "Herb" Rumfield entertained her sewing club last week. All members were present. It's more fun to jabber, but they never forget to bring their sewing.

Our Betty Roederer is homecoming queen at West High School tomorrow as the Cowboys meet Cleveland Garfield Heights. Let's all go!

Patty Walters was up here visiting her aunt and uncle, the Greenos. She hails from Harrisburg. She'll be teaching us all to play Canasta before long. She knows her cards.

Neilson's Hallowe'en Party started after all the children were in bed, of course. The parents had a scare. One of their children had awakened at midnight and moved about upstairs, and they thought a prowler had entered the home.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sinacola had out-of-town visitors last week-end. Eleanor's mother and step-father, Mr. and Mrs. Venus of Decatur, Ind., were here; also Eleanor's sister and family.

Hurrah! for the High Ridge Section! Harold Todd is a winner as a football score predicter. We have some more good guessers in our crowd. Let's enter that contest and compete with him.

Mrs. Emmet Hegwood, 150 Lenox-av, and son, David, flew to Marshall, Mich., last week, called there by the death of her uncle. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Levda, her parents and her brother, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Levda, accompanied her back home to spend the week-end.

A surprise party took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mel Howell, Pasadena-av, Saturday evening, when about 25 guests arrived in wonderful costumes in keeping with the Hallowe'en spirit, after they had each been in their home to "beg". Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Paul Morley, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Morley, Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Shoaf, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Mason, Mr. and Mrs. Fahrbach and children, Mr. and Mrs. Snouffer and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Finley and son, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Shoaf, and Mr. and Mrs. Dick Rarey and son, Stephen.

A family pot-luck was enjoyed at the home of Mrs. E. C. Sheets, Sr., 235 Pasadena-av, Tuesday noon. The guests of honor were Mrs. R. G. Barnecut and Mrs. E. C. Sheets, Jr., whose birthdays are a day apart. Those present were Mrs. R. G. Barnecut and daughter, Mrs. Earl Knisely, Mrs. W. G. Lamb and son, Tud, Mrs. David Sheets and sons, David and Dick, Mrs. E. C. Sheets, Jr., and sons, Edward III and Jeffrey Llynn, Mrs. G. H. Noie and children, Cheryl Lynn and Dennis, Mrs. T. M. Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Sheets, Sr., and E. D. Warren.

Walter Elliott, Cole-rd, suffered a heart attack in one of the Hilltop stores, Saturday, and was taken to the home of his sister, Mrs. Scott Denton, 2911 Crescent-dr. He will be able to return to his home the latter part of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. David Miller and son, John, of Grandview spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kent Richey, Pasadena-av.

Mrs. Roy Donaldson and little son visited her niece, Mrs. Glenn Stoody, 293 Pasadena-av.

Fifty men of this community chartered a coach and attended the Cleveland Browns football game Saturday.

Hilltop Lawyer Heads Holden Campaign Group

"Henry Holden's election as city attorney is important to the people of Columbus."

This is the statement of G. Arlowe Bryant, 1937 W. Broad-st, prominent West Side attorney and a member of Henry L. Holden's campaign committee.

"Mr. Holden's experience as an assistant county prosecutor for 18 years, his fine educational background, his family's long and honorable record in Columbus, his cooperation in civic and fraternal activities, his status as a family man—all of these have helped to mold Mr. Holden into a man fit and capable of taking over the important duties of the city attorney's office," said Bryant.

Other West Siders on Mr. Holden's committee are Frank Crist, Jr., 480 S. Westgate-av, chairman, assisted by George Tarbutton, 180 S. Brinker-av, and Robert M. Draper, 79 N. Roys-av, and Frank A. Schneider, 212 Avondale-av.

Hilltop Lutheran Plans Father-Son Banquet

The annual Father-Son banquet of Hilltop Lutheran Church will be held at 6:30 p. m. Nov. 11 in the church parlors. Professor Roland Matheis of the English Department of Wittenberg College, Springfield, will be the speaker.

Motion pictures of the Ohio State-Missouri football game will be shown.

Herbert L. Pfaltzgraf, who is general chairman of the committee arranging the banquet, will be master of ceremonies. Bert Lowery will lead the singing. Other members of the arrangements committee are Herbert Williams, John Rohr and Leonard Echols.

Should Ohio Allow Sale Of Yellow Oleo?

"No"

says Paul Shoemaker, Hilliards farmer, and a director of the Central Ohio Milk Producers Cooperative Association.

As a person who has been a farmer nearly all his life, a milk producer and a grower of one of the main ingredients of oleomargarine—soybeans—I am opposed to the proposed law which calls for the manufacture and sale of colored oleo.

I do not wish to knock the qualities of oleo. It is my contention that the housewife should have the right to buy oleo if she wishes, but that she also has the right to know that it is oleomargarine.

I am a director of the Central Ohio Milk Producers' Cooperative Association, and because my farm is located on the Rome-Hilliards-rd, near Hilliards, I represent all the dairy farmers in the western section of the central Ohio milk shed. That includes all the milk producers in the northwest corner of Franklin County and all of Madison County.

My position on the matter, and the stand taken by the association, is that instead of knocking oleo, we'd rather boost and promote butter. We feel butter will stand on its own merits, and, after all, oleo is just a substitute for butter.

The main reason we oppose the legal coloring of oleo is that it is likely to endanger the health of the public. The reason that state and federal taxes have been imposed on margarine, and that laws exist against manufacture and sale of colored oleo is that years ago, before these taxes and laws, yellow-colored oleo was sold for butter. This oleo was mixed and colored in basements and old warehouses and dirty tubs were used. Government inspection was impossible.

The danger is that this may reoccur.

A person might reasonably ask, Why does a farmer who produces both milk and soybeans oppose the oleo coloring question? Our answer to that would be that the soybean grower feels there is no guarantee the oleo manufacturer would continue to use soybeans and would not import coconut oils and other oils from foreign countries to make the product.

In any event, with oleo being sold colored, the price of it will go up.

Granting that the lady of the house has the right to buy oleomargarine when she wants it and how she wants it, what I must immediately ask myself is why do oleo manufacturers insist and demand that oleo must be colored yellow? Why must it be colored the same as butter?

Why not color it pink or light green if they do not want to confuse the buyer into thinking that colored oleo is butter.

Whether, after Nov. 8, oleo is white or yellow, the farmer will still be in business. People will continue to eat wheat and butter and cheese and drink milk. But for the welfare of the public, for safeguarding the public's health, I urge Mr. and Mrs. Public to vote "no" on colored oleo.

"Yes"

says Charles H. Morris, 298 S. Harris-av, shipping clerk at the Capital City Products Co.

My hope is that every Hilltop resident will cast his vote or her vote on Nov. 8 for yellow margarine. Those who do will be casting a vote in favor of private enterprise, as contrasted with monopoly; for justice, as opposed by injustice, and for fairness, as against unfairness.

The simple fact is that yellow margarine in Ohio is opposed by only the butter lobby; by a few dairy farmers whom the butter lobby has hoodwinked into believing that yellow margarine will hurt butter sales, and by others with a selfish axe to grind.

Favoring yellow margarine are more than a million margarine-using housewives, who now squander an estimated 144 million minutes yearly at the unnecessary and wasteful mixing task; by organized labor; by scores of civic, fraternal and patriotic organizations, and by many others who believe that in a free economy each product should compete on its own merit, and not by saddling artificial restraints on another product.

The consumer should be the boss. If she wants pre-colored margarine, there is no valid reason why she should not be permitted to buy yellow margarine. Certainly, she has enough intelligence to choose between a carefully labeled carton of margarine and a carefully labeled carton of yellow butter.

In restaurants, under the proposed law, each separate serving of margarine must be identified by the letter "M". This provision further guarantees that margarine will be sold as margarine, and butter as butter.

The butter lobbyists have waged in Ohio a campaign based on deceit, misrepresentation and vilification. They tell the farmers on one hand that yellow margarine will be so economically priced that millions of pounds of butter will be displaced. This is bunk. But on the other hand, they tell the consumers that yellow margarine will "imitate the price of butter." This also is bunk.

Following the legalization of yellow margarine, you will be able to buy both white and yellow margarine in many Ohio groceries. Yellow margarine for the time being will cost you 10 or 11 cents more than the same brand of white margarine, or just enough to cover the unfair and discriminatory federal tax on the pre-colored product.

BUT: After repeal of the federal anti-margarine laws, a virtual certainty in early 1950, you will be able to buy yellow margarine that is untaxed, ready to serve and at no extra cost. However, untaxed yellow margarine—or, for that matter, any kind of yellow margarine—cannot be sold in Ohio under any circumstances unless the Nov. 8 proposal is carried.

In Ohio, butter accounts for less than 10 cents of each $100 of Ohio income. Apart from that, Ohio has 52,000 farmers who grow soybeans for margarine, and only 39,000 who produce animal fats for butter. Should the issue be decided on the basis of self-interest, then yellow margarine would win hands down.

We say that self-interest shouldn't be considered; that the issue should be resolved on the basis of the greatest good for the most people.

SWEET TALK (just beneath an open window):

"Look what my Namma made for us!" shouted a small chap of shouting age. Some chewing and contemplation. "What's a Namma?" piped the littlest one. After a long, long pause came the answer: "A Namma is an old lady who keeps your Mother from spankin' you." (Courtesy Herald Tribune)

West Football Games Keep Record Reporter Busy

Dave Miller, Record sports writer, does double duty at the West High School football games. He is the trumpet player in the West Band who switches from music folder to pad and pencil when the band finishes the pre-game and half-time shows.

Dave takes to the side-lines during the game, jotting down a play-by-play account of the action from which he writes his sport story for The Hilltop Record. He also writes a goodly share of the sports stories appearing in the West High paper, the Occident.

His hobby is collecting sports statistics. From radio broadcasts he has collected records of all kinds of sports during the past four years. He keeps track of the Big Ten in football and basketball, and the American Association in baseball.

Dave wants to go to Northwestern University when he graduates from West, and hopes to make sports writing his full-time job some day.

Jack of all Trades: Walter Hoelcher is a handy man to have around. Monday he brought a news item into the office about the party given for him and his wife on their 25th wedding anniversary. A discussion came up over the spelling of a word in an ad. Mr. Hoelcher told us the correct spelling. One of the office girls fainted. Mr. Hoelcher helped revive her.

Before anything else could happen, he slipped quietly out the front door, even before we had a chance to say, "Thank you, Mr. Hoelcher."

What of Columbus Day?: The downtown Hallowe'en festivities brought to my mind a recent editorial in the Columbus Register that is reprinted on the editorial page of today's Record.

It is a shame that the citizens of Columbus show such apathy in the observance of Columbus Day. This is the largest city in the world named after the discoverer of the new world. Certainly a city-wide observance should be made of Oct. 12.

We heartily approve of the Register's plan of making Columbus Day one of the big holidays in the city. But the success of the plan depends on the citizens of Columbus. We suggest that you read the editorial in today's paper and add your support in making Oct. 12 a gala day for all Columbusites.

West-Garfield Game Eliminates Most Entrants

For the most part Old Man Upset stayed on the sidelines last week, so the Professor Pig-Skin games went just about as the experts predicted.

The greatest number of entrants were disqualified by not picking West over Cleveland Garfield Heights. Those who did think the Cowboys would win came pretty close to the right score.

The one-sided scores in the Mifflin-Hilliards and Iowa-Minnesota games caused this week's contestants to have a high rate of error. Last week's winner had a total point error of 11, while first prize this week was taken on a much larger point error total.

The ten dollar check for first prize is on its way to Mrs. Jennie M. Fortin, 1096 Lexington-av. Second prize of two tickets to the Westmont goes to James R. Bluhm, 1394 Sullivant-av.

This week's contest appears in the Record today.

ON HONOR LIST

Frederick Cluff, 563 S. Terrace-av, is on the summer quarter honor list of the college of education at Ohio State University for completion of all "A" work for the quarter.

Reports Secret As $3000 Contest Enters Final Week

Winners Will Be Announced At Old Trail Theater

One week from tomorrow night the winners of the big $3000 Hilltop Record Subscription Drive are to be announced from the stage of the Old Trail Theatre.

The campaign will draw to a close next Monday, Nov. 14, at 2 p. m. Anything turned in by contestants up to that time will be credited in the contest. The judges will meet immediately thereafter to certify the reports received in secret since the last report was received by The Hilltop Record two weeks ago.

At least two days will be required by the Record circulation department in making a check of the subscriptions turned in during this last period to determine if they are new or renewals. The judges will meet again some time again on Nov. 16 and certify all the winners and they will be kept secret until that evening at which time they will be announced from the stage of the Old Trail Theater at about 9 p. m.

This will be an added feature of the Hilltop YMCA "Stars of Tomorrow" finals to be held that evening from the same stage. Admission will include the announcement of the prize winners, the amateur contest finals and the regularly scheduled movie that evening.

Excitement has continued to grow in the Record sub contest and every day inquiries are being received regarding the standings of the individual contestants. No further information is available on this point however in view of the fact that all reports in this last period have been made in sealed envelopes deposited in the Ohio National Band and will not be opened until Nov. 14.

Final Rites Held Saturday For Francis W. Prince

Funeral services for Francis (Frank) W. Prince, 68, of 2525 Westwood-dr, were held Saturday at 2 p. m. at the Jerry Spears Funeral Home, Rev. Joseph B. Shellhass officiating.

Mr. Prince was manager of the rug department of Seiller's Department Store, where he was employed for six years. He had been ill for four months prior to his death Friday morning.

He was a member of the Glenwood Methodist Church, the Masons, and was a native of Iowa.

Surviving are his wife, Minnie; a son, H. Frank Prince, 2463 W. Broad-st; a daughter, Mrs. William von Brauchitsch, of Hamilton; two grandchildren; and a brother, William Prince of Guthrie, Okla.

Burial was in Sunset Cemetery.

The three judges will get together Friday and take on the difficult task of deciding the winners in the first weekly Hilltop Record - J. Curtis Allen photogenic baby and child contest.

Over $300 in prizes have been collected for the contest, and the prize list is still growing.

Judges of the contest are R[illegible] Carter, president of the Hilltop Community Council; E. B. Graham, principal of John Burroughs School; and Mrs. Martha Hegenberger.

Winners of the first week's contest will be announced in next Tuesday's Hilltop Record. The photos will also be displayed in the windows of Hilltop stores.

Valleyview Man Severely Burned By Gas Furnace

A. V. Porter, 81, of 500 N. Warren-av, was severely burned Saturday when he attempted to light the pilot burner of the gas furnace in his basement. The furnace had been out overnight. The gas exploded in his face when he ignited it.

Porter was burned about the head, face and arms. Dr. Clarence Fry, 2642 W. Broad-st, attended the victim. He is recovering "satisfactorily" at home, according to Mrs. Porter.

Mr. and Mrs. Porter have eight children, 23 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Hoge Scout Troop Wins Attendance Plaque Thursday

Troop 172 of Hoge Memorial Presbyterian Church won permanent possession of the Court of Honor Attendance Plaque last Thursday at the State Office Building. The troop has had the largest attendance of parents and friends at the last three Courts of Honor.

Cliff Matthews, field executive, presented the plaque to Ralph Duncan, scoutmaster of Troop 172. The plaque will be placed in the troop's collection of trophies.

Troop 172's Boy Scouts also were well represented at the Court of Honor. David Green and Tom Schroer were awarded their Star rank, while the following boys received Merit Badge awards: David Green, Thomas Bryant, David Rismiller, Glyndon Davis, Robert Brownlee, Tom Schroer, Jack Howell, and Don Bowes.

Hilltop Kiwanis Club To Observe National Kids Day

The Hilltop Kiwanis Club today joined the parade of clubs across the nation that will observe National Kids' Day, Saturday, Nov. 19. More than 3,000 Kiwanis clubs in the United States and Canada are scheduled to see the program in motion.

"Plans for local observance are fast nearing completion;" M. E. Sensenbrenner, president of the club, stated. They are being formulated to carry out as far as possible the real purpose of National Kids' Day which is to call attention to all children whose lives are subnormal because of handicaps—both physical and financial."

Unlike many special days on the calendar, National Kids' Day is not a commercial device, it was pointed out, and the only ones who will profit from it are underprivileged children. Funds raised through activities in connection with National Kids' Day in Columbus will be spent to benefit underprivileged children in this comunity.

"Through the National Kids' Day Foundation the Kiwanis Club of the Hilltop is able to join with literally millions of Americans in sponsoring the observance of a day set aside especially for youths." Sensenbrenner added.

Capt. Shiflet Transferred To Fort Dix, N. J.

Capt. David R. Shiflet of 219 Midland-av, is one of the 88 officers who will be transferred with the Personnel Center from Camp Kilmer to Fort Dix, N. J.

The shift is in line with economy measures announced recently by Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson calling for the closing of Camp Kilmer and 11 other Army installations.

Capt. Shiflet, has been serving at Camp Kilmer as Chief of the Statistical Branch. Entering service in 1940 as a private, he was commissioned a second lieutenant after completing the Officers Candidate School at Fort Benning, Ga. While stationed at Dutch Harbor, Alaska, with the 58th Infantry he was raised to the rank of first lieutenant. Having served over two years in Alaska, Capt. Shiflet was returned to the United States. Promoted to captain in March, 1949, while stationed at Camp Kilmer, he has also been Personnel Officer of the Replacement Division.

Capt. Shiflet holds the American Theater Ribbon, American Defense Ribbon and the Asiatic Pacific Ribbon.

YEAR ON AN ISLAND

Back From Pacific Vacation

Mr. and Mrs. Streett pose with gifts given them by the natives of Hivaoa when they left the island. The hats they wear were hand-woven by the natives. The table, bowls and other wood-work are all hand-carved.

• • •

There is a large one-room house in the valley of Taoa on the Island of Hivaoa in the Marquesas group, 3000 miles west of Peru.

It was in this house that Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Streett, 3465 Fisher-rd, spent a year among the Polynesian natives of the island.

Ralph Street designed and built houses before the war, but he always had the desire to visit the South Seas. When the war came he went to the Pacific with the Marine Corps Engineers. As soon as he was discharged he began planning the vacation.

The Streetts went first to Tahiti and from there took a small trading schooner to Hivaoa, landing in the Bay of Traitors. There were no docks on the island and the landing was made by getting in as close as possible in a whaling boat and then wading ashore.

The site they chose to build their house on offered a view of the valley, the mountain ranges of the island, and stretches of the Pacific. Native labor built the house and the single room was furnished with a dresser, trunks, a table, food lockers and a home-made oil drum stove. At first they didn't even have beds, and the man who had designed and built so many luxurious homes had to sleep in a jungle hammock.

The island abounded in game and the natives kept the Streetts well supplied with bananas, yams, plantains and other tropical foods. The Streetts kept a milk goat and two kids, wild chickens were plentiful and could be trapped or shot from the comfort of the front porch. The natives supplied the family with pigs.

Larger wild game on the island included boars and beef. Streetts tells of one hunt where two tons of boned, salted beef was brought back on the backs of 32 horses. The trip took seven hours across 20 valleys, but was worth the effort he says. Boars were harder to hunt than beef because they could not be pursued so closely on horseback and traveling through the jungle on foot was slow and tiresome. The natives hunted with spears and attempted to get above the boars in the trees before attacking.

Since there were only narrow mountain trails, the only means of travel on the island were by foot or on horseback in native carved wooden saddles.

An unusual souvenir and indication of Streett's marksmanship is the shark's jaws shown in the Mowrer, well-known world news commentator and columnist, will be the principal on the forum which is sponsored by the Columbus chapter of the United World Federalists. On the forum with Mowrer will be Murray Lincoln, of the Farm Bureau, Earl Morris, president of the Columbus Bar Association, will moderate.

Mowrer is the author of "The Nightmare of American Foreign Policy." His topic will be: "Is World Government the Answer to Russia's Threat to Us?"

Tickets are on sale at McClelland's Bookstore for fifty cents.

Community Council To Meet

The Hilltop Community Council will meet at 8 p. m. Wednesday at John Burroughs School. All member organizations of the council are urged to send representatives to this meeting.

West Division Tops Red Feather Drive

West Residential Division finished its part of the Community Chest campaign in a blaze of glory. This division, under the leadership of Mrs. Benjamin F. Knepper, 2893 W. Broad-st, came through on the final night, Nov. 4, with 101.94% of its quota of $7,300

This was the highest percent reached by any of the 17 divisions. West's finish was the more spectacular because it had to jump from 13th place in the last two days in order to take the lead. Mrs. C. O. Cramer, 188 S. Westmoor-av, served as assistant chairman.

In expressing her pleasure at West's fine showing, Mrs. Knepper praised the hard work done by all those who assisted her. "We on the Hilltop must not forget that our division included the downtown West Side, for some fine work was done there."

In the downtown West Side section, William Ewald, 937 W. Broad-st, served as colonel, and Mrs. Carl H. Bogart and Mrs. P. T. Gillie as majors.

In the Hilltop section, Ira M. Claggett, 2622 W. Broad-st, and Sarabell Henderson, 15 S. Algonquin-av, were co-colonels, and Benjamin F. Knepper and Averille M. Thorn of Hilltop YMCA worked as assistant colonels.

All eight majors in the Hilltop section rang up big percentages, with Mrs. Michael Sheakey, 361 Guernsey-av, in the lead with 121.6%. Other majors were Mrs. H. H. Hagans, Mrs. Joseph Hague, Mrs. Joseph Briggs, Mrs. Donald Dewhurst, Mrs. Harry Knipp, Mrs. Harold Mielke and Rev. R. S. Parr.

Gail Hinton Wins Church Speech Award

By Myron T. Seifert

Gail Hinton, 14, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray E. Hinton, 2739 Sutton-av, was selected as Hilltop's best speaker in the Prince of Peace Declamation contest held at the Hilltop Church of Christ Sunday evening, Nov. 6.

Miss Hinton gave a talk on "Pursuit of Happiness," before an audience of Hilltop church goers.

By virtue of this honor she was awarded a bronze medal and is eligible to compete in the county contest the first Sunday in December.

If Miss Hinton wins the county contest she automatically becomes eligible to vie for district honors in January.

Study Plans To Rebuild State School Wing Here

Investigations are still under way to determine whether it is practical to repair or rebuild the fire-damaged south wing of the administration building of the State School on W. Broad-st, according to John H. Lamneck, state welfare director.

According to Lamneck, work funds are now available for either repairing or rebuilding the structure. The attic and third floor of the wing were destroyed by fire last Wednesday afternoon.

Gov. Lausche ordered the investigations while he was on the grounds watching the fire. He requested Atty. Gen. Herbert S. Duffy, who accompanied him at the fire, to learn the cause of the fire. Under Duffy, the State Highway Patrol is conducting this investigation.

The other inquiry is being handled by Lamneck to determine whether the fire-struck building can be repaired satisfactorily, and also what the cost of a new fire-proof dormitory would be.

Lamneck stated that funds available exceed the bids that have been submitted. Damages totaled $300,000.

Carl Henry At Classified Clinic

Carl E. Henry, Record classified manager, is attending an annual Classified Clinic of the Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers Association in Harrisburg, Pa., set for Nov. 7-8, at the Penn Harris Hotel.

An extensive program devoted to the latest developments in classified advertising will be arranged. Top classified managers and advisers will be on the speakers' list of the two day convention.

Henry is a member of the American Newspaper Classified Advertising Managers Association.

Marine Recruiting At West High Called 'Success'

The Marine Corps Reserve recruiting program at West High School on Wednesday, Nov. 2, was a success, it was reported today by Capt. Charles S. Robertson, USMC.

Six West High students reported to the Marine Reserve Center at Fort Hayes for their general classification tests. Four passed the exam and have been ordered to stand by for physical checkups at Port Columbus. Names of the new citizen Marines will be released after their physical examining has been completed.

Capt. Robertson, together with Corp. J. A. Whitten, appeared at West High School during a 40 minute optional assembly for boys eligible for the Marine Corps Reserve. After showing the movie, "Centerville, U. S. A.", the Marines discussed the benefits of the reserve as applied to young men in Columbus. Seventy-five boys attended the assembly.

Hilltop Cyclist Injured Thurs.

Harry Fetheroff, 36, of 1963 Doren-av, was injured Thursday evening when his motorcycle ran into the door of a parked auto owned by Robert Martin, 22, of 1735 Sullivant-av. The cycle then swerved into a mail truck driven by John Bethel, 24, of 124 N. Princeton-av.

The accident occured at Spring-st and Marconi-blvd, police reported, when the cycle crashed into the car door as Martin was getting out. The mail truck dragged Fetheroff 20 feet.

SINCLAIR INJURED BY FALL

George Sinclair, 109 Powhatan-av, suffered bruises and shock Sunday when he fell 10 feet from his garage loft to the cement floor. According to Mrs. Sinclair, he was released from Mt. Carmel Hospital Monday morning and is recovering at home.

Plan Armistice Day Breakfast

Making plans for the Armistice Day breakfast of Camp Chase Post, American Legion, are, left to right, seated, Mrs. Lillian McVay, auxiliary president; Robert G. Daggett, post commander; Mrs. Hitchcock, chairman of the breakfast committee, and, standing, Dewey A. Stout, co-chairman. The breakfast will be held at the post on Friday, Nov. 11, from 6 to 9 a. m. Following the breakfast members will participate in the downtown parade.

Take Hike As Part of Leadership Course

Kelly-Collins Bans, Solemnized In Oct. 28 Rites, Are Announced

Miss Clara G. Kelly, 179 N. Powell-av, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John R. Kelly, and Mr. Ted R. Collins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey F. Collins, Radcliffe, O., were united in marriage in a home ceremony Monday, Oct. 28, at 7:30 p. m. with the Rev. George C. Chambers, pastor of the Calvary Apostolic Church, officiating.

The bride, given away in marriage by her brother, Mr. John Arthur Kelly, was attired in a grey winter gabardine dress matching accessories and an orchid corsage. Her matron of honor and only attendant was her sister, Mrs. Wanda Ward, who wore an aqua suit, black accessories and a corsage of baby pink rosebuds.

Mr. Collins' best man was Mr. Leslie Click, brother-in-law of the bride.

A reception followed the ceremony at the home, 179 N. Powell-av, with only the immediate family attending.

The new Mrs. Collins attended Central High School and was formerly associated with the Cussins and Fearn Company.

Mr. Collins was graduated from Finton High School, Radcliffe, and is now employed at Curtis-Wright.

HEALTH

THE TOIL OF DOCTORS and Scientists, free and unhampered, has built American health to the highest level in the world.

Almost all the millions of Americans are honest people, who want improvements and progress in medical care. Your own Doctor, and 125,000 more like him, are daily working step by step toward that end. They are primarily interested in the quality of medical care that saves lives.

Focus the spotlight of your good judgment on the advantages of voluntary selection of your own physician; voluntary selection of the kind of prepaid medical and hospital care that fits your needs, for less than Federal deductions would cost.

Turn that spotlight of honest commonsense on the inevitable consequences of Compulsory Health Insurance—lowered quality of health and medical care.

Candles, Ferns, Palms Adorn Glenwood Church For Double Ring Ceremony Which Unites Miss Millicent Frey and Mr. Wright

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin M. Wright

Seven-branch candelabra, ferns and palms formed the background for the wedding of Miss Dorothy Millicent Frey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Frey, 107 S. Westmoor-av, and Mr. Edwin Maurice Wright, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gay Wright, 26 N. Huron-av. Rev. Joseph B. Shellhaas officiated at the double ring ceremony which took place at 7:30 p. m., Oct. 15, at the Glenwood Methodist Church in the presence of the families.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of candlelight satin, fashioned along princess lines with an off-shoulder effect, a yoke of marquisette, and long sleeves which extended in points over her wrist. The full skirt terminated in a short train. Her fingertip veil of illusion, bordered in heart-shaped lace, was held in place by a tiara of seed pearls. Her bouquet was white roses and stephanotis, centered with a purple orchid. The bride's only jewelry was a single strand of baby pearls, a gift of the bridegroom.

Attending her sister as matron of honor, was Mrs. R. L. Ealy, who wore a torquoise satin gown styled with and off-shoulder neckline, fitted bodice, and a very full skirt. Miss Barbara Cohagin, bridesmaid, wore a pink champagne gown fashioned similar to that of the matron of honor. Both attendants carried bouquets of red roses and wore halos of lilies of the valley.

Little Sharon Decker was flower girl and wore an off-shoulder floor length gown of pale pink organdy. She carried a basket of rose petals and assorted flowers. She, too, had a headpiece of lilies of the valley.

Thomas Burbridge, nephew of the groom carried the rings on a satin pillow.

Mr. Gaymon Wright, brother of the groom, was the best man. Mr. Ernest Gease served as usher.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at Schmelzer's Restaurant for the immediate families.

The new Mrs. Wright is a graduate of West High School and is now employed by the Ohio Bell Telephone Company. Mr. Wright was graduated from Hilliards High School and is now asociated with General Motors, Inc.

For their wedding trip the couple drove to New York City and Niagara Falls.

Meat's Too Rare, Skirts Are Shorter, But Mrs. Gilmore Found Paris 'Fascinating'

Interesting, fascinating and inconvenient" might be added to the term "gay Paree," as it was described by Mrs. Lillian Gilmore upon her return from France this summer. Mrs. Gilmore, a resident with her mother, Mrs. Katherine Sturdevant, of Los Angeles, Calif., is staying at present with her brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Sturdevant, 306 S. Brinker-av. She reached the New York Harbor in the Polish ship, Sobieski, Oct. 25.

Visited Sons

The former Hilltopper (before 1931) made the trip to Europe last spring to visit her two sons, Richard and Robert, who have been studying music at the Conservatoire du Musique du Paris Cite Universitaire for the past two and a half years. They will finish their four year course in another 18 months. The two men had previously made their debut as concert pianists in Los Angeles and were later inducted into the army, which then took them to Europe. They are now taking a special course in Nice which teaches them the whole musical form. Mrs. Gilmore had not seen her sons for more than two years.

While abroad she spent three weeks with Mr. and Mrs. A. Goldberg, former residents of Columbus. Mr. Goldberg was, at the time, bureau chief of the Associated Press in Paris. He is now residing in New York with his wife.

Only after a stay of three months was Mrs. Gilmore able to find an apartment, for, she says, "the housing situation over there is even worse than here, for no one, according to Neapolitan custom, is ever evicted." She was able to find a place to live only after some American friends vacated their apartment for a few months.

French Women "Ugly"

Despite their reputation as leaders in style and fashion, Mrs. Gilmore found that the average French girl does not have the time, inclination, or money to dress neatly and in the latest fashion. She does not have the "shining neatness" that the American girl has. A secretary with a knowledge of two languages, she said, was paid only $60 a month. And, asserts Mrs. Gilmore, "despite the glamorous hairdos and costumes assumed by some, most of the women are very ugly." Under the dictation of fashion leader Jacques Fath, the New Look (introduced by French designer Dior) has been replaced by skirts 14½ inches from the ground. To get a taste of the fabulous hairdos worn by some French mesdames, Mrs. Gilmore had her hair set by Victoire; reported "it lasted two days, but only with the aid of three hairnets."

The American found that, although the French woman brags about her ability to keep her husband happy and faithful, she accomplishes it only through sacrificing all her own rights and submitting to her mate and waiting upon him. As for the average French man, well renowned for his romantic powers, Mrs. Gilmore proclaimed, "I wouldn't have him!"

Meat Too Rare

The French are almost equally well known as connoisseurs of fine food, but Mrs. Gilmore exploded a few theories along this line also. Her biggest complaint was that their meat was always too rare. She said that she usually was forced to send her portion back to be recooked. As for their sandwiches, well, "They don't know how to make them at all!" These were usually concocted from two very thick slices of bread with a tissue-thin slice of meat between and no butter or mustard or seasoning. The meals were always served in courses and this took "forever." In one restaurant, the visitor from California asked for a combination salad, but was forced to order three separate salads to make the desired type since a combination salad was unheard of in Paris.

Food is almost as plentiful ever there as it is here with only coffee and sugar still on the rationed list. Butter and milk were just taken off, according to Mrs. Gilmore.

She was also dissatisfied with the French stores' habit of selling bread without any wrapping. The bread was ususlly carried out of the store under arm or "thrown in with the other groceries." When Mrs. Gilmore asked for "un morceau du papier" to wrap up her bread, she was given a piece about four inches square!

Few Conveniences

The French women are forced to do without many modern conveniences. For instance, the ordinary houses are not equipped with screens, so flies can run rampant. And then, too, there are few refrigerators in France. The cook buys her meat and perishable on a day-to-day basis. The butter is usually in a melted state.

But, despite all the undesirable parts of Paris, Mrs. Gilmore still said that she "loved to walk up and down the Champs Elysees looking in the windows, and watching the multitude of nationalities that passed by." Paris, she asserted, is the "gayest city in the world."

Mrs. Gilmore ascended the Eiffel Tower three times, two of which she took natives with her who had never been in the lofty structure before. She also spent six weeks in the Riviera, Monte Carlo and Nice.

Before coming here to stay with Mr. and Mrs. Sturdevant, Mrs. Gilmore visited with two other brothers in Michigan, Mr. and Mrs. Ashby C. Sturdevant, Royal Oak, and Mr. and Mrs. Haven Sturdevant of Detroit. Both were former residents of Columbus.

Mrs. Gilmore will appear on Rhea McCarty's television program over WTVN this afternoon.

Miss Peters To Wed Mr. Payton Nov. 18 On 'Bride and Groom'

The approaching marriage of Miss Sophia M. Peters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Peters, 506 Miller-av, to Mr. Neal D. Payton, son of Mrs. M. Payton, 137 Wisconsin-av, is being announced. The couple will be married on the "Bride and Groom" radio program, Friday, Nov. 18, in Hollywood, Calif. The actual wedding will take place off the radio, but they will be interviewed on the radio before and after the ceremony.

Miss Peters attended East High School and learned to fly at the Northway Flying School and Jones Flying Service. She is now employed at the Snyder Aircraft Corporation, Sullivant Avenue Airport, and is also associated with air shows doing aerobatics in her glider throughout the central United States.

Mr. Payton attended Central High School, Centinary College, Shreveport, La., for a year, learned to fly at the Northway/Flying Service, where he received his private, commercial, flight instructor and multi-engine rating, and also served with the army air farces. He is now employed as a flight instructor with the Northway Airpark, Columbus, and is a partner in the Aerial Advertising Service (towing banners over town)

Knowledge is Power

Are Schooldays nearly over for your boy or girl? Have you realized how fast the children are growing up?

For children do grow up . . . which leads me to ask if you've given much thought to your children's future lately? I mean, whether they'll go to college to prepare themselves adequately for what life has in store for them. Almost every boy and girl would like a college education, of course, but wishing is not enough. There are fees to consider, tuition costs, maintenance allowances, incidental expenses and such-like. Fortunately these items, large though they may seem if not foreseen and provided for, can be budgeted with ease by planning proper arrangements in time. I wonder how many of you know that the Educational Policy issued by the Sun Life of Canada has been developed to take care of just such a job. By small, regular payments during a portion of their school years, your boy or girl may be assured an arranged amount for the definite purpose of meeting college fees. This amount would be paid by the Sun Life of Canada each year during the period of collegiate training. At the same time there would also be a monthly income available to cover miscellaneous expenses incidental to education. The plan includes, too, an interesting insurance feature safeguarding both parent and child in the event of the death of either before the primary objective of the contract is accomplished. Successful men and women today will tell you there is no better investment than higher education . . . why not make sure of it?

Let me Help You to Help Your Children.

About Folks You Know

Goings & Comings — Doings
Of Your Hilltop Neighbors

By Helen James, Society Editor

Mr. and Mrs. James R. Dow, 93 N. Princeton-av, just arrived back from a wonderful trip to France, where Mrs. Dow was born and still has two sisters. Another one lives in Bruxelles, Belgium. While there they also toured Holland, Germany, Switzerland, and Italy. They took a swim in Omaha Beach where American soldiers landed during the last war. It was the first time that Mr. Dow had seen Paris and his sisters-in-law. Although the French have "just about everything in food", the cost of living is much higher, report the Dows.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Kilgore, 465 S. Warren-av, recently-arrived from Pittsburgh, Pa., went back to their native city for the game over the week-end. Wonder which side they rooted for.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Marshall, 305 N. Grener-rd, returned from a 480-mile trip west. Among other interesting spots, they visited Tuscon, Ariz., the Merrimac Caverns, Missouri, Oklahoma, New Mexico, the Painted Desert, the Grand Canyon, also saw Graham Engles, former Hilltop boy, in Phoenix, Ariz., spent a few days with Mr. Marshall's niece in Tempe, Ariz., crossed the border at El. Paso, Texas, and shopped in Mexico, saw the Carlsbad Caverns, and visited friends in Clarksville, Texas, where they picked pecans "right off the tree."

We are happy to report that Jo McCray, the blonde who works at Wilson's Drugs, will be back to work Monday after a two weeks' absence.

And the Richard Anthonys, recently of West Jefferson, proudly report the birth of a five pound-eight-and-three quarter-ounce son born Thursday, Nov. 3, who will be named Richard Junior. Mrs. Anthony is the former Doris Dellinger. Mr. Anthony is assistant director at the Mount Calvary settlement. They lived at 158 N. Powell-av, on the Hilltop.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mitchell, 385 Binns-blvd, have now evened it up. Last Thursday, they had a new baby boy, giving them a total of three boys and three girls.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Foote and children, Wilma, who moved from 499 S. Highland-av, to Dayton four years ago report a new address: 214 S. Main-st. Englewood, O., (near Dayton).

Ralph Clements, 320 Powhatan-av, William Green, 228 S. Southampton, and Robert South, 3250 Fisher-rd, drove up to Cleveland last week-end for the Cleveland Browns-San Francisco '49 ers' football game.

And four-year-old Michael Porter, 57 S. Eureka-av, was brought home yesterday from University Hospital where he underwent an eye operation. He is reported to be completely recovered except for final check-ups.

Owner Seeks New Name For Sandwich Shop

Wright's Sandwich Shop, 3671 Sullivant-av, has changed owners and will change names around the first of the year. The new name will be up to you.

Mrs. Cora Geddes, new owner of the eatery, has announced that a box will be provided for customers to submit their ideas of what would be a suitable name. The one choosing the name will be awarded five dollars in cash or merchandise.

Judges in the contest are Sam Clark, 159 Binns-blvd; Leonard Huger, 706 S. Terrace-av; and Bill Coon, 338 N. Warren-av.

Specialties of the shop will still be cheeseburgers and French fries, Mrs. Geddes said.

Mr. and Mrs. Geddes are long-time residents of the Hilltop. They live at 819 S. Hague-av.

accompanying picture. From a rock overlooking the sea, he shot four sharks. The large jaws of one with its rows of gleaming teeth is preserved in the museum of the Sisters of St. Joseph of Cluny in Paris.

The 12 islands of the group belong to France. The Streetts chose these islands because they are outside the malaria belt. However, they found the natives afflicted with the dread disease of elephantiasis.

Th natives received free medical treatment from the Streett's first aid kit, and in return not only kept them supplied with food, but chopped the wood for the stove and loaded them down with gifts when they left. Streett tells of one old man, for whom he pulled a tooth, who brought him a log of rare, aromatic, sandle wood from which he carved the cane he holds in the picture.

As the weather grows cooler on the Hilltop the Streetts often think of their island home. They think of the old native and his daughter who "adopted" them, doing much of the work around the house. They think of Pere Mathias Yann, the French missionary priest, who has had a church on the island for 28 years. Latest word from Pere Yann is that he can even gallop his horse, "Lulu", since the Streetts sent him the new frame to hold his glasses on.

Streett wants to return to the islands some day, but for the present he is thinking of starting back to work. "I like the Hilltop and may start building here," he said.

And what was one of the advantages in living on a South Sea island? "For one year my wife never once had to have money to go on a shopping trip."

State School Blaze Third Nov. Fire In Institution; Others Raged In 1868, 1881

By Myron T. Seifert

The fire at the State School last week calls to mind two former conflagrations at mental institutions in the city. All three of the fires happened in November.

The burning of the Central Lunatic Asylum was Nov. 18, 1868. Thirteen years later, again on Nov. 18, the Imbecile School, on the site of the present State School, was destroyed.

Similarities In Fires

There are several similarities between the 1881 fire and the fire last week. In both cases no lives were lost, and the orderly evacuation was attributed to the training of the inmates to fall in line and quickly leave the building. In both instances the superintendent of the institution personally took charge of the evacuation.

"Shortly after 10 o'clock a fire alarm was sounded from Box 91, which is located at the Institution for Idiotic and Imbecile Youth," the Ohio State Journal of November, 1881, announced to the people of Columbus and the country folks who resided "way out west" several miles from the city limits.

The press recounted how all the Columbus fire departments, then numbering three, responded "except the Oak Street Division." Folks from miles around hurried to see what had happened. In fact, the Journal continued, "The crossings on High-st, commanding a view of the institution, the windows and every point of vantage on the buildings in the city from which the fire could be seen were crowded with spectators in spite of the steady downpour of rain, watching the fire gradually gain mastery over the great central building until every window and opening was readily outlined by the long billows of flame that poured forth, rendering the scene dimly visible through the sheets of rain and rolling volumes of fog over the lowlands that intervene between the city and the asylum."

Cause of Blaze Unknown

Starting in the basement in the rear of the central part of the main building, it is doubtful if the origin of the great conflagration will ever be known. Many theories have been advanced, but none officially accepted.

Word was sent to the Insane Asylum hospital for as many of the employes as could possibly be spared. More than half of its staff was rushed to render aid where possible. Heroic deeds performed during Hilltop's worst fire were legion.

Safety of the patients was the first consideration. Nothing was done toward saving anything from the castle-like rooms until those helpless ones, confided to the charge of the state by their friends, were all safely housed in a new barn, just recently erected, through the kind and efficient supervision of Dr. Doren of the institution.

Training Saves Lives

The Morning Journal said of the discipline there, "Part of the training these children receive is to fall into rank at the word of command, and so firmly had this habit been implanted in their minds that the great majority did so, and were marched at once to safe quarters. Others became frightened and huddled down on their accustomed seats, or ran aimlessly up and down the corridors until friendly arms seized them and removed them from the doomed structure."

When the fire broke out, the regular routine of the institution was proceeding as usual, the majority of the children being at their tasks in the school rooms.

Dr. Doren was at his desk in the front offices when the alarm was given. He rushed from the room and devoted his energies from the first to averting the possibility of an appalling loss of life, by superintending the removal of the inmates.

London Firemen Called

It was obvious that the Columbus Fire Department could not cope with the situation and flames engulfed the entire central structure. The London Fire Department was telegraphed for aid.

The fire department from the Madison county seat responded "with the utmost speed, some 15 or 18 men bringing over a steamer and horses." Chief Tresenrider of the Columbus Fire Department praised the work of the Londonites.

Columbus then possessed only three of the old Silsbee Steamers, and the one at the "Flowers Engine House" was the only one working, said the newspaper.

Contents of the main building were all destroyed. It was occupied by the superintendent, Dr. Doren, and his family, and the sleeping apartments of most of the teachers and employes of the institution were within its walls.

All these, from superintendent down, had none of their personal belongings saved.

Dr. Doren obtained an old cap belonging to one of the boys, as he did not take time to seize his hat when the alarm was given.

The loss of clothing and personal effects was especially hard on many of the ladies. One of the teachers had $100 in her trunk and a fine new sewing machine in her room. One of the kitchen girls had $300 in bills burned with her trunk.

With nothing except indoor clothing, no wraps, hats or overshoes, these ladies were out in the pouring rain, walking in mud and mire, attending to the safety and comfort of their charges.

Their garments were, in some cases, completely drenched. Several public spirited citizens sent supplies of such articles as were needed and Jas. Dunn extended an invitation to as many ladies as could be accommodated to "come in and take free quarters at the St. Charles until Monday."

The city police remained on duty until 6 o'clock in the evening, when the crowd of sightseers had been driven homeward by the inclement weather and the approach of darkness.

The firemen worked nobly in the mud and rain, drenched to the skin, and added to their already well-earned reputation. Dr. Rutteer, of the insane asylum, sent over a bountiful dinner at 2 o'clock for the firemen, police and the attaches of his own institution, who had been detailed to assist, and repeated the courtesy at supper.

The first press report was sent out before noon, on this memorable Nov. 18, to the effect that the imbecile asylum was on fire, and apparently doomed to total destruction. Unfortunately it was not stated that the inmates were all safe, and must have caused a terrible anxiety on the part of relatives and friends of the 600 inmates.

All the afternoon Dr. Doren was deluged with messages inquiring about the safety of the inmates, from all quarters of the state. People came in on all the evening trains, tortured with all the pangs of uncertainty on the journey, to look personally after children.

One little fellow, a promising pupil, cried as his heart would break over the loss of his mother's picture, which was destroyed with the building and, clinging to his teacher's neck, repeated between his sobs, "Oh, what shall I do?"

Mrs. Madge Miller Funeral Wednesday

Funeral services for Mrs. Madge Hazel Millar will be held at 2 p. m. Wednesday at the Floyd Born Funeral Home, Rev. Joseph Shellhaas officiating.

Mrs. Miller is survived by one daughter, Margaret Branscomb; one sister, Mrs. Pearl Reppert, California; and one grandchild. She was a member of the Glenwood Methodist Church.

Interment will be in Greenlawn Cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks to the many relatives, friends and neighbors who gave kind assistance, messages of sympathy and beautiful floral offerings during the illness and death of our dear Mother, L. Clara Smith.

We are very grateful to the Doctors and Nurses, Rev. A. J. Wold and the Allen Funeral Home.

DEATHS

Walter Gossenz Dies At Home

Walter James Gossenz, 63, former dancer, vaudeville trooper, circus clown and theater manager, died of a heart attack Wednesday night at his residence, 529 Columbian-av.

Known professionally as Bobby Gossans, he performed with the Al G. Field Minstrels, clowned with the Ringling Bros. Circus, and managed the old Knickerbocker Theater for 10 years. At his death, Mr. Gossenz and his wife, Inez, operated a cigar and news stand.

A native of Columbus, he started his theatrical career at 12 as an "extra" in a mob scene in a play at the Southern Theater.

At 15 Walter joined Comedian Billy Linke and traveled with him for a year, then joined Al G. Field Minstrels. Later he traveled with the Beach & Bowers Minstrels, Sun Brothers Circuit, and Sells-Floto and Ringling Bros. circuses.

While trouping with the Sun Brothers Circuit, he met his wife. She took part in many shows with her husband. When they left the road, they returned to Columbus, established their home, and Mr. Gossenz became manager of the Knickerbocker Theater. Illness forced his retirement about [illegible].

Besides his wife he leaves two sisters, Mrs. Clara Wooley of Columbus, and Mrs. Emma Wood of Cleveland, and one niece, Mrs. Pauline Eckelbarger of Columbus.

Mrs. Betty Clark Funeral Today

Mrs. Betty Elizabeth Clark, 58, of 5596 Alkire-rd, died Saturday in a Columbus hospital. She was a native of Wayne, W. Va., and a member of the Baptist Church.

Widow of William K. Clark, she is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Alger, Columbus; Mrs. Rose Ann Slane of the residence, and Mrs. Naomi Dean, Goldsboro, N. C.; four sons, Jamison C. and William C. Clark, Columbus; Joshua and Henry Clark, Huntington, W. Va.; four brothers, Charles and Wayne Marcum, De Boston, W. Va., and one sister, Mrs. Naomi Lang, Canton.

Funeral services were held at 10:30 a. m. Tuesday at the Jerry Spears Funeral Home. Burial was in Wesley Chapel Cemetery.

Infant Son Dies Soon After Birth

Private funeral services for the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde W. Holloway, 421 S. Eureka-av, were held at 3:30 p. m. Monday. Burial was in Forest Lawn Cemetery. The baby, one of twins, died shortly after birth Saturday in Mt. Carmel Hospital.

Besides the parents and the infant's twin sister, the child is survived by a brother and sister.

Mrs. Underwood Dies In New Rome

Services for Mrs. Cora Underwood, 80, of 264 Fernhill-av, New Rome, who died Thursday night in her home, were held at 1 p. m. Saturday. Burial was in Union Cemetery.

Surviving are a sister, Mrs. Maude Vincent, and a brother, Fred DeVore, both of Dayton.

Mrs. Thomas Bell Dies Friday

Mrs. Mildred Claire Bell, 55, died Friday in her residence, 296 S. Eureka-av.

She is survived by her husband, Thomas H. Bell; two daughters, Barbara Bell and Mrs. Jack Mitchell; two sons, James J. and Thomas R. Bell, all of Columbus, and three grandchildren.

Funeral services for Mrs. Bell were at 2 p. m. Monday.

The Order of Eastern Star, of which Mrs. Bell was a member, held services at 1:30 p. m. Burial was in Greenlawn Cemetery.

Mrs. M. Flaherty Last Rites Today

Mrs. Margaret M. Flaherty, 70, of 148 N. Guilford-av, died Saturday at her home after two weeks' illness.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. Marie Meyer; a son, John W. Flaherty; five grandchildren; four sisters, Mrs. Nell Cocharne, Mrs. Julia Miller, Mrs. Agnes Bohes and Loretta Maloney; and two brothers, Will and Charles Maloney.

Requiem high mass was sung Tuesday at 9 a. m. in St. Aloysius Church, and burial was in St. Joseph Cemetery.

George E. Fetsch Dies In Hospital

George E. Fetsch, 69, of 349 Midland-av, died Thursday in University Hospital. A member of St. Aloysius Church, he was an employe of the New York Central Railroad.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Earl F. Jackson of the Midland Ave. address, and a brother, Carl T. Fetsch of San Francisco, Calif.

Services were held in St. Aloysius Church at 9 a. m. Monday.

Burial was in Sunset Cemetery by the Jerry Spears Funeral Home.

Hilltop Man Found Hanged In Basement

Louis Breniser, 54, of 32 N. Powell-av, was found hanged by a rope in the basement of the home where he roomed, shortly after 7 p. m. Monday, police reported.

His body was discovered by his landlady, Mrs. Lena Winger.

Dr. Robert A. Evans, coroner, said the death was apparently a suicide. He ordered the body to the Wylie S. Shroyer Funeral Home where funeral arrangements are being completed.

A brother, Otto Breniser, of Grove City, survives.

Wins Gas Range In Slogan Contest

Mrs. Arlee Embleton, 603 S. Hague-av, is the proud owner of a new Tappan gas range, one of the top prizes in the Community Chest Slogan Contest.

Announcement of the winners and awarding of prizes took place Friday noon at a meeting of the Columbus Advertising Club in the Deshler-Wallick Hotel.

Other Hilltop winners in the contest are Mrs. W. E. Bohlender, 95 N. Harris-av, a Philco table model radio; and Charles L. Cook, 186 S. Brinker-av, baseball [illegible].

What Other Editors Say

What of Columbus Day?

A stranger passing through Columbus on Oct. 12 would notice little difference in the daily routine of the city. And yet for Columbusites and for all Americans it should be a day of particular significance, for it was the anniversary of the day on which Christopher Columbus landed in the New World.

True, there were celebrations — the traditional wreath-laying at his statue in the State House grounds and a few scattered social gatherings, but nothing of the city-wide holiday spirit that one would expect to find in the largest city in the world named after the intrepid Italian navigator.

We in Columbus are dwarfed repeatedly by the founder's day celebrations in much smaller communities throughout the nation and even in our own area, but yet what founder's day ceremony has the intrinsic potentialities of a Columbus day celebration in Columbus.

It could easily be an event that would attract nation-wide attention, fit for transmission to the nation and even the world via newsreels, radio, and television broadcasts. We could rival the Mardi Gras of New Orleans with our parades, our floats, our wholehearted cooperation in honoring the man who opened the gates of a westward immigration that now totals more than 145,000,000 people in the United States alone, not to mention the millions in Canada and South America.

When in a city of this size, named after the discoverer of our country, such an anniversary can pass with only token observance, it reflects unfavorably on the inhabitants. It shows a lack of pride and appreciation for those who made possible our present stage of civilization.

Today the Western hemisphere, which owes its discovery to Columbus, controls the balance of power for the governing of the world. Europe is dying, but the America of Christopher Columbus stands out as the anchor of hope for all civilization.

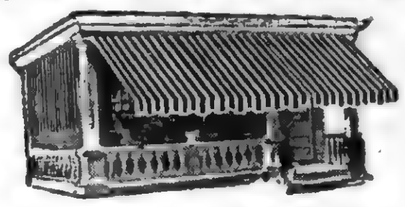
Letters to Editor

Dear Editor:



It has been a great pleasure to read "Thatcher's Daily Doings" in The Record the past weeks.

We thank Newton for spending so much time to bring these far-away places closer to us by such wonderful descriptions of sights, sounds and even smells, that they encountered.

We know that Violet and Newton left a ray of sunshine and feeling of neighborliness with many people of other lands where it is so sorely needed.

JOE MARTELL SAYS . . .

How To Paper A Room--Or Haste Wastes Paste

There comes a time in a woman's life when she decides that she is getting sick of the same old wallpaper in the dining room and off it's going to come. The husband takes a place in the spotlight, more or less, when she looks at him over the ham and eggs one morning and says: "Emmy Snafflebinder's husband papered their bedroom all by himself and it looks beautiful!"

Since you are wholly unprepared for such a statement, you are caught off guard and you may reply: "I can paper a room just as good as he can, or better!" Well, chum, you've said it; you're caught like a rat in a trap; you didn't know that the little woman has the paper, paste, and brush safely hid in the hall closet and you ultimately learn that tomorrow (your day off) she will visit her mother for the day and leave you alone to enjoy that delightful pastime known as "papering a room". Golf can wait!

Now this so-called ordeal can prove to be a very happy occasion if you go about it in the right way. First of all, you will unquestionably need help. It may be a good idea to call up those other three pals of yours whom you were going golfing with. Without a word of lie, tell them that you have planned something different for them to do tomorrow instead of the usual 18 holes. Direct them to come over early in the morning for a "big surprise". You can readily understand it would not do to reveal to them you're going to paper a room. Then, of course, the surprise angle will whet their curiosity to such a pitch that they will anticipate tomorrow with much fervor.

In case you have never engaged in this type of work before, the first thing you must do before the helpers arrive is to move all the furniture out of the room. This procedure gives the room a bare effect, which you may readily note. Since this is done the previous night, as soon as your wife leaves the next morning (early), you place a folding table three feet square (approximately) and four folding chairs around the table. Next you get out the car and make a fast trip to town and procure six large bottles of scotch, a few assorted fifths of whiskey, a couple of jugs of gin, lemons, mixers, and the usual ingredients that go with refreshments. Get plenty of chips, too—potato and poker.

The next morning, as soon as you see the fellows pull up to the front door, greet them with a tray of drinks. A favorite concoction of all good paper hangers is quite tasty and easily prepared. Take one-fifth whiskey (or scotch), the juice of one-half lemon, 4 table-spoonsful soda water, 4 ice cubes and shake vigorously. Pour equal amounts into 4 tall glasses. Serves 4. (Care should be taken to use not too much soda water because if an excessive amount is used, it may impair the taste and consistency of the finished product). This toast, you might call it, should be downed in the living room and under no circumstances must your aides be ushered into that naked dining room before cocktails.

After the coughing and choking has been reduced to a minimum, you slyly maneuver them into the room in question and seat them around the table which has heretofore been placed in the center of the room. If a comment is passed on the absence of furniture, rustle them up another "paper-hanger's special" and they'll forget all about it. If, however, a comment is passed about the absence of your wife, tell them she got violent yesterday afternoon when the local radio station called up and asked her who the George Washington Bridge was named after and she muffed the answer and lost out on a '49 Ford. In fact, you can elaborate on this somewhat and tell them she got so bad you had her committed to a mental institution. This is always good for a big laugh.

Now the next phase of papering a room is simple and all will fall in line with the procedure as you take a deck of cards and deal each man five, one at a time, (including yourself). They will notice that little round disks in colors of blue, white, green and red, are stacked in front of them. In no time at all they will discover that these disks will be pushed to and from the center of the table at various intervals. It will also be observed that some will have more disks than others. Now spend the rest of the day pushing and pulling disks and drinking the "paper hanger specials".

Well, I guess that's all there is to papering a room. And you can see that while it is a tedious job, you can make a sporting game out of it. Your wife, too, will enjoy the sports that the West has to offer. Reno is swell country!

Girl Scout News

By Pat Martindale

Oct. 15 was a successful day for the Girl Scouts and their leaders, who attended the Scouts' Own at Clime Farm, in more ways than one. First, the weather was beautiful, and second, 186 girls were present. The parents attended both the cookout and the evening ceremony, last but not least, a good time was had by all. The theme was "The Fire" and the following troops and their leaders took part in the program: Mrs. W. Glass, Troop 8; Mrs. F. Brady, 146; Mrs. D. Caton, 117; Mrs. C. Spohn, 185; Mrs. H. Beck, 104; Mrs. R. Eyerman, 203; Mrs. R. Haughn, 152; Mrs. G. Mencks, 112; Mrs. W. Miller, 252; Mrs. H. Cline, 269; Mrs. Houghton, 225; Mrs. Deitchley, 103; Mrs. G. Almon, 204; Mrs. P. Martin, 13; Mrs. S. Reinhard, 348; Mrs. Close, 249; Mrs. K. Martindale, 251; Mrs. Grady and Mrs. Barrett.

Mrs. H. C. Booth supervised the affair with the following committee assisting: program, Mrs. Walter Glass, site chairman, Mrs. George Almon; notices, Mrs. Melvin Craig; and publicity, Mrs. Kenneth Martindale. The singing was directed by Mary Ruth Hiel and Joan Smith.

A district meeting was held last week at the home of Mrs. H. C. Booth, district chairman. Plans for the coming Christmas entertainment were discussed. It was announced that the Intermediate and Senior Scouts and their leaders would serve doughnuts and coffee at the Community Council Hallowe'en party at West High School, Oct. 31. The Scouts will also act as ushers and hostesses.

The annual Girl Scout Calendar sale started Oct. 15 and will end Nov. 15. This year the calendars are especially attractive with colorful pictures of Scout activities, corresponding with each month of the year. The dates are visible from a distance and each day has a space for memos or notations.

On Sunday, Nov. 6 Brownie Troop 254 and their leaders, Mrs. Marie Barrett and Mrs. Delores Grant, committee members, Mrs. Herold, Mrs. F. Harris, Mrs. L. Dooley, Mrs. M. Wolfe and Mrs. D. Gowan will receive their pins at an investiture service in St. Aloysius Church after 8 o'clock mass. A troop "Fly Up" will follow by Troop 251. Rev. John Simon will present the pins and wings.

Brownie Troops 250, 251 and 254 held a Hallowe'en party in the school annex last Wednesday. Prizes were given for the most original, the funniest and the prettiest costumes. The St. Aloysius teachers were the judges. The leaders and committee members of the three troops served the refreshments.

St. Aloysius Neighborhood Brownie Troop 250 took part in a Safety Time program Saturday, Oct. 22, over Radio Station WOSU. Mrs. John Goetz, Mrs. Hilderbrandt, Mrs. Kenneth Martindale and Thomas O'Brien accompanied the girls.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

"WE HAVE BEEN very worried about you," Ben scolded, coming forward.

"Yes, what have you been up to?" teased Fanny. Marvell sank down on an ottoman at her feet and Ben loomed in a fatherly manner above them both. He could never remain long annoyed with Marvell whose attraction was mainly his vitality, and [illegible] got as much enjoyment from his contact with it as Fanny. It was as if Marvell had a power to extend other people's lives through his own experience, shabby or magnificent. Unconsciously, he could push the horizons of fact always a little farther away and thus change the perspective of his audience.

"Ben, I shall need some of that money."

"I knew it." Ben looked at Fanny for confirmation of his worst doubts, but instead of returning his glance she said to Marvell, "Just before you came in, we were having a debate as to alcoholics, whether they drink to reveal the light or to escape from it."

"Is that what you were thinking, of me, Fanny?" he asked reproachfully. "It was nothing like that. I did have a few drinks here and there, to escape from the dark, I suppose. But I bought a house—in broad daylight."

"What fun!" cried Fanny.

"Whatever for?" asked Ben.

"A farm. Thirty-five acres, northwest of Boston. There is no mortgage, Ben, and it is a fine old building."

"Where?" asked Fanny eagerly.

"What is the tax rate?" asked Ben.

"It is a little town, set around a large green. Colcord, not Concord, mind you."

"Oh, Ben, we've driven there. You remember old Mrs. Howe. She is stone deaf."

This fact did nothing to help Ben picture the extent of Marvell's investment.

"It is in the heart of New England's philosophical belt!" announced Marvell triumphantly.

"It would be more useful if it were a potato belt. Is there a school?"

"It's all right for Kit. I bought it for her."

There was a moment's silence, then Marvell asked impatiently, "Don't you want to hear more about it?"

They did: and he launched into his recital.

He had first seen the notices of farms for sale in a local newspaper he had picked up at the hotel. He had marked three and had set out the next morning from the North Station. Two of the farms were located in Colcord so he had gone there first. "At the little one-horse station, I got a man with a buggy to drive me to the general store up on the Common. It was a clear, windy day, more like fall than spring, and I thought that buggy, creaking in every joint, would be blown over the edge of the road. The driver didn't know 'nothing about anything' he informed me morosely and dropped me at the store for two bits. It was the same kind of place we used to have up in Maine when I was a boy—a big barn-like store, smelling of coffee and cheese, nothing in place but everything on hand. Well, they rounded up the agent who is also dog-tax collector, grain seller and see-lectman. He had a car, shakier than the buggy and smelled — grapey — so you would have thought it was October with the wind and the wild grape smell and the zip in the air.

"We headed for the farm nearest the town first—a small place, mostly barn and out-buildings, set in low land, kind of swampy but rich. It looked as if it had grown sick and tired of its appearance long ago, so I said I'd look at the other.

"Now this agent, Brewster, kept telling me about the town. Population eight hundred, including dogs. An academy for boys and girls, new library, four churches. Said they needed farmers there only he didn't think I looked like much of a one and I might as well settle on the first place because it was near the town and I could get help easy.

"I asked him if there was any water nearby and he said there was a big lake with islands in it and good fishing—it reminded me more and more of Tom Sawyer and I'd about made up my mind to settle here if the other house were any more prepossessing than the first. He said it was hillier the farther we went out of town and he didn't know as if his car could make it. Which it didn't.

"We walked about two-thinds of the way. It was loadlier up there, as he told me it was, but we passed an occasional house and when we got to a big sprawling place, painted yellow and white, I hoped we'd come to it.

"'That's one of your neighbors—maybe. Miss Edith Searle from Boston.'"

"'Edith Searle,' interrupted Fanny. 'Why, she's a well-known sportswoman. Marked out the Appalachian trail—or something like that—in record time.' To strengthen her point, she added, hastily, 'She is a great horsewoman, too.'

"I can understand it after that trek. But that must be the one; Brewster told me she kept horses and didn't get on too well with the natives."

"A little further on we came to a field, with a narrow double track leading up to a clapboard house—looked as if somebody had gone off without finishing the job. 'That it?' I asked, hoping it wasn't.

"'Nope, another neighbor—or would be only he's away. Andrew Furse, gone off to the Canadian army!'

"We took a left fork then and about three hundred yards further we turned into a lane overgrown with young trees and bounded on each side by a broken stone wall. At the end of the lane stood the house—a gay, shingled farmhouse, set crossways to our path, with a big barn overshadowing it to the rear and a carriage house to the right. There was a slopey grass lawn in front of it, with some old trees, and grown up to more than a million dandelions. It was set high on a ledge over the bluest lake I'd ever seen. I stopped [illegible] in my tracks, still a few yards away from it and said, 'So there's the lake.'

"[illegible] lake?' he asked me suspiciously. It wasn't a day for a mirage so I went forward slowly and saw all that water vanish into a blue valley lying spread out below, building up again to fold upon fold of foothills in the distance. I made up my mind then and there it was ours.

"Brewster was disappointed, I guess; it was cheaper than the other place—less good farm land, more rocky, acres of wood lot and the house needed repair. He went back to look after his car and I spent the rest of the afternoon in and out of the house; he left me the key.

"It needs repair all right, but the center chimney is strong, the beams are good and the wide plank floors are sound. It's very old and solid. Then I wandered around outside. I couldn't break through far from the house. The old apple orchard is grown up in a tangle of juniper and brush. Just about sunset, the wind died down and the valley rippled into the purple foothills. It was dead still and getting dark fast. Then I heard a song sparrow. It flew out of one of the maples and every silent shadow flamed into color at the sound." He paused, still listening to the breaking of that silence.

Ben spoke thoughtfully. "That's a big job for you to take on—clearing a farm, repairing a house, bringing up a daughter."

Marvell's face lighted up. "Can you think of a better place for her? The things we'll do together!"

"But what about car and er—cleanliness," asked Ben. "She can't run wild."

"There's the town academy—for later on. I will teach her myself for a while. Mathematics, a little Latin, and all the English literature we can get on our shelves. That reminds me, Ben, I ordered a second hand set of Shakespeare from Goodspeeds'. It will come here."

Ben shook his head doubtfully and Fanny, trying hard not to laugh, asked, "Is there any furniture in the house, Marvell?"

"Mostly slop jars," he grinned. "But, by golly, there's a good wood range and an A number one copper boiler."

"Excellent," murmured Ben. "Hot water and a dose of Shakespeare."

"We can help you out," soothed Fanny.

"I can make some things, I'm not a bad carpenter. We'll get blankets from the Army and Navy stores and open a can of beans for breakfast."

"You ought to get [illegible] to find someone from the village to cook and clean for you. Katherine can afford it," said Ben thoughtlessly.

"I'm not going up there to loaf, Ben, on her mother's money. I can manage once I'm started.

"I didn't mean that, naturally," replied Ben.

Fanny interposed quickly, "Don't you want to see Katherine? She and Charles must have finished supper. Come upstairs and put her to bed, Marvell. You must get used to it now."

Hilliards Jr. Class To Present Comedy November 22, 23

By Ruth Breckenridge

An hilarious comedy, "So Help Me," will be presented by the junior class of Hilliards High School Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 23-23.

Emma Lou Nunamaker and Eddie Eberhard have the leading parts which are Harry Hart and Su Roberts. Harry's father died that summer and Harry had to work so he could finish high school.

Miss Fay, the biology teacher, and Sandy Baxter, the coach; played by Sue Hamilton and Dave Ferguson, help Harry earn money so he can go to school and play football, too.

Other people in the play are: Mickey, Harry's younger sister, Jeanie Vagnier; Yoyo, Harry's competitor, Dick Brashear; Plate, Dick Fisher; Squeaky, Donn McKean; Sarah, Harry's mother, Betty Stermont; Mr. Squaffers, the landlord, Carl Kidwell; Mrs. Gleason, a wealthy widow, Doramy Fassig; Permelia Gleason, her daughter, Carilyn Hoover; Dalton, the sheriff, Dick Hansen; and Sadie Harris, a newspaper reporter, Connie Miller.

Hilliards News

West Beats Weak Garfield Heights Team 8-0 In Homecoming Tilt

By Dave Miller

West High's footballers, playing a rather weak eleven, managed to snarl their 1949 Homecoming game as they defeated Cleveland Garfield Heights by the score of 8 to 0 under the Magly Field arcs last Friday evening.

The Cowboys accomplished two things in the playing of the game. It was the first non-league game of the year that the Cowboys have won, and also it marked the first time the locals have scored in such completion.

The contest was marred throughout by fumbles and pass interceptions on both sides, but the Cowboys managed to scrape through with one 42-yard drive in the second period that eventually scored the lone touchdown of the game for the Westereners.

Statistics point to the ineptness of the two elevens. Garfield gained 46 yards rushing while West netted a mere 36. The Cowpokes completed five out of 14 passes for 50 yards, while the visitors made good on three of 11 for 48 yards.

West received the opening kick-off and on the first play from scrimmage, fumbled with Halfback Dick Schmidt recovering for Garfield. The visiting Blue and Gold then marched on a sustained 80-yard drive all the way to the Cowboy 20 yard stripe, but there the Cowboys held on downs, and took over.

After two exchanges of punts, West started their first march of the game from the Garfield 48. The Cowboys had received the ball this close distance to the opponents goal because of a bad flip from Center Bob Zelle. After Ronnie James and Bob Birle of the Cowboys gained two and six yards respectively, Fullback Clarence Golden broke off-tackle for a first down, down to the Cleveland 23.

However, Bill Thrush's partially blocked pass was intercepted by Chuck McSweeney of the visitors on the 18. Jim Rudolph of West was fading back to about the 10 yard stripe for the ball, and just as he was about to snare it, McSweeney timed his interception perfectly, as he leaped into the air on the run, and raced some 60 yards clear to the West 33, where Bob Birle made the tackle.

However, on the next play by Garfield, Fullback Ray Tarnowski bobbled a handoff, and Rudolph recovered the bobble for West on the Cowboys' 24, three plays before the opening quarter ended.

The Cowboys started upfield for their third attempt of a drive in the game, and on their own 45, Birle shot a pass intended for End George Crissinger, but Frank Snyder of Garfield intercepted the aerial, and ran it to the West 30.

A pass from Bob McCormick to Tarnowski and Halfback Don Solka's run out the ball on the West 16, and it looked for sure that West was about to be scored on. Quarterback Harold Schlegal drove to the nine, where he fumbled when hit by Dick McDermitt and "Flip" Eppert of the Cowboys, and Bill Thrush fell on the bobble.

The Cowboys failed to go in runs by Binkley, Birle, and James, and Bob Birle punted out of trouble, kicking to Frank Snyder on the Cleveland 45. However, Snyder, who was trying to run with the ball before he had it, dropped the ball as it came down to him, and Bill Thrush of the Cowboys recovered on Cleveland's 42.

Jerry Johnson and Clarence Golden drove to the 26 on consecutive end arounds, and Birle completed two short passes, one to Rudolph and one to Thrush putting the pigskin on the 17. Golden drove off-tackle, and then Birle faded back and shot one of his famous "bullet" passes into the arms of Thrush, on about the Garfiled two-yard line, from where he "bulled" over for the lone touchdown of the game. Birle's attempted kick was plenty high enough, but was about three feet to the left of the bar.

Shortly before the half, the Cowboys threatened again, when Guard Dick Will recovered Ray Tarnowski's fumble on the Garfield 12. However, the Cleveland forward wall held the local for downs, and took over on the eight, with three seconds left in the first half.

Early in the third period Birle was either hit pretty hard by the on-rushing Cleveland line, or his foot hit the ground on the kick, as yet it is not known, but Birle injured his leg on the play, and was taken to Mt. Carmel Hospital by an ambulance, where X-rays showed there were no broken bones.

On the second field goal attempt, which fell in the Garfield end zone, Quarterback Bob McCormick picked up the ball and tried to run with it, being downed short of a safety on the one-foot line. After two smacks at the West line, which profited Garfield nothing, Tarnowski backed into his own end zone to punt, but Center Bob Zelle's fourth bad snap of the game went over his head, and after finally retreiving the ball, Tarnowski was hit by practically the entire West line for a safety, namely Jerry Johnson, Dick Will, Don Nafzger and Jim Rudolph.

Score by period:

West	0	6	2	0—8
Cleveland	0	0	0	0—0

Scoring Summary: West Touchdown—Bill Thrush Pass from Birle). Safety—McCormick (tackled by Will, Nafzger, Rudolph and Johnson of West).

Officials—Referee, Don Elsass (Capital); Umpire, Dale Helmick (Capital); Head Linesman, Hilmar Grimm (Capital).

West, Aquinas Coaches Meet On TV Program Wed.

Mack Pemberton, West High football coach, and Jack McAndrews, 1936 Fairmont-av, Aquinas mentor, will be the guests on George Williams' Wednesday night TV show, "Hilltop Sports" on WTVN at 7:30 p. m.

Williams, West's athletic director and basketball coach, will present his audience with a "mystery" salute to 'a' Hilltop sports fan.

Pemberton and McAndrews will preview the events that will occur Friday when their teams meet at Magly Field.

The identity of this fan will be kept a secret until the program comes on the air. Williams plans to honor an avid Hilltop sports fan on a number of the shows.

HILLIARDS MOTHERS MEET

The Mothers' Club of the Hilliards Elementary School will meet Thursday, Nov. 10, at 1:30 p. m. in the grade school auditorium, with a reception for the teachers and special music. All mothers are invited to attend and meet their children's teachers.

Mifflin Swamps Hilliards 45-0

Hilliards High football squad last Friday took a trouncing from their 1948 co-champs, Mifflin, to the count of 45-0, with the latter team, county league champions for this year, maintaining its undefeated record.

Joe Hans, the married backfield star, scored three of the TD's for Mifflin's Coach Paul Schlosser, former West High grid ace. Coach Everett Fahrenholz's Wildcats, who shared the top position with Mifflin in last year's league, were never a threat to the champs.

The game, a non-league tourney, ended the season for Hilliards. Mifflin plays St. Mary's High School next Friday.

Kennel Club Dog Show Is Sunday

The Central Ohio Kennel Club will hold an all-breed, all age sanction match Sunday, Nov. 13, in Memorial Hall. There will be classes for puppies from two to 12 months of age, also for dogs over 12 months, if they have never been winners at a point show. They must be pure-bred. This is an opportunity for the novice owner and breeder to learn the art of showing their dogs.

Show hours are from 1 until 6 p. m. Post entries will be taken until 1:30 p. m. the day of the match.

The Columbus Collie Club will hold a sanction match for their breed in the forenoon of the same date. Post entries for this are taken until 9 a. m. with judging at 10.

Entry fee for both matches is $1 for first entry, 50 cents for each additional entry of the same owner.

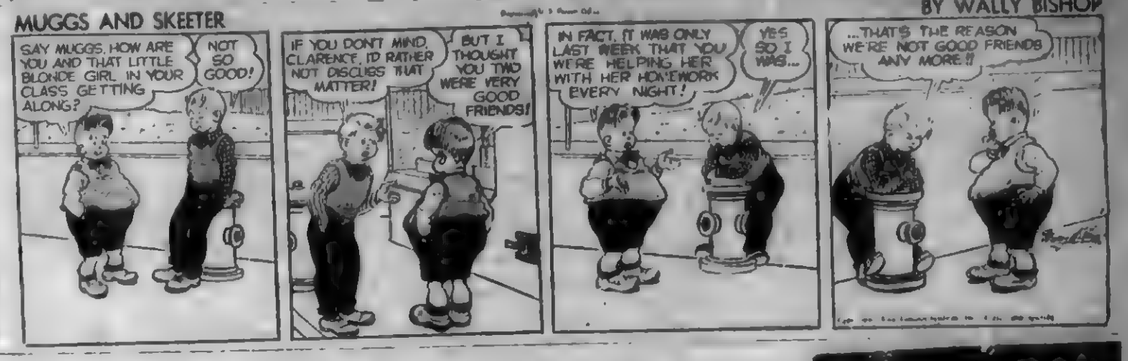
New Front Under Construction At Schmelzer's Rest.

A new vestibule and building front is under construction on the west wing of Schmelzer's Restaurant, 3178 W Broad-st. The vestibule will provide a more convenient entrance for the private banquet room, according to Ralph Schmelzer owner.



The front will be of stucco, and is intended to match the restaurant proper. When this remodeling is completed, Schmelzer plans to redecorate the interior.

Antique Articles To Be Sold By Church

Oakland Park Presbyterian Church will sponsor on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 8, 9, 10 from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m., a display and sale of antique articles.

Phyllis Bengham of London, O., will lecture on dolls Tuesday and Thursday, 3:30 p. m. Mrs. M. H. Spong and Mrs. D. O. Davis are in charge of the affair.

JUST LIKE MONEY IN THE BANK!

A General Electric Home Freezer is a food bank that will pay you a handsome rate of interest! This is how:

Instead of paying a high price for a sliver of steak or a patty of hamburger every day—you buy only when you get a "break" on meat prices—as during a sale!

You buy your fruits and vegetables in season when prices are lowest, and quality highest.

Then you just bank your food in your General Electric Home Freezer and enjoy it day after day, when most other folks have to pay high prices for the same food.

You'll be amazed how your investment pays off for you when you own a General Electric Home Freezer! And imagine the convenience of having one right in your home! Why not stop in to see us?

A Newspaper Made to Order For the People of This Community

THE HILLTOP RECORD

Columbus is a large metropolitan city . . . It is no longer just a cross roads where everybody knows everybody. As the city has grown more and more activities have centered about the individual communities like the Hilltop.

Today the Hilltop is like a city in itself . . . a city of some 45,000 or more people . . . people who have interests in this community, own their homes here, have youngsters in school, attend local churches, belong to Hilltop clubs and organizations.

Such a community has grown up with the aid of a community newspaper . . . a newspaper that has carried the detailed reports of the activities of these people and groups. Today that is truly the job of The Hilltop Record . . . to disseminate information about Hilltop people and groups . . . information that you will not be able to get elsewhere. It can be said in all truthfulness . . . you can't be a well informed Hilltopper unless you read the Record each Tuesday and Thursday evening.
Among other things The Hilltop Record offers you;

1. News of all special events in this section of the city.

2. Society and personal notes about local people.

3. Correspondents columns from Rea-Bow, Briggsdale and Brown Road, Moneyback, Rome, High Ridge, Hilliards.

4. Hundreds of pictures each year of local people and places.

5. News of all the schools in this community.

6. News of all the churches of the community.

7. A calendar of all events with the information necessary to keep you posted on all important events.

8. A continued serial story by a well known author.

9. An attractive assortment of comics including Ripley's "Believe It Or Not," "Old Home Town," "Muggs and Skeeter," "Life's Like That" and numerous others.

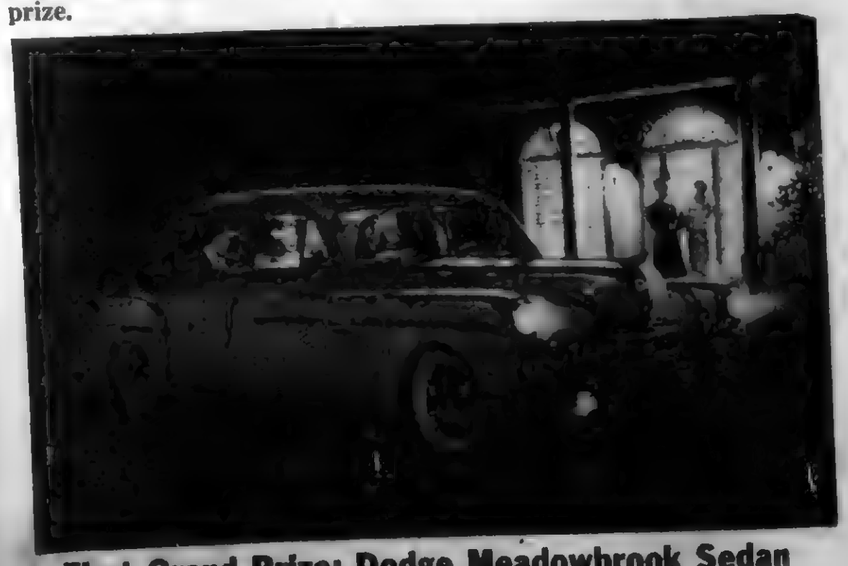
10. A weekly illustrated Sunday School Lesson.

11. Recipes, fashions, editorial columns, assorted news pictures and features.

12. Local editorials pertaining to matters of Hilltop interest and support of everything that is good for the Hillop.

13. Three pages of classified ads each week which provide the best possible local marketplace.

14. The merchandise news of Hilltop business firms through their ads, savings from which will pay for your subscription many times over each year.



15. Contests, promotions, etc.

All of these and more in your Hilltop Record

Each Tuesday and Thursday by carrier boy to your door

Camera Flash To Press - Pictures In Less Than Hour

READY TO TAKE THE PICTURE of today's Hilltop Kiwanis Club meeting, which appears at the right, is The Hilltop Record's photographer, Bill Gibbon. The Record can now give the reader quicker coverage on late news pictures.

KIWANIS MEMBERS heard Earl Morris, president of the Columbus Bar Association, speak on "Armistice Day" at today's luncheon meeting. Pictured are Noble L. Allen, secretary; M. E. Sensenbrenner, president, introducing the speaker; Morris; and Phil Stout, president-elect of the club.

OPERATING THE RECORD'S NEW engraving machine is Don Logan of 2162 Union-av.. This unique machine processed the photo on the left just 15 minutes before the paper went to press today. The machine was installed this week by the Fairchild Camera Corp.

AFTER THE KIWANIS CLUB PICTURE is taken and the engraving made, the pressmen above, Henry Jones, top, and Bob Cavanaugh, go into action to get today's Hilltop Record out. From photo to engraving to press to the meeting in one hour. The Record is the first semi-weekly community newspaper in Ohio to install the engraving machine.

About Folks You Know

Goings — Comings — Doings Of Your Hilltop Neighbors

By Helen James, Society Editor

Remember Jeanne Dhume, the lyric soprano, who starred in West High's plays around in 1942? Well, we just received word that she has signed a two years' contract to go to Japan with a musical production! Beginning with "Brigadoon," she will play the role of a comedienne in many light operas for the troops in that country, the Aleutians and other surrounding islands. Jeanne spent a few days of last week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ross L. Dhume, 1056 Franklin-av. She recently completed work with the production, "Love Rides the Rails," in Hollywood.

• • •

And Mrs. John Diehr, 187 S. Hague-av, just returned from New York City where she went to meet her sister, Mrs. Margaret Jeffreys, who came to this country from England Oct. 29. This is the first visit for Mrs. Jeffreys, who would very much like to move here and intends to persuade her husband to do so upon her return to England. Mrs. Diehr, a war-bride, came here in March, 1945, and formerly lived in Barking, a small town on the outskirts of London, where her sister now lives. Mrs. Jeffreys plans to stay here until January.

YWCA Announces Fellowship Day; Plan UN Smorgasbord

West Side residents are helping to plan the Columbus observance of a Week of Prayer and World Fellowship (Nov. 13-19), celebrated annually in YWCA's throughout the world. World Fellowship Night will be observed locally Thursday, Nov. 17.

Betty Finney, 229 S. Westgate-av, and Betty Glines, 242 W. Park-av, are members of the planning committee.

The evening will be highlighted by a United Nations Smorgasbord, to be served from 5 to 7 p. m. Reservations are necessary, and must be made by Monday, Nov. 14. Dishes of many countries will be prepared by women of numerous nationality backgrounds.

Following the dinner hour, guests will have an opportunity to wander through an Old World market, where shops will feature handmade treasures, Christmas gift suggestions, goodies and articles of unusual interest. A silhouette artist and fortune tellers will add to the program's variety. Also planned are a sidewalk cafe providing refreshments for those unable to come for dinner, and a treasure chest of surprises for younger guests.

Concluding the World Fellowship Festival, a Club International at 7:45 p. m. will feature songs, dances and other entertainment offered by performers from many lands.

Boehm - Holden Wedding Announced

Mrs. Henry L. Holden, Jr.

Before an altar decorated with white gladioli, red roses and ferns, Miss Mary Christina Boehm, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Boehm, 302 S. Sylvan-av, exchanged wedding vows with Mr. Henry L. Holden, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Holden, 34 Medbrook Way. Rev. Alfred Schindler of Toledo, uncle of the bride, performed the service in St. Mary Magdalene's Church Saturday, Oct. 22, at 9:30 a. m.

The bride, who was escorted down the candlelit aisle by her father, wore a traditional gown of white satin with a portrait neck edged in a band of satin shirring. Her basque bodice complemented the full circular skirt which was worn over an old-fashioned hoop and cascaded into a circular train. Two bands of shirring were inserted in the train. Her fingertip veil of imported silk illusion was held in place by a satin cloche trimmed in a shirred band of satin to match those in the gown. Her cascading bouquet was of white calla lilies.

Miss Rose Boehm, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were the Misses Lucille Moriarity, Mary Hickey, Mary Ellen Bartling and Margaret Holden. They wore identically styled gowns of American beauty velveteen designed with portrait necklines and caplet collars. The pencil slim, floor length skirts had a fly-away panel in back which flowed as they walked down the aisle. They wore matching calcts of American beauty velveteen and short silver crocheted mitts. The maid of honor carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses.

Mr. William Mara was best man, and the ushers were Mr. William Sicking, Mr. Robert Dorsey, Mr. Louis Favert and Mr. Dalton Mullony.

The wedding breakfast was held at the Seneca Hotel following the ceremony. Hostesses at the reception at the Seneca from 2 to 4 p. m. were Mrs. Richard Adams, Miss Virginia Callahan, Miss Virginia Moriarity and Mrs. Dalton Mullonev.

The new Mrs. Holden is a graduate of St. Joseph's Academy, attended St. Mary of the Springs College, and is a graduate of Ohio State University. She is employed in the home service department of the Ohio Fuel Gas Company.

Mr. Holden is a graduate of Aquinas High School and attended Ohio State University. He is associated with the E. J. Will Construction Co.

The couple will be at home at 34 Medbrook Way after Nov. 15.

Fred J. Milligan, Columbus attorney and president of the Central Ohio Area Council, Boy Scouts of America, will be the speaker at the annual banquet of Southwest District scouters to be held in the dining hall at Glenwood Methodist Church, Nov. 16, at 6:30 p. m.

Officers for the new year will be announced. M. E. (Jack) Sensenbrenner, 335 Guernsey-av, is chairman of the district.

Mr. Milligan is active in many civic affairs in and around Columbus. He has served as assistant dean of men at Ohio State University; assistant attorney general under Gov. John Bricker; state director of commerce under Gov. Thomas Herbert; president of Columbus Junior Chamber of Commerce, and was chairman of the professional discussion of the 1949 Community Chest drive.

'Y' Plans Girls' Hoop League

Plans are being laid by the Hilltop YMCA to conduct a girls' basketball league for high school age girls if there is enough interest locally to warrant such a program.

Any group of girls interested in entering a basketball league are asked to contact the Y office immediately so that a meeting can be called of the managers and plans completed for carrying out this program.

All programs are run on a minimum cost basis and no one is excluded because of the lack of necessary funds. Call JO 4641 immediately for further details.

Poems Reflect Love of God And Children

By Esther Weakley

"Memories", a book of poetry by Ethel Titus Worthen, was published at the Hilltop Record this week. Copies of the book will be displayed in Seiller's window.

This is Mrs. Worthen's second published collection of poems. Attractively-bound in blue and gold, the book is dedicated to the memory of her son, Pfc. Robert Dwight Worthen, who was killed in action, June 7, 1944. There are 46 poems and a photograph of Pfc. Worthen.

"Memories" contains poems that are sincere and "homey." Mrs. Worthen's poetry reflects her love for her God and her children. She is well-known in Columbus, as a writer of religious poetry.

"Memoriam," one of the poems in the book, is a fitting tribute to all boys who did not return, and for Armistice Day:

The voice that we once heard is
Of one we held so dear:
We cannot see him, but we feel
His gentle spirit near.
He fought the fight . . . finished his task;
Has just gone on ahead
Into a happy, fairer land,
Triumphant, but not dead.

Mrs. Inez Goble, Of Hilliards, Dies

Funeral services were held Tuesday, Nov. 8, at 3 p. m., at the Hilliards Methodist Church for Mrs. Inez Goble, 70, lifelong resident of Hilliards, who passed away Saturday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Esther Moore, at Plain City.

Rev. A. F. Noethlich, pastor, and Rev. E. L. Liggins of Columbus officiated and interment was made at Wesley Chapel.

A Man's Best Friend . . .
A Tribute To Ike

There is sadness at our house. Ike is dead!

Ike came to our house a couple years ago and being the good mannered dog he was he immediately found a welcome place in our home and soon was just like a member of the family.

He was part chow, part huskie . . . had all the looks of a tough customer if he wanted to be, and even the telephone repair man sat in his truck when Ike came barking to greet him. But he was a friendly fellow and once he knew you he never forgot you and always had a genteel tail wagging welcome or would hold up a right or left paw for a handshake.

Each morning the first person to arise always let Ike in the house and he then made his rounds to each bedroom to extend a happy "good morning" to each member of the family. Then after a short visit inside he was always anxious to get outside in the cool air 'cause he was genuinely a farm dog and he took his farm life seriously. He had rabbits to chase and the squirrels in the front yard to worry about. And during the day he always took the necessary time out to play with Patty, Donny, Carlie or Luanne.

But Saturday afternoon and Sunday were his big days of the week. That's when I donned old work clothes and a red cap and he was always close at hand for my every move, from work in the garden where he would kill a snake, to a trip across the fields in the jeep at which time he rode in the front seat like a good assistant should.

When the black angus cows and seven calves were brought in on the back field earlier this fall he welcomed them and tried to be friendly with them like he had been with all the other farm animals. But the largest old mother angus never liked Ike and took every opportunity to let him know how she felt. When he entered the field she would tear out after him but he never paid much attention to her and would step aside as she went thundering past.

Monday morning Ike wasn't at the front door to greet us. Later that day we noticed a brown object far down in the pasture and investigation revealed the stiff, lifeless body of Ike. An x-ray showed a broken rib that had punctured his lung. It's still hard to believe that the old black angus cow caught up with swift footed Ike.

But Ike is dead and we have lost a good friend. Now we are looking for another good dog like Ike who needs a home in the country

Who is going to win that Dodge Meadowbrook sedan?

This is the $64 question and several Hilltop Record contestants are dreaming and scheming of how they can produce a few more subscriptions before the drive ends next Monday at 3 p. m.

When the second period in the contest ended over two weeks ago the tabulation showed that Mack Pemberton was ahead and held down first place for the first time since the contest started. Mrs. Robert (Annie) Miller was in second place and Miss Shirley Klopfer, who had held first place for several weeks, had fallen back to third. Mrs. Marguerite Ward was battling hard to rise above the fourth place post she held.

Since then no more reports have been turned in at the Record office. All reports have been made in secret at the Ohio National Bank. So it may be anybody's race when the winners are announced from the stage of the Old Trail Theater next Wednesday evening, Nov. 16.

In the meantime if you still want to help a contestant you had better get busy. It won't be long now.

Notes and Nubbins: Better go easy on the food tonight if you intend to be present at Camp Chase Post's annual Armistice Day breakfast Friday morning, 'cause those boys and girls really throw out a panful of food . . . Mike Sheskey took a lot of ribbing about bringing Santa Claus to town so early but with the weather like it has been we've been expecting the Easter bunny to pop out in his store most any day now . . . The annual Charity Newsie drive has been set for Dec. 17 and we will welcome any early contributions . . . Just another example of how it pays to become a Hilltop Record subscriber was evident this week when Jennie Fortin won the $10 in the Prof. Pigskin contest after giving a subscription to a contestant just recently . . . Mrs. Carl Carman of Alliance, O., sent in a subscription for a contestant and noted that she now felt she had a personal interest in the contest and wants to keep in close touch with the Hilltop . . . Comes news from the Charles Bennetts down at 1911 Almeria Rd., Phoenix, Arizona, that they are sorry that time didn't permit them to see all their former Hilltop friends when in the city last summer while Charley was getting his graduate work at OSU, but duties there provided him a very close schedule . . . The new five pound baby boy born to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fox, 153 N. Burgess-av, has been named Gayle William after the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mose Williams . . . Elmer Hegenberger went back to school this week, attending the Buckeye Union School from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m. for four days . . . Galloway Ladies Aid Society will serve a turkey supper tomorrow (Friday), 5 to 8 p. m., at the church annex . . . Lowell and Evelyn Shroyer have taken up a new abode at 2553 W. Broad-st.

Community Council Plans Yule Party

Plans for the annual Christmas party were discussed at the Wednesday night meeting of the Hilltop Community Council.

Mrs. Edward Thompson gave the report on the Hallowe'en party.

It was reported that city officials had been contacted regarding the removal of weeds and poison ivy in Westgate Park. A committee was appointed to study the matter of police protection and supervision in the park.

Perfection With Peaches

By BETTY SINCLAY

Serve peaches in any number of ways during the peach season, and make peach preserves to serve with piping-hot biscuits this winter. The light corn syrup adds to appetite appeal and flavor. Here are two recipes that are really peach-y!

Peach Dumplings

1 recipe baking powder biscuit dough
6 peaches
½ cup sugar
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1½ cups light corn syrup
½ cup water
3 tablespoons melted butter or margarine

Roll dough into a rectangle ⅛ inch thick. Cut into 6 squares. Peel, halve and pit peaches. Roll peach halves in mixture of sugar, lemon rind and nutmeg. Put halves together and place in center of each square. Pinch corners of dough together over each peach. Place in greased pan (8 x 12 x 2 inches). Combine corn syrup, water and butter. Pour over dumplings. Bake in hot oven (450° F.) 10 minutes, reduce temperature to 350° F. and continue baking 35 to 40 minutes. Baste occasionally with syrup mixture during baking. Makes 6.

Peach Preserves

4 cups sliced peaches
1½ cups sugar
1½ cups Karo Syrup, Red Label

Wash about 3 pounds fully ripe peaches. Peel, halve and pit. Slice ⅜ inch thick. Combine with sugar and Karo Syrup in large kettle. Stir constantly over low heat until sugar is dissolved. Boil rapidly, stirring constantly, until syrup sheets from metal spoon and fruit is clear (about 20 minutes). Remove from heat; skim. Pour into hot ½-pint jars. Seal immediately; process in Boiling Water Bath 5 minutes. Makes three ½-pints.

Teams Evenly Matched As Cowboys Meet Aquinas In Final Game of Season Tonight

By Dave Miller

West High's football eleven will close their 1949 grid season this Thursday evening when they entertain a "hot and cold" Aquinas team under the Magly Field lights.

Neither team can do any better than a .500 record in the City League play. The winner will have a 3-3 mark, and take fourth place in the city league. East High, which draws the loop bye this week, has already cinched third spot with a 4-2 mark, while both undefeated North and Central battle for first place in the league at Central tonight. The winner takes the championship, and the loser grabs second spot.

Although the defending champs of last year didn't quite play as good ball as in previous years, there is one thing that the Cowboys had above all. That was spirit. No team in the city tried harder than the Cowboy gridders.

The Cowboys are keyed to a high pitch for the Aquinas game for two reasons. One, they are out to even their city league mark, and two, they want to beat the Terriers because more than half of the team is from the Hilltop. This has been true practically always, with the great majority of the Aquinas team being from the Hilltop, and the Cowboys usually show their best against them.

The Hilltoppers have beaten Aquinas the last three years. In 1946 the Cowboys won, 6-0; in 1947, 21-0; in 1948, 33-0. So far this year the Cowboys have won three games and lost five, while the Terriers have won two and lost five. The Irish have another game to play after the West tilt, traveling to Hamilton Catholic next Saturday evening to finish their season.

Aquinas has beaten Linden McKinley, 24-0, and South, 34-19; while dropping games to Findlay, 35-12; Marietta, 19-6; North, 28-6; East, 40-6; and Central, 26-19.

By comparison of scores, it is just about even between the two elevens. Both teams have beaten Linden and South, while dropping before Central, North and East. Aquinas holds the edge in the Linden tilt because the Cowboys managed to win by only six points, but the locals hold the edge over South due to their 21-point victory, while Aquinas downed the Bulldogs by a 15-point margin.

The Cowboys lost to North by only one touchdown, as Aquinas dropped a three touchdown margin loss. The Cowboys held East to just exactly half of what the Terriers did, and the Green and Gold were defeated by only one touchdown by Central, while the Hilltoppers lost by two.

So if everything goes alright, it should be a rough and tumble affair, even though not much is at stake for the game.

Players on the Aquinas team who live on the Hilltop include End Charlie Miller, Tackle Jack Bellisari; Guard Ben Nye, and Backs Russ Reckling, John Masdea, Jack Schmidt and Ronnie Carver. The latter attended West last year, but transferred to Aquinas this semester.

Aquinas has a strong passing team, and the Cowboys have been working on pass defense throughout the practice session of the week. Russ Reckling, sophomore quarterback, does practically all of the passing, which has accounted for all except three of Aquinas' touchdowns this year.

John Masdea, brother of former West star, Bruno, of the 1946 team, has been switched on the Terrier team from fullback to left end. The halfbacks include a pair of hard runners, namely Tom Kearns and Jack Schmidt, with either Jim Melichorre or Carver now at the fullback post.

The probabl starting lineups:

West	Pos.	Aquinas
J. Rudolph	LE	J. Miller
D. McDermitt	LT	Ben Nye
Bob Wilson	LG	Al Pierano
Bob Epps	C	John White
Dick Will	RG	A. Watzek

G. Crissinger	RE	J. Masdea
B. Thrush	QB	R. Reckling
B. Birle	LH	J. Schmidt

Flames Raze Barn Near New Rome

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed a barn and its contents, an adjoining shed, and damaged a milk house on the farm of Paul W. Holtzman, 1708 Norton-rd, Wednesday afternoon.

The Prairie Township fire department was summoned to the blaze and prevented the fire from spreading to nearby buildings. Fire Chief John R. Richards said the cause of the fire was unknown, and that a complete estimate of the loss had not been made.

Lost in the blaze were one calf, a John Deere combine, a corn binder, 50 bales of clover hay, and approximately 2000 bales of straw. Other farm machinery kept in the building was also lost.

Franklin County Sheriff's Deputy Roosevelt Goode reported that the fire was discovered at about 1:45 p. m. by Mrs. Holtzman. She said she looked out an upstairs window of the house and saw the barn in flames.

The frame barn was 50 by 60 feet, with a 20-foot shed behind it.

HRCA Meeting Set For Nov. 15

Plans have been completed for a meeting of the High Ridge Civic Association at 7:45, Nov. 15. This is the regular November meeting and all members are urged to attend. Non-member visitors are invited to attend also.

In addition to the usual business matters plans are to be developed for a Christmas party and celebration for the children and adults as well.

President Van Ness reports arrangements have been made for the ladies of HRCA to attend in a group the radio broadcast, at Station WCOL of their program "Listen Ladies". This is booked for the afternoon of Wednesday, Dec. 14.

In keeping with their policy, the association will have as guest Paul Frank of Station WHKC, speaker at the Nov. 15 meeting. Paul Frank of Radio Station WHKC. Mr. Frank will tell members and guests the interesting features of radio and television and will also answer questions about broadcasting.

New Engraver Brings Record Readers Photos In Minutes

A photo-engraving machine that will make possible the appearance of a picture in the paper a few minutes after the camera snaps the shot has been installed at the Hilltop Record.

The Record is the first paper of its type in the state to use this new engraving machine. Examples of the type of work possible on this machine appear on the front page of the Record today.

Pictures of a barn burning near New Rome, Wednesday afternoon, and of a television broadcast last night are in today's Record.

The Kiwanis picture was taken as the weekly luncheon meeting of the club was called to order today at 12 noon. Papers, containing the picture, were rolling off the Record press before the Kiwanis meeting adjourned.

The Fairchild photo-electric engraver is designed for rapid single-step production of halftone engravings, direct from photographs.

Designed on advanced engineering principles, the Fairchild Photo-Electric Engraver embodies a unique combination of high-precision electrical, electronic, mechanical and optical components. Operation is entirely automatic.

The machine consists essentially of two cylinders mounted on a common shaft driven by a specially designed synchronous motor; a photo-electric cell unit for scanning the photograph; the engraving head containing a heated pyramid-shaped stylus; a contrast control panel for setting the light and dark tone values of the picture; and a special amplifier system.

To operate the engraver, the photograph to be reproduced is placed on one cylinder and a blank sheet of plastic material is placed on the other. The photo-electric cell unit is then set in position directly above the photo-cylinder and the stylus of the engraving head is adjusted in operation position above the plastic plate. Both cylinders are rotated and the actual engraving process begins. The result is a finished halftone engraving of the same size as the photograph.

Simultaneous scanning of the photograph and the burning of the plate are accomplished at a speed of one inch every three minutes, so that finished engravings can be produced in from six to 30 minutes depending upon the size. Upon completion, the engraving is washed in clear water and may then be mounted to a basing block ready for printing.

A husband doesn't mind if his wife comes from a fine old family, so long as she doesn't bring them with her.

A recent insurance survey revealed that the average American family, whose combined income has never risen above $6,000 per year, has managed to accumulate in the space of fourteen years a collection of household and personal effects which would cost in excess of $14,000 to replace if they were wiped out by fire. Koontz Gets Most Votes In Council Race; Republicans Sweep City Hall Posts

Henry A. Koontz, 485 Hilton-la-av, was re-elected to city council Tuesday, getting the largest number of votes of the six council candidates. The other two incumbents were also returned to office.

Charles H. Jones, Hilltop candidate for the school board was defeated.

Republican incumbents made a clean sweep of the municipal offices, surviving their third test at the polls since taking over the city government in 1943.

The Metropolitan Park Levy is the only issue on the city-count-state ballots that failed to pass. The voting on the provision for additional probate judges in the counties is still too close for victory or defeat to be assumed.

Voters in the state gave a whopping majority to the proposed law to allow the manufacture and sale of colored oleomargarine in the state.

Issues that passed in the city were the four-mill school levy, electric rate reduction, retention of the five-cent transit fare, and the 40-hour-week for police.

The "office type" ballot was approved by a majority of the ballots cast, on its adoption, but its final approval may depend on a Supreme Court ruling.

In Franklin Township Otto Peoples and Harry C. Shonting were re-elected to the board of trustees, defeating George Wolfe and William J. Mook. Elbert L. Becker, C. Joy Winters and Lawrence E. Wells were elected to the board of education; and John L. Quelette was the unopposed candidate for constable. E. C. Miller was elected justice of the peace.

In Norwich Township Charles Roberts and Clarence Seeds were elected to the board of trustees; C. H. O'Brien, Richard L. Brasher and Thelma DeWolfe were elected to the board of education; William McKenzie and H. P. Michel were named constables; and Samuel L. Riffle won the election as justice of the peace.

Local levys for a school tax and a new fire house were passed by substantial majorities.

Voters of Prairie Township elected Carl Dellenger and Grover Raderly to the board of trustees; David H. Elliott, Harold Distelhorst and Frederick Kunz to the board of education; G. Fred Calland and Lawrence E. Belcher as justices of the peace; and Howard Riebel, William Kaiser and Robert Denman as constables.

The issue to repeal rural zoning in the township lost 509-364. Voters in the township also defeated a proposal to annex the township to New Rome.

In Hilliards Lester Armentrout defeated Everett Fahrenholz in the race for the mayoralty. Other offices in the village were uncontested.

Candidates in New Rome and Valley View all ran unopposed. G. E. Roesch will be mayor of New Rome and Archibald Rodgers will be mayor of Valley View.

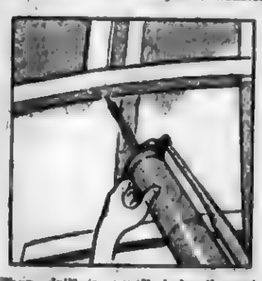
How to Clean Up That Knotty Pine

FORTUNATE indeed is the American home that has not had its furnace doors blow open at some time or another, besmirching everything within range with soot and dirt.

As a case in point, that accident befell at least one family last winter, which was faced with the subsequent problem of how to clean up the knotty pine recreation room. You may not have that enjoyable item in your basement now, but if you ever do it will be handy for you to know how to clean it.

Starting with the plasterboard ceiling, the head of the house went to the hardware store and purchased a can of wallpaper cleaner. He found that dough-like preparation ideally suited to cleaning the plasterboard.



The cleaning of badly soiled knotty pine panelling depends to some extent upon how it is finished, but as a general rule the job can be done well with one of the preparations intended for cleaning waxed hardwood floors. Explain the situation to your hardware dealer and he will be able to give you more exact advice.

An alternate course is to wash the wood with turpentine, making sure the gas heater or any other such device is turned off to avoid fire risk. Use plenty of clean cloths. Follow this by waxing. Apply a paste floor wax in very thin coats. Let each one dry hard and then polish well. It's hard work, but you'll have a sparkling interior again.

* * *

HERE'S a handy little idea for fixing up those old and rheumatic chairs that are coming apart at the joints because the glue has dried to extinction. It's easy, too.

First, get yourself a grease gun and fit it with a tapered nozzle.

Then drill a small hole through the loose member to the joint and force in some glue with the grease gun. After injecting the glue, fill the hole with a small wood plug, let the glue dry and then do whatever refinishing you think the piece needs.

You'll have a sturdy, rejuvenated article of furniture to use on the porch or in the basement.

Odd Fact

In Manistee, Mich., an 85-year-old man admitted burning down his house and four other buildings on his farm, explaining that it was the only way to stop his relatives from wrangling over who would inherit his property.

Starling Jr. High School Notes

Y-TEEN MEETING
By Joan Stamper

The Y-Teens of Starling Junior High School held a meeting Thursday, Nov. 3, in Room 37. At this meeting Miss Suet, an adviser from the YWCA, told about the Treasure Chest which the YWCA women are planning for the Y-Teens. In the chest will be gift-wrapped trinkets which were donated by Y-Teen members from all the Columbus schools. These trinkets will cost from five cents to one dollar and will be sold at the Treasure Chest on Thursday, Nov. 17, at 7 p. m., at the YWCA. The proceeds from these sales will go for the national YWCA work.

Decorations will be appropriate to the football theme.

ST. MARY MAGDALENE WINS

St. Mary Magdalene defeated St. Catherine, 7 to 6, in a parochial elementary league game last week on the St Mary Magdalene gridiron. The winners scored in the first period on Fullback Tom Caldwell's 59-yard romp through center. Caldwell also tallied the extra point, bucking the line on a fake kick. St. Catherine scored in the last 30 seconds.

Health Class Studies Polio

Polio—its causes and its treatment—has taken the spotlight in O. D. Lehman's health education classes at West High School. About 400 boys enrolled in this study, are eager to learn about this malady.

Studying a chart, showing the effects of the virus upon the nervous system are, left to right, Fred Baltsiger with pointer; students Doyne Basye, seated and listening to the discussion; and Jim Cochran making notes from the chart.

Robert Ferguson With Air Force In Nagoya, Japan

Major Robert I. Ferguson, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Ferguson, former Hilltoppers, recently reported for duty with Fifth Air Force headquarters in Nagoya, Japan, and was assigned to materiel section, A-4 Division.

Major Ferguson is the first arrival from a group of five officers, recent graduates of the Air Force Institute of Technology, Wright Field, who are slated to join Fifth Air Force. The Fifth Air Force, occupation air force of Japan, is the most powerful air arm under Far East Air Forces.

West Valedictorian

As valedictorian of his class at West High School, Ferguson graduated in 1936. Entering Ohio State University the same year, he graduated in 1940. During his residence at the university he was identified with Phi Kappa Psi fraternity, and the Romophos-Sophomore Society.

The Air Force Institute of Technology is an air force school offering a two year course in either of two major fields, aeronautical engineering or industrial administration. Major Ferguson completed the course in industrial administration.

Served In China

During the war Major Ferguson served eight months with the Chinese-American Composite Wing, 14th Air Force, in Ankang, China.

Mrs. Ferguson and son, Robin, age 3, and daughter, Leslie Ann, age 1, will join Major Ferguson in Japan when transportation and quarters are available. They are now residing in Shreveport, La.

Dickerson Edits Wittenberg Paper

Ken Dickerson, Jr., 3121 W. Broad-st, was chosen by the faculty committee of Wittenberg College as editor of the Wittenberg Torch, student newspaper, for the ensuing year.

A graduate of West High School, Dickerson was editor of the Occident during his senior year. A member of Phi Kappa Psi Fraternity, Dickerson was one of three students elected to the junior honorary, Pick & Pen, for 1949.

CONGRATULATE MURRAY

John A. McAndrews, 1936 Fairmont-av, diocesan president of the Columbus Holy Name Societies, this week sent a telegram to Phillip Murray, CIO president, congratulating him on "courageous stand in re-aligning the various affiliated units in the organization," on behalf of the 15,000 members of the societies in Columbus.

UN TOPIC OF PTA MEET

West Mound Elementary PTA will meet Friday, Nov. 11, at 7:30 p. m. at the school. The topic of discussion will be "Laying Foundations of One World." A book review on "We, the People of the United Nations," will be given by Mrs. Dan Joseph. Special music will be presented by E. B. Graham, principal.

FRAT. PLEDGES NAMED

The following Hilltop residents appear on a supplementary pledge list of Ohio State University fraternities for the autumn quarter: Don Gene Davis, 2634 Eakin-rd, and Louis Roman Disabato, 2626 Eakin-rd, Delta Sigma Phi; Walter Krause, 237 Whitethorne-av, Sigma Pi; and Edward Thomas Dwyer, New Rome, Sigma Nu.

CLASS TO ELECT OFFICERS

Election of officers will be held at a meeting of the Semper Fidelis Class of Hilltop Lutheran Church, 8 p. m, Thursday, Nov. 10, in the church parlors. Mrs. C. M. Barbee and Mrs. Hayward Hillyer will be hostesses. Miss Zada McCurdy will conduct the devotions.

Carolyn Stilwell, West Student, Delves Deeply Into Deltiology

By Myron Seifert

Deltiologists are found in great numbers in this country, and the Hilltop is no exception.

Just in case you are somewhat puzzled (we were) and are unable to find the term in your dictionary, it is an organized group of folks having an inveterate interest in the collection of a wide variety of post cards.

Picture postcard, collecting, which was a favorite hobby back in the gay 90's, has had a revival. Young people on the Hill who are interested in this old-new hobby have formed a collectors' club under the sponsorship of the Columbus Branch of Post Card Collectors' Club of America.

Miss Carolyn Stilwell, 13, of 644 Wiltshire-rd, and student at West, is president of this club. She has a very fine collection (2500 in all) for so young a girl and was one of the youngest exhibitors at the Ohio State Museum last October.

Carolyn Stilwell

Her most outstanding card is a souvenir of Lincoln's funeral train issued on the 25th anniversary of his death, three score years ago.

Her favorite cards are old greeting cards. She has beaded ones, embossed with satin, velvet, gold, and silver; those done in airbrush; and gelatine cards. She is probably the only collector in this vicinity to own a fringed card.

Her cards are of several materials: wood, aluminum, leather and she has hopes of getting a feather card in the near future.

Of the modern cards she is trying to build up a collection of state capitols, unusual and historical trees, historical monuments, bridges and dams, and musical cards.

Other Hilltop members of this junior collectors' club include Nancy Roby, Linda Hardacre, and Joyce Arbaugh.

Adult collectors on the Hill are Carolyn's mother, Mrs. Paul Stilwell, Mrs. Virginia Dysart, and Mrs. George Marx.

The word deltiologist was coined for the national club by word experts at our O. S. U. Deltiologists keep their cards either in albums or in a filing system. Shoe boxes are a favorite container. The cards are arranged in several ways, by subject matter, or geographically by state or country.

In considering old cards, values are determined by the age, manufacturer, scarcity, and condition of the card. And of the old cards only a few are valuable including those lovely embossed flower cards that were made almost exclusively in Germany, of which Carolyn has many. Their modern counterparts come from Switzerland.

W. E. Ayers, Columbus wholesale dealer of cards says the card which is the best-seller here is the one of the state penitentiary.

Picture postcards which are "collectors items" include:

"Detroiters," which were made by the first picture postcard publishing company in America. Prior to this company's work all cards were made in Europe, particularly Germany. Henry Ford's Edison Institute has the original Detroit negatives, since this company went out of business in 1924.

These cards are identifiable by the words "Detroit Publishing Co." in the margin of each card. The word "Photint" was also used by the company.

"Oilettes" — are old English cards, mostly reproductions of paintings. The word Oilette appears diagonally in the lower right hand corner. These cards were made by Raphael Tuck and Sons, C. Ltd. and any card made by this company is called by a collector, a "Tuck."

Other subjects which are "collectors' items" include: New Orleans (Old U. S. Mint), U. S. S. Maine, Columbian Exposition, old railroads, street cars, and trains.

Santa, Twinkle, Egbert, Coming On Radio, Video

WBNS will take the children of Central Ohio on a daily trip to the North Pole during the holiday season in order that they may greet their old friend, Santa Claus. WBNS, WELD and WBNS-TV will all present Santa Claus in a simulcast, with his first appearance on Nov. 10.

The program will be heard Monday through Friday at 5:15 p. m. throughout the holiday season and will present not only Santa but his gnome helpers as they make preparations for Christmas Day.

Santa is ably assisted on these broadcasts by his Number One gnome, "Twinkle", and "Egbert", the pilot who will escort the children on their daily visit to the North Pole. Each day's adventures also include members of the gnome band who play gay holiday tunes on candy cane instruments.

Hilliards FFA 50-50 Dance Set

The Hilliards Chapter of the Future Farmers of America discussed the recent swine sale at the October meeting.

Louis Huffman gave a report of the trip to the National Future Farmers of America convention at Kansas City. Mr. Ritchie and four members from the chapter made the trip. They visited such places as Abraham Lincoln's home, J. C. Penny Farms and Purina Experimental Farms on the way to and from the convention.

Most of the business session of the meeting was taken up with a discussion of the 50-50 dance the F. F. A. is sponsoring. The dance is being held at the Hilliards High School auditorium on the evening of Nov. 10, from 8:30 to 11:30. Music for the dance is being furnished by the "Rhythm Ramblers."

The evening's entertainment will be highlighted by a cake walk, according to Charles Williams, chairman of the dance committee. He has four cakes to give away.

The price of this evening's entertainment will be fifty cents per person. Other members on the dance committee include Robert Davis and Louis Huffman.

Dollars And Sense

Equanimity In Difficulties, Columbus Proves "Also-Ran"
By Robert B. Stearns

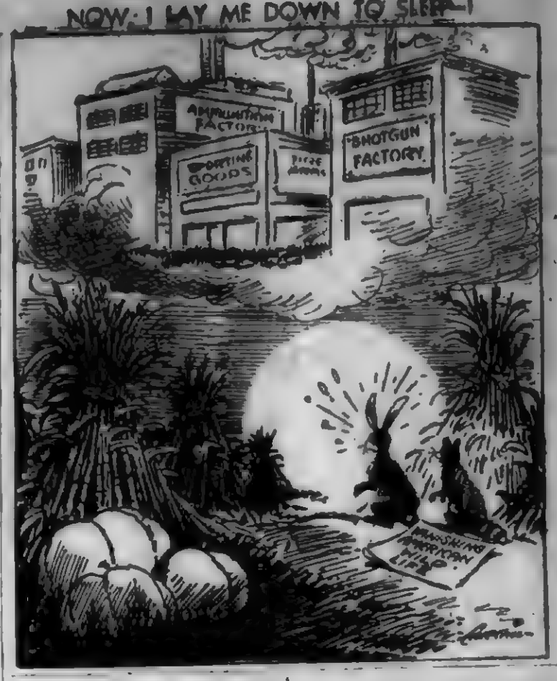
Columbus does NOT have the "highest residential electric rate in the country." It does not have the "nation's highest" period.

This fact, unearthed in the course of the Record's study of the Federal Power Commission's national electric rate book, is a far cry from the speeches and reading matter on the subject. Efforts to track down the source of the mysterious quotations have been unsuccessful.

It would appear that an entirely different light has been cast on the whole "five cent fare-electric rate" argument. It could hardly be any more surprising now to discover some community riding on a two for five cent fare.

There are plenty of communities (large and small) with higher ratesthan Columbus' present rate of $4.47. The standard measuring stick for comparative residential power and light rates is based on kilowatt hours, with 100 kwh the unit.

The Record does not pretend that its list is complete, having limited the search to the northeastern states. The cheapest power rates are found in hydroelectric areas or regions of cheap fuel; oil and natural gas, for example.



Providence, R. I., with a population of 254,000 provide a perfect comparison with Columbus, as both are in the 250,000 group. The residential rate is $4.79 for 100 kwh, served by the Narragansett Electric Company.

A hasty survey of several other states revealed that Massachusetts, in toto, probably either outranks our town or is on the same level. Boston pays $4.86; Lowell $4.66 and Fall River $4.50 for the 100 kwh, as illustrations.

In New Jersey, Atlantic City pays $4.62 and Jersey Central Power and Light charges Asbury Park and its area $5.33. In New York, $5.70 for the first 100 kwh is the rate at Younkers, New Rochelle, White Plains, Mt. Vernon and others. The four large boroughs of New York City pay $5.30, the smallest $5.70 and on and on.

While doing away with Columbus' undeserved championship", and in Dewey's adopted state anyhow, the Record could not resist a peep at Pawling. Even the governor forks up $5.05 for his 100 kwh. Things are tough all over.

Rah! for another winner in our section! J. J. WRIGHT was on his toes in figuring those football scores so close.

JOE and SUE ROBINE have moved into the former CORDRAY home. We wish them a warm welcome. They have a small son, Ronnie, who is almost two years old.

JESSIE SINCLAIR sent her diaper wash to a diaper laundry and when they came back she wondered at first if they had cut them up, for she received napkins and handkerchiefs in return. This was quickly remedied. She had received the wrong wash. Now if I sold WASHERS instead of working in a shoe factory, I'd try selling her one, and she could do her own laundry. Where are you salesmen?

Frozen strawberries were supposed to be the dessert for the evening meal at MRS. JOHN WOLFE'S residence—until Toni, the cat, saw them first. All she did was sniff at them, but into the garbage they went—cat and all. Well—not the cat—but they certainly felt like ditching her, too.

Speaking of cats—there was a cat in our neighborhood chasing a squirrel in the trees. The squirrel was so much quicker, it wasn't even funny. As it sprang to another tree, the cat sprang too and missed and fell.

Little BETTY (DAVIS' little tot) started to cry. Because the cat hurt itself? No, but because the feline fell into her doll buggy and frightened her. That accident wouldn't happen again in a lifetime—of CATS, DOLLS or HUMANS. So we just had to put it in our column.

BLACKIE, NELSON'S dog, had two little pups. They are cute little slivery animals. Won't be long and they'll be out of their boxes.

KIRBY is quite satisfied with his new car. It's not new, but it takes him where he wants to go. It's costing him a little more insurance, but what matter. He's an insurance man, anyhow.

We overlooked, several weeks ago, that MR. and MRS. ARTHUR SCOTT and family went to Pittsburgh to visit relatives. His '31 Oldsmobile held up under the trip and came puffing down Belvidere to its stable in the garage—just as sturdy as it had been before it started out.

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

KATHERINE'S visit to the Falls had been made as natural and pleasant as possible. She and Charles trotted off to school together, played together in the afternoons, had their supper upstairs and then, in smug dressing gowns, met in Fanny's bedroom for a half hour of reading. When Katherine first went to bed, in one of the third-floor guest rooms, a night light was left burning until the upstairs maid crawled into a couch at the foot of her bed to ease any loneliness or strangeness that might engulf her. Katherine waked regularly each night to hear the rippling snore of her protector whom it would have taken a four-alarm fire to rouse. She was fascinated by the whistle that followed each snort and found the accompaniment very comforting when the first still light of dawn made the room big with humping shadows.

She had accepted the sudden move from Commonwealth Avenue as part of the new strangeness of the last week. She was not exactly afraid in this room, she assured herself as she undressed after supper. The lamp was bright over the turned-down bed—but she walked a little stiffly from bed to chair to dresser, unwilling to relax her vigilance over the four shadowy corners. Charles was only one room away. She was sitting on the bed in her bloomers and ferris waist, undoing the stubborn garters when a knock at the door made her jump. She ran to the door and pulled it open very much surprised to find her father with Aunt Fanny, and not Charles. Fanny stood aside and Marvell cried out, "Hullo, Kit! I've come back as fast as I could."

She had not expected him at all, but she accepted his return as another fanciful twist of the past week. She smiled up at him in response, whereupon he lifted her up and [illegible] across the room to the bed. She had no dignified position to maintain before Aunt Fanny, so she grinned broadly, balancing herself with her hand on his shoulder. Fanny closed the door upon them.

"Can I help?" he inquired, bending down to unfasten her shoes. She looked at his grayish hair glinting in the light and putting one hand upon it was pleased to find it as soft as her own. When she was finally in her crocheted slippers and woolly bathrobe, Marvell lifted her onto his lap. She sitted easily against his shoulders and for the first time since she had been in the room relaxed luxuriously.

"Here's the plan going, Kit!" he asked seriously.

She wriggled a little, crossing one crocheted toe against the other and then said, "I've learned my lines, but," and here her voice dropped, "but the teacher says I am not mean enough for Cinderella's sister."

"Can't you be downright sweety for a half an hour?"

She sighed dolefully. "It's all so pretty. I keep forgetting to be cross."

He didn't dare ask when the first performance was to be given. Instead he plunged into the thicket of his own hopes with hopeful enthusiasm.

"I've got a wonderful plan for us, Kit," he began. "We're going to the country. We've got a house. That's why I went away. See," he pulled out his wallet, a worn pigskin rectangle, with the faded letters of his name in gold. He took out a paper.

"What's that?"

"That's the bill of sale. Well, to be more exact, it is an I.O.U. till Ben gives us some money."

She was more interested in the wallet, soft with wear, filled with papers. She ran her fingers over its satiny surface.

"We're going to live there together and you'll be in the country as you wanted to be."

"This summer?" She was watching him closely, warned of some impending disappointment.

"No-o. Sooner than that. Right away. And Kit, there's an old carriage house that we can make into our own theatre and put on our own plays—whatever we like best!"

"Then I won't be here for the play?" She read her answer in his face which was disappointed and troubled. She had seen him look that way before. It was, in fact, her clearest memory of him. Two years ago at Christmas, one of those rare occasions that her father had stayed at home for any length of time, there had been a Christmas party. Every one received a joke or a tiny present. Marvell had glowed that evening. Kit had given him as many sidewise looks as she could spare from the good things on her plate and the speculation of the surprise to come... She had forgotten now what Marvell had pulled out. It was a little red cardboard box. Flushed and pleased as a boy, he opened it eagerly. It was empty. He shook it hopefully—there wasn't even cotton inside—nothing.

He must have realized then that they had fallen short of gifts and that they had not expected him at this celebration. His look of disappointment was quickly erased by a troubled, half apologetic glance he gave around the table—as if he were ashamed of his eagerness the moment before.

Cries of "See what I got!" "What did you draw?" rang out in the room. Under cover of the hubbub, Marvell caught Kit's stare and said to her with a wink, "I got a pretty box." Kit was ashamed. Ashamed of the empty box, of the carelessness of her mother, who was showing her own gaudy rhinestone pin to Uncle Proctor, ashamed of the little heaps of tissue by the others' plates. This had made a strong impression upon her because disappointment was one of the few emotions she could share with the adult world. The irritation or anger or even tears of grown-ups were mostly a mystery to her—they were concerned with subtler outrages than she could understand. But this she recognized. He was as vulnerable as she. He could have a hurt, too. The memory of it still hurt her.

And something in her first response had been as empty as that little red box.

"I'd better tell them tomorrow that I'm going away," she said decidedly. "They can choose someone else."

He was about to speak, but she moved out of his arms and sitting up straight, she added excitedly, "Won't they be mad when I tell them that we are going to give a play—in the country!"

* * *

At the end of the evening, just as Ben was suggesting they should all retire early, Marvell made a last appeal for reassurance. "Don't you think I did the right thing? I/want Kit to have excitement in everything she does—now. I don't want her to keep waiting all her life for something better—I want it perfect now! Do you see?" He turned to Fanny. "When I saw the first star come out all by itself, I thought of Kit. Do you remember that line somewhere in the Bible 'I will give him the Morning Star'—I know just what that means!"

"It's a fine thing to do, Marvell," Fanny's eyes were filled with compassion, "and I know Elizabeth would bless it and even Proctor would concede..."

"He'll never get the chance to concede anything more. He conceded me Kit, damn his shriveled little soul."

Fanny put out her hand. "Don't hate him, Marvell. It will only hurt you."

He smiled at her anxiety. "We shall have no cause to, Kit and I. We shall love much."

Ben put the screen in front of the fire, frowning as he thought—this loving much, it costs a good deal. It had cost Proctor, Elizabeth; Elizabeth, Marvell; and what would be demanded now? He was not as eager as Fanny to accept Marvell's new state of grace. There was something on Proctor's side even now to make it unfair that Marvell should be scot free of the past. Fanny was altogether too tender in judgment.

"Shall we drink to it all?" asked Marvell impetuously.

Ben smiled in spite of himself. Who could refuse him? He filled three liqueur glasses with brandy.

"Not to the happy ending," cried Marvell, his glass extended, "but to the good solution!"

'Think This Over'

By William "Doc" Campbell

Television — Utmost Miracle

Well in THINK corral while we are taking a bit to SEE it work its miracles tonight. As a matter of fact, the other night I had a thrill—and it was a thrill! The feeling that New York City was in that room, with sound and sight, was uncanny! Monday night I again thrilled and even more so, for I saw old friends (heretofore only heard by radio) come to life, in person, or as near to it as a photo can make it.

The grand Firestone program has intrigued me for years, using the highest talent in opera and symphonic music, but to sit and see (life-like) Howard Barlow, whom I have heard for years, to see his age on the screen, his virile contact with his wonderful orchestra, was indeed "terrific." Then came the apex — Helen Traubel. Years ago, before she became (next to Kirstin Flagstadt) the greatest Wagnerian interpreter of this era, I heard her magnificent voice on radio and predicted her a great success. But today to SEE her, singing! Such poise, such ease of expression, truly a Metropolitan Opera star of about (?) age, looking so lovely and beautiful.

I sat as in a daze watching her compelling personality, for NOW I could SEE it! and it was marvelous. Of course some minor flaws will have to be ironed out of today's television. But all in all, to think that in my friend's room, all about us, in the air, were PICTURE programs upon programs, ready to be "switched in" for our enjoyment and education, was beyond belief.

Soon video will be telecasting great old masterpieces by Raphael, Rubens, Sargent, Valesque, Bellows, etc., from the Metropolitan Museum of Art, then again, glorious grand opera from the "Met" with intense action and drama, also the interiors of great cathedrals, here and abroad. My! Church services will be telecast from all over the world, and in COLOR . . . supmtuous color which was reserved only for prints.

So, let us be grateful to science for these great progressive steps in passing on to us these things that only kings could command in bygone days.

Why go out on a rainy night? Let us gather the family around a good television set and "grow and grow" in all kinds of appreciation and education. Yea, we are living in a remarkable age, and the "surface has only just been scratched," as I heard Thomas A. Edison declare a few years ago via RADIO.

So, be glad that you are in AMERICA, where speed and perfection are the watch words.

"THINK THIS OVER."

Next week: "Tolerance — that bandied word!"

This Is Bob Too

Bob Flint

Anyone who yells, "Hey Bob" around the Hurd and Thomas Sinclair Service Station these days stands a good chance of being stampeded.

Bob Hurd and Bob Thomas have announced the addition of Bob Flint to their staff as mechanic and head tune-up man. Flint was formerly chief mechanic at Sheppard's Garage in Urbana.

The station, at Sullivant-av and Binns-blvd, now offers complete service in motor tune-ups, minor repairs, and brake service.

Flint lives at 157 N. Eureka-av.

Escape Attempt Ends In Wreck

Three boys from the Bureau of Juvenile Research, 2280 W. Broad-st, "borrowed" a 1949 auto from Gerard W. McDonald, 2497 Steele-av, last Wednesday and proceeded on an escapade that ended a few hours later in a wreck.

The youths escaped from the institution at 6 p. m., stole the car at 6:30 p. m., and a few hours later were apprehended by the State Highway Police when the auto struck a road block near Hamilton, Ohio. They were not injured.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Isaiah 49:1-4; 50:4-9; 52:13-53:12; Jeremiah 38:1-13.

He is despised and rejected of men; a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief; and we hid as it were our faces from Him; He was despised, and we esteemed Him not.

He was oppressed, and He was afflicted; yet He opened not His mouth: He is brought as a lamb to the slaughter, and as a sheep before her shearers is dumb, so He openeth not His mouth.

He was taken from prison and from judgment; and who shall declare His generation? for He was cut off out of the land of the living: for the transgression of My people.

They took Jeremiah and cast him into the dungeon that was in the court of the prison: and they let him down with cords into the mire.

MEMORY VERSE—Joshua 1:9.

Sunday Is Women's Day At Oakley Ave. Baptist Church

Plans are being made for Women's Day at Oakley Avenue Baptist Church, Sunday, Nov. 13, with the theme "Thy Kingdom Come Through Christian Womanhood."

Mrs. Ruth L. Rice will serve as Acting Superintendent of Sunday School at 9:30 a. m., with Mrs. Edith Gentry leading the worship service. With Mrs. Hattie Rose as hostess, visiting teachers will be in charge of the classes and music for the worship period under the direction of Mrs. Ollie George. A Quiz Kiddie program will be conducted by Mrs. Edmund B. Paxton.

At the 11 a. m. service, the topic "A Charge to Women, Thy Kingdom Come Through Christian Womanhood," will be given by Mrs. Mary Glascor. Guest soloist will be Mrs. Roberta M. Basnett. A special sermon to women will be delivered by the pastor, Rev. J. Ashburn, Jr.

Highlighting the afternoon service at 3:30 will be an address by Mae Davis of Suenn Industrial Mission, Monrovia, Liberia, West Africa. Musical selections will be rendered by Mrs. Sylvesta Morgan, Charlotte Johnson, Mrs. Rhenetta Davis and Mrs. Inez Alexander.

Closing the day's activities at 7:30 p. m. will be a musical program, featuring some of the best talent in the city, under the direction of Mrs. Marguerite Colwell. This will be followed by a special candlelight "gift service," presented by the following women: Mary Glascor, Rose Petitis, Ruth Rice, Ellie Biggers, Florence Slaughter, Mattie Miller, Edith Gentry, Ada Miller, Eleanor Rowe, Victoria Brown, Anna Margaret Beatty, Zenobia Rose, Lillian Kelley, LaBlonda Ingram, Hattie Rose, Janet Lane, Virginia Ashburn and Irene Blackwell.

The public is invited to attend.

Thatcher's Daily Doings

We Visit Versailles

Wednesday, June 28

Jean and Solon would have liked to stay home while their visitors were in town but next month they have planned a vacation in the Scandinavian countries and Uncle Sam doesn't like to have his workers taking too many days off. For this reason we had the day to ourselves.

About ten o'clock this morning the Frenchman who had brought us from the station came again to the apartment with the jeep. His name was Paul and he could talk no English. Solon had phoned to us that Paul was coming to take us to Versailles, the famous Palace of Louis XIV where the treaty ending World War I was signed. It is located some 10 to 15 miles outside of Paris.

Using his now familiar fast French driving methods, Paul bounced us through Parisian streets and boulevards past many places which were almost a blur as we passed by. Paul was accommodating and wanted us to see the important places. Unable to say what he wanted in a way we could understand, he could only tap us on the hand and point to something which we were passing at the moment. What they were we do not know except two statues. These were on opposite sides of the road as we approached Versailles. We could understand Paul when he pointed to them and said "Pershing-Lafayette." These were monuments erected in honor of these famous American and French generals.

At the Palace of Versailles, Paul parked the jeep in the space reserved for cars. With a beckoning motion of his arm we gathered that we were to follow him. In doing so we walked across at least a quarter mile of rough cobblestone which covered the enormous courtyard. The sun was coming down in typical American fashion to let us know that today was really hot. Soon we came to one of the Palace entrances. Several touring parties of school children were waiting their turn to begin conducted tours. Most of them were French but to one of the groups the guide was lecturing in German.

When our guide came he took us up marble stairs to the balcony of the Chapel of Louis XIV and other rulers of France. In the comparatively few moments we were there it was impossible to see all of the beauty that is in this chapel. It is made entirely of pure white marble, carved and polished in such a way as to make it what we would call the most beautiful chapel we have ever seen. The balcony upon which we stood was at one time the Royal Balcony where kings and queens used to sit when they attended services here.

From the chapel we were taken through all of the enormous rooms of the palace. We saw great tapestries, as big as the side of an ordinary house, used as wall decorations. Gold was very much in evidence as decoration in many places. We saw the bedroom of Marie Antoinette and were shown the rooms through which she escaped when angry crowds broke into the palace and threatened her life. From one window in the palace we could look out into a courtyard where she was eventually beheaded. From another palace window we gazed out at the great gardens and numerous fountains which we would like to have seen at night when colored lights are played upon them.

From ancient history we came to more modern history when we entered the Grand Ballroom. In size it was the largest such room we had ever been in. We have been in the ballrooms of many modern hotels but this one must have been at least three times as large as any of the others. This one, like all the palace rooms, was decorated profusely in gold and crystals. Mirrors lined the walls between the windows and gold frame, needlepointed chairs circled the room. Many enormous and exquisite crystal chandeliers were used to light the room on state occasions. Each one was capable of holding several hundred candles so that it must have been a most pleasing sight to see these thousands of candles and the crystal pendants throwing their flickering lights upon the silks and satins and velvets of those who took part in the formal dances of those long ago days.

It was in this room that the Treaty ending World War I was signed. We tried to visualize what the scene was then when generals and statesmen of many countries were assembled here to sign the historic pact. We tried to see President Wilson and General Pershing as they took part therein. A moment later we were thinking of this again when we were shown the table upon which the treaty was signed.

With regret that we had not the time to see more and that we had not seen anywhere near all that could be seen in the palace, we returned to the cobblestones to join the waiting Paul. One more ride in the jeep and we were back in the apartment.

This afternoon Violet and I felt a little more confident about our ability to get around on our own. After we had lunch we decided to go several blocks down the street to a department store which Jean pointed out to us last night. We found it without difficulty and also found that the store was opened after the customary two hour siesta. What we wanted to buy were some berets and some French perfume for those back home who like nice things to smell. To our surprise we were able to make ourselves understood sufficiently to make both purchases. When Violet wanted to buy a blouse for herself we were not so successful. It seemed that we could not get beyond the word "bleuse" for blouse. When it came to size or color we were lost so Violet has to remain satisfied with her current outfit until we can learn more words.

To get back to the apartment would be as easy and as quick as it had been going to the shops. So we thought. We walked along one street, crossed over to the other side to get in the shade and continued walking toward an expected turning. Soon we began thinking we had gone too far. Street signs did not bear any familiar names. Crossing back to the side from which we started, we noticed a sign which said "Blvd. Perraire." All we had to do then was to find No. 100. That wasn't so easy. We walked for more than two hours in the hot sun trying to find the place. It was only after numerous natives had tried in French but not in English to tell us where to go and after we had criss-crossed the boulevard many times and lost ourselves on unwanted streets branching out from the circle that we managed to get home. Those at No. 100 had been wondering what had happened to us.

Dinner was soon ready and followed by what was thought to be the last conversation we would have until we would be seeing Jean and Solon in Columbus at some uncertain future date. As soon as dinner was over we packed our bags and took a taxi to the Palais d' Orsay. Earlier this evening the tour party which we were to join tomorrow and which had left London this morning had arrived. We wanted to spend the night in the hotel in order to be able to be on time for the morning start.

Because this was our first experience with procedures in continental hotels we let Solon act as our agent. He signed the register, filled out the police cards and got our rooms. We all went up to the room where we had another final conversation.

An Important Message - First of A Series

SEN. ROBERT A. TAFT

IS A MIGHTY BULWARK AGAINST THOSE WHO WOULD SUBVERT THE PRINCIPLES UPON WHICH AMERICA WAS FOUNDED

What He Says He Believes;
What He Believes He Does,
Regardless of What It May Cost Him Through Smear
Campaigns By Enemies

SEN. ROBERT A. TAFT
America's Greatest Statesman

TAFT stands out today as the number one statesman of the country because his qualities of intellect, courage and integrity are devoted to but one cause--the service of his country ... He is conservative but not illiberal ... Some of our political leaders are ultra-conservative, thinking in the same vein that was popular in the days of William McKinley. Others are to be found on the 'liberal' side of every question, right or wrong. Others, lacking courage to present ideas of their own, cling to the middle-of-the-road and me-too formulas and avoid all controversial questions which might endanger votes. Many are adept at the art of baby-kissing and back-slapping to gain some small recognition.

Not so with Sen. Bob Taft ... Although he may lack the so-called 'glamour' of many men in public life (glamour is a dime a dozen in Hollywood) and the oratorical gifts of some of his colleagues, he stands head and shoulders above the rest because of his keen intellect (respected even by his adversaries) grass-roots logic, unimpeachable integrity and sincerity of purpose. He never dodges an issue nor ducks an assignment because it is loaded with political dynamite as witness his acceptance in the 80th Congress of the chairmanship of the Senate Labor Committee at a time when he was a candidate for the presidency.

With Democrats in control of both houses of the 81st Congress it has not been Truman but Sen. Taft who has dominated the scene, ever fighting to preserve the freedom of the people from bureaucratic dictation.

Phil Murray and Bill Green declare that union labor will unseat Sen. Taft in the next election and he has accepted the challenge. Considering Taft's wonderful record as a public servant and true statesman it is ironical that he should have to battle these power-drunk Big Labor lilliputians just because they fear that he may block their personal aims to become greater than the U. S. government ... If Murray and Green had the welfare of the nation and their union members at heart they should be shouting for Taft's re-election and seeking more real American leaders like him. But they would rather destroy America's greatest asset in their greedy quest for more power ... They make a well-matched team with the socialistic bureaucrats who are undermining the fundamentals of the Republic and spreading their greedy tentacles into every community in the land.

The world will be watching Ohio voters next November. If they swallow the propaganda of the Truman-Green-Murray crowd and defeat a man of Taft's caliber it will be an indelible blot on the escutcheon of the state and an irreparable loss to the nation. IT MUST NOT HAPPEN.

THE WHOLE COUNTRY OWES TAFT A DEBT OF GRATITUDE
IT'S UP TO OHIO TO PAY IT!

This message is one of a series made possible by a group of patriotic men and women.

Zoning—Stepping Stone Or Stumbling Block?

The recent election in Prairie Twp. indicates that the people still favor rural zoning, although a hardship has been worked on many by the zoning laws.

Some have said that zoning is 10 years too late to be of any assistance. Others claim that the law is good, but is being poorly administered. People seeking to set up businesses in areas zoned for residences only say the law is poor because, not being retroactive, it gives businesses established before its passage a virtual monopoly in the area.

All of these arguments have some basis. Zoning is not a cure-all. It will not clean up nuisances that already exist, nor will it correct past mistakes. Wisely administered it can assure orderly growth in the future.

Merely passing the zoning law does not relieve the voter of all obligation in seeing that it is wisely administered. All too often the approval or disapproval of zoning changes depends upon which person or faction is able to muster the largest or most vociferous group at a hearing on the matter.

Tabling a matter "for further study" should mean just that, and not "give us time to see how the political wind blows."

In some sections businesses are sorely needed for the economic growth of communities. It shouldn't be necessary for people to have to travel miles to do their shopping. In other instances businesses have been approved where there is absolutely no need for them.

The principle of zoning is good. The people see the need for a zoning law and for the most part support it. To keep the support of the people confusion must be eliminated and changes made must be for the good of the majority.

Steps should be taken to make sure that no one puts a lot of money into a venture before being told that zoning laws do not allow finishing the property.

This will be a difficult task, but if it is not done township after township will undoubtedly repeal the law, and progress made during the past year will go for nothing. If we keep rural zoning, we must make it work.

Child Health Is Subject Of West Broad PTA Speaker

Dr. T. E. Shaffer

What parents can do to raise the physical and mental health standard of their children will be the subject discussed by Dr. Thomas E. Shaffer before the West Broad Parent-Teacher Association at 7:30 p. m. Thursday in the school auditorium. Mrs. F. H. Posey, 109 S. Westgate-av, is program chairman.

Associate professor of pediatrics and preventative medicine at Ohio State University, Dr. Shaffer also serves as university school physician and health coordinator for the university.

Dr. Shaffer took his bachelor of arts and doctor of medicine degrees at Cornell University and served as instructor of pediatrics at Yale University before coming to Ohio State in 1946.

He served from 1942 to 1946 as a major in the army medical corps stationed at O'Reilly General Hospital, Springfield, Mo., and in the office of the surgeon general, Washington, D. C.

First Winners In Photogenic Child Contest

Karla Marlow

Susan Peyton

Larry Payne

Ellen Murnane

John Reilly

Karlene Koch

Pictured are the six prize winners in the photogenic baby and child contest being sponsored by J. Curtis Allen, the Hilltop Record and Hilltop Merchants.

Winners in the baby division are Karla Marlow, 3½ months, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Omer Marlow, 562 S. Terrace-av; Susan Peyton, 7 months, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Peyton, 356 S. Huron-av; and Larry Payne, 9 months, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Payne, 32 N. Westmoor-av.

In the children's division the following won: Eileen Murnane, 15 months, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Murnane, 640 Butler-av; John Reilly, two years, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Reilly, 366 S. Huron-av; and Karlene Koch, three years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl O. Koch, 388 Demorest-rd.

Those wishing to enter their baby or child in the contest should contact J. Curtis Allen by phoning Ra. 2324 or going to his new studio at 2575½ W. Broad-st.

Photographs of this week's winners will be displayed in the window of Seiler's Department Store.

10 Preliminary Winners Compete For Top Honors

Ten contestants, the first and second prize winners in the preliminary contests, will vie for top honors in the Hilltop YMCA "Stars of Tomorrow" contest at the Old Trail Theater Wednesday night.

Prizes in the contest, which has been carried on at the Theatre over a period of six weeks, are: first prize, $50 and an inscribed plaque; second prize, $15; and third prize $10.

The first and second place winners who will compete in the show are:

First week: Sharon and Sheila Albery, 2634 Elliott-av, baton twirlers; and Bob Kieper, 2356 Briggs-rd, singer.

Second week: Donald Hessler, 252 S. Warren-av, yodeler; and Jean Sullivan, 97 Powell-av, singer.

Third week: Susan Ann Vince, 410 Cherry-dr, acrobatic dancer; and Marilyn Shroyer, 289 N. Burgess-av, ballet dancer.

Fourth week: Paul Zavatsky, 648 S. Wayne-av, pianist; and Mitzi Krabinas, 440 S. Roys-av, dancer.

Fifth week: Carroll Ann Scholl, 3030 Olive-st, dancer; and Betty Harper, 54 Dakota-av, singer.

The double - feature movie shown in conjunction with the contest Wednesday night will be "Rope of Sand" with Burt Lancaster, and "The Big Cat."

Dodge Winner To Be Announced From Stage

Someone is going to have the keys of a new Dodge sedan in their possession when they leave the Old Trail Theater Wednesday night.

The winners in the Hilltop Record subscription contest will be announced from the stage of the theater just preceding the "Stars of Tomorrow" contest finals.

The contest officially ended at 2 p. m. Monday. The judges met at First Federal Savings and Loan Co. to count the money which had been deposited at the Hilltop Branch of the Ohio National Bank during the last period of the contest. During Tuesday and Wednesday the subscriptions will be checked at the Record to ascertain whether they are new orders or renewals. The judges will meet again Wednesday to verify the findings.

All reports have been turned in to the Hilltop bank and have been kept secret during the last period of the contest. At the beginning of the period, Mack Pemberton, West High School football coach, was in first place, but at least 19 other contestants were still very much in the running. Any of them may get those Dodge keys Wednesday night.

Second prize in the contest, an RCA Victor television set, will be displayed on the stage of the theater and then delivered to the home of its winner.

Other prizes; a $250 grocery order, a $150 merchandist order, and cash prizes, will also be awarded from the stage.

Contestants not receiving one of the major prizes will be given a 20 per-cent commission on the subscriptions they have sold.

C. Carlton Hartley, Record publisher, declared that the contest was "a great success."

Revival Services In Progress At Friends Church

Revival services, which are to be held nightly at 7:30 through November 22, were begun last evening at the Sullivant Avenue Friends Church. The services are in charge of Dr. G. Arnold Clymer, whose home church is in Amlin, Ohio.

When contacted several months ago, Dr. Clymer indicated that his schedule would not permit his coming to Columbus. Later, however, he consented to be the speaker in this eight-day revival.

Dr. Clymer is president of the Board of Trustees of the Cleveland Bible College, from which he graduated in 1923, and is an active member in many other Christian organizations. Everyone is invited to come and hear the messages of this Christian leader.

Officials Investigate Ballot Mixup

Some missing ballots in the Norwich Twp. School District School District brought Franklin County election officials into action, and if the ballots are found, may determine an extremely close race for township board of education.

The ballots were cast in New Rome, which is in Prairie Twp. in last Tuesday's election for members of the Norwich Twp. Board of Election. Some voters, living south of Trabue-rd, in Prairie Twp., are in the Norwich School District. They did not receive Norwich Township School board ballots.

One properly marked ballot was found in a "disputed ballot" envelope. If the ballots are found, they may determine the second victor in a four-cornered race. C. H. O'Brien is in first place with 511 votes. Two votes separate three other candidates for the second vacancy.

Mrs. Thelma DeWolfe has 400 votes, New Woodruff has 399, and Carlton Liggett has 398.

Hilltop Child Falls From Car

Dixie Lee Koontz, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Koontz, 175 S. Sylvan-av, suffered bruises and abrasions on the head and left side when she fell from the rear seat of an automobile in Falmouth, Ky., Thursday evening.

She was en route to Atlanta, Ga. with her mother and Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Marot at the time of the accident.

Dixie Lee was given first aid in Falmouth and later removed to the General Hospital in Cincinnati. She is now under a doctor's care and is convalescing at home.

Mr. Marot said the car was traveling at about 45 miles per hour when the child fell out.

Leg Broken As Car Hits Bicycle

Struck by an eastbound car as he rode his bicycle north across W. Broad-st at Mix-rd, Carl Wagner, Jr., 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wagner, 4655 W. Broad-st, Thursday night suffered a fracture of the right leg.

Deputies identified the driver as Joseph J. Susil, 24, of 2417 N. James-rd.

The boy was taken to Mt. Carmel Hospital by the Prairie Township emergency squad and transferred to Children's Hospital.

B. W. Gray Is Winner In Prof. Pig-Skin Contest

The City League championship game last week was a surprise to a lot of contestants in the Professor Pig-Skin contest.

Thinking that North would beat Central eliminated more contestants than any of the other three games. None was eliminated on the Grandview-Arlington game since that contest ended in a tie. Nearly twice as many contestants picked Arlington to win, than picked Grandview as the victors.

The ten dollar check for first place this week is on the way to B. W. Gray, 304 West Park-av. Second prize of two tickets to the Westmont Theater goes to M. Willcot, 309 16th-av.

A mere seven points separated the winner from the second place contestant. The third best guesser was eight points behind the second place winner.

Only one more chance remains to get some of the easy money being given out for grid predictions. The last contest appears inside today's paper.

Hilltop Man Appointed U. S. Consul in Reykjavik, Iceland

Mrs. Lillian G. Smith, 127 N. Wayne-av, is the proud mother of the newly appointed consul for the U. S. State Department at the capital of Iceland, Reykjavik. Until recently her son, Merlin Eugene Smith, 42, was second secretary and vice-consul in Iceland.

Mr. Smith, who has been in the country's foreign service since 1930, seldom has the opportunity to visit his mother, long a resident of the Hilltop. In the past 19 years he has had occasion to visit her three times at her homes on Harris-av and Wayne-av, between transfers to new posts. When the elder Mr. Smith was living the family lived on Harris-av.

Served In Many Posts

In his years of service in the state department, Smith has been stationed in many lands. He started his career in 1930 when he was named clerk on the consul's office in Barcelona, Spain. From there he went to Newcastle-on-the-Tyne, England, where he served as vice-consul from 1931 to 1935. Then he came back to the Hilltop for a short visit.

After only a short period in England, Smith returned to the U. S. to marry a former student of his. After graduating from Grandview High School in 1925, Smith taught school in West Virginia, where his aunt was superintendent of schools. It was then that he met Josephine, the girl he was to marry.

Following the marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Smith went to Venezuela for one year, and then to Port-of-Spain, Trinidad. The Smiths, which by now included a son, Sheldon, visited Mother Smith for Christmas of 1941. With the nation engaged in war, Mrs. Smith was unable to accompany her husband to his station in South America. Later Smith was transferred to Monterey, Mexico, where his wife and son joined him. They were there for three years.

Returns Home

In 1946, after the war, the Smith family, with another son, Richard, went to La Pax, Bolivia. They were there a year when the climate brought ill health to Mr. Smith. He was called to Washington and was interned at the Bethesda Naval Hospital in Maryland, near the capital.

For two years, after his recovery, Smith taught new foreign-service career men in the Pentagon building. Early this year he was ordered to go to Iceland.

After graduating from high school, Smith attended Ohio State University for two years before going to Spain to study the language of that country.

In a letter dated Oct. 24, from Smith to his mother, he stated that he had been in charge of the office while the U. S. ambassador had attended a UN meeting in Paris.

Jean Fairchild Injured Sat.

Jean Fairchild, 17, 24 Whitethorne-av, suffered cuts about the head and face when the car in which she was riding collided with another car at 17th and Joyce-aves late Saturday night.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Preston Campbell, and a senior at West High School. She is employed part time by the Shank and Saunders Insurance Co.

The car in which she was injured was driven by Dick Lowe, 2321 Taylor-av. They were returning from a visit with Lowe's aunt.

Church Players Present 'Truth On Holiday' Dec. 2

"Truth on a Holiday," a comedy in three acts by Glenn Hughes, will be presented by the Players Guild of the Glenwood Methodist Church, Friday evening, Dec. 2, at 8:15 in Motter Hall.

Cast in the production are Howard Moon, Mary Millar, Betty Moon, Delores Shrum, Emerson Harlow, Ethel Galloway, Dick Brenner, Tom Bohanon, Harold Remington, Bob Sandusky, Merle Earle and Marian Bohanon. The direction is by Annis Turner.

This is a story of a coed, Alice Grant, who writes a term paper in college describing her own father as one who is suffering from delusions of grandeur. The paper is written in fun, but the psychology professor insists on checking up on the details on the very day the father in question accepts the nomination for governor. On the same day Mrs. Grant, contrary to the wishes of her husband, invites an interior decorator to inspect the home. To avoid detection, the decorator assumes the role of a detective, and is, of course, confused with Prof. Prickett—and so it goes.

Into this absurd chaos come a newspaper reporter, a politician, several love affairs, and a kitchen maid who is a scream. No one dares tell anyone else the truth. It's really "nothing but the truth" in reverse, and a hearty laugh from start to finish.

Local Man Named Administrator At New Hospital

Appointment of Matthew K. Augenstein, 110 S. Brinker-av, until recently chief admitting officer at Children's Hospital, as administrator of the new Giles Memorial Hospital, Pearisburg, Va., was announced last week.

Mr. Augenstein received his master degree in business administration at Ohio State University at the close of the summer quarter. He had served at Children's Hospital since 1947 while completing his work at the university.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Augenstein of Marietta, Mr. Augenstein served as freshman football and and basketball coach at Marietta College from 1936 to 1939, graduating from the college in the latter year. He took postgraduate work at Northwestern University before coming to Ohio State.

During the war he served with the State Highway Testing Laboratory on the OSU campus.

Mr. Augenstein will assume his duties at the Virginia hospital Dec. 1.

Vandals Wreck Valleyview Home

Burglar-vandals chopped their way into the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Carroll Balo, 2594 Valleyview-dr, last Friday while Mr. Balo, a Navy veteran, marched in the Armistice Day parade.

Using a pick-ax to hack through a heavy wooden door leading from the garage to the basement, the vandals stole two pocket watches, four Masonic pins, several old coins, and Balo's Navy service records, valued at "about $750."

While in the house, the vandals poured two bottles of soft drink on a bed and splattered the walls. They also ransacked drawers and threw papers and clothing over the floors.

HRCA Meets At W. Mound St. School

H. T. Van Ness, president of the High Ridge Civic Assn., urges all members to be present at the Tuesday evening meeting at 7:45, at the W. Mound-st school.

A number of guest speakers will be present, and plans will be made for the High Ridge annual Christmas party. Members of the local PTA will be special guests at the meeting.

About Folks You Know

Goings — Comings — Doings
Of Your Hilltop Neighbors

By Helen James, Society Editor

Jean Fairchild, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Preston Campbell, 24 Whitethorne-av, who was in an auto accident Saturday around midnight, suffered severe chin cuts, broken teeth, and badly skinned legs. According to her doctor she has to take it easy for the next few days, but hopes to be back at work (Shank and Saunders) and school by the first of next week.

• • •

And Margaret Yahn is sick in bed with 'something.' It hasn't been decided yet whether she has the measles, tonsillitis, or influenza or a combination of all three. Margaret's parents are Mr. and Mrs. John G. Yahn, 1586 Union-av.

• • •

Little Dixie Lee Koontz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Koontz, 175 S. Sylvan-av—who we reported last week was starting on a trip south with her mother — fell out of the car on the way and suffered severe facial and head cuts. She is now at home but isn't expected to be completely recovered for three or four months.

• • •

Mrs. Zella Hetterscheidt, 69 S. Ogden-av, is now in the process of recovering from an operation in White Cross Hospital. The operation occurred Monday morning and she will be in the hospital for nine or ten days.

• • •

Congratulations to Patricia Cozad, a junior in the school of nursing at Ohio State, who was on the honor roll summer quarter. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Cozad, 546 S. Richardson-av.

• • •

Some changes of address just reported: Jack Shank, formerly of 38 Binns-blvd, has moved to 45 N. Westgate-av. And J. R. Snavely, 63 N. Hague-av, will claim 301 S. Sylvan-av as his future home.

• • •

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Kimes and Nona Kimes, 246 Maple-dr, have as their house guest, Mrs. George W. Cook (Ann Marshall) of Miami, Fla. Mrs. Cook arrived by Delta Airlines Sajurday evening, and will stay during the month of November. Mr. Cook had also made plans to come, but at the last minute had to take care of business in Florida.

Install Mrs. McLurg As President Of Scotland Daughters

At the regular meeting of the Daughters of Scotland, Purple Heather Lodge No. 9, Nov. 9, in the Silver Room of the Chittenden Hotel, installation of newly elected officers was held.

Those from the Hilltop were Mrs. John McLurg, president; Mrs. William McGuire, vice president; Mrs. John J. Roberts, recording secretary; Mrs. Margaret Armour, inside guard; Mrs. Margaret Borror, deputy. The past president was Mrs. Bella Stables. The installing officer was assisted by Cathy MacKenzie, also from the Hilltop.

Mrs. Roberts was appointed by the president to act as chairman of the annual Burns' dinner and dance to be held at the Chittenden Hotel, Jan. 28.

JOB'S DAUGHTERS NEWS NOTES

By Patti Halycross

Well, here another meeting went by and there was plenty of excitement. We held our semi-election of officers—two to the line this time. After a tough battle, Shirley Shroyer came through with flying colors and was elected as our guide. The station for marshal then was up next and Geneva Emrich came out on top for that. So a great big congratulation goes to you girls. I might also add that Mrs. Roberts, our guardian, came prepared with handkerchiefs but the girls brought their own this time. Even though election time is a happy feeling for the one who wins, it still kind of brings a few tears on.

Those who were elected another step higher were Nancy Hardy who was elected senior princess, Janet Roller, junior junior princess, and yours truly, honored queen.

Now that there is no more suspense, I'll go on with what happened in the rest of the meeting. A report was made that Mrs. Schulze, the mother of our fourth messenger, Judy, fell down the steps in her home. Let's hope for her a speedy recovery. Marjorie Compton, our librarian, read a poem entitled "A Boy and His Stomach."

The winner in our drawing was Barbara Wendell.

Julia, our present honored queen, announced again that our inspection will be Thursday, Nov. 17, at the YMCA and our banquet at 6 p. m.

We were honored to have Ann Harter, guardian of bethel No. 22 of Delaware and grand marshall of the state of Ohio visit our bethel.

Our bethel was recently honored by being asked to institute a new bethel in Bexley. This will occur Nov. 16, the night after our inspection.

Oh hum! old tempest certainly does fugit, so I guess I had better close for now and get some work done. See you all at the banquet.

Mr., Mrs. Joseph Agee Given Farewell Party

A farewell party was given for Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Agee Saturday evening in the Hilltop Sporting Goods clubrooms. Mr. Agee left the service of the Hilltop Record Nov. 3 and has taken a position as salesman for the Mergenthaler Linotype Co. in Iowa.

Those present were Jim Stedman and Eve Gillick, Harry Franken and Angela Ebbert, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Trott, Mary Yahn, David Arick, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Prince, Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Shively, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Chet Rinehart, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Maxwell, Mr. and Mrs. C. Carlton Hartley, Mr. and Mrs. William Coon, Mr. and Mrs. James Skinner, Mr. and Mrs. Don Logan, and Robert Cavanaugh.

SALE SET FOR SATURDAY

The Glenwood Blue Star Mothers will meet at 8 p. m. Wednesday, Nov. 16, in the church parlors. Plans will be made for their rummage sale to be held Saturday, Nov. 9, at 340 S. Fourth-st. Anyone having articles to donate can bring them to the meeting or call RA. 2484 or RA. 3253.

Modern Poetry

THE TRAVELER

A worldly traveler
Is the wind and his child:
The breeze on the meadow
When the air is mild,
A blustering, roistering
Traveler he—
Who claps his passport
Down with a tree;
Or the mast of a schooner
Crushed on shoals;
And beats his song
On the beached atolls.
Yet how sweet is his voice
When he rests to dream
In the valley that shelters
The silver stream.

UNSHRIVEN

Certain that I could bury love,
I cut a brief, conclusive word
Into the stone I set above
The place where it had been interred.

Then I laid silence like a wreath
Upon the tears I could not shed,
Telling myself that underneath
All flesh was dust, all anguish dead.

By these deliberate rites, I tried
To carve an epitaph for love.
What is this phantom at my side
Wearing the very shroud I wove?

Don't Sell John Short

The miners and Mr. Lewis are in a tight spot, seemingly right behind the eight-ball. But John doesn't happen to be a front runner; as things get tougher, he gets smarter. He has gotten out of worse jams.

Plenty of people would give a lot to know what the old man is up to. The trouble is no ordinary person has imagination enough to cope with him. He could have ordered his men back for the rest of the month for some Christmas money, to stay out of President Truman's clutches, or goodness knows why.

If the operators really do have Mr. Lewis over the barrel, it will be their chance to show some statesmanship. Somebody some time will absolutely have to use restraint, understanding and patriotism because the days of dog eat dog are all over.

British View Of Us

In the Nov. 4 Manchester Guardian, Alistair Cooke reports: "... In theory Mr. Truman has everything to gain from maintaining neutrality, which can be interpreted to the embattled workers of the CIO as his way of standing pat with them.

"However, the risks of letting the strikes go on without any intervention from the White House are enormous. Some economists and business advisers have told the President that the coal and steel strikes have done irreparable damage to the general recovery and the present complacency of the public is a natural indifference to a cancer whose first painful symptoms have not yet appeared.

"In an indication that many of his critics say is typical, the President is now at the point of gambling on the weather. The Indian summer has been long and hot, and the mean daily temperature in the industrial cities of the East through October was two degrees higher than the mean daily in the longest stretch of Britain's heat-wave this summer."

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

THERE NEVER was such a glorious spring. March forgot that April stood as a calendar month and tried to startle summer with too early a rose. The farmers in Colcord did not like it at all. They hated trickiness in nature. A premature warm spell, they knew from experience, meant a black frost later, or a wet, cold summer. But Marvell accepted it as another proof that his luck had changed for good.

The farmer who rented him his horse and services was rather dubious about such early ploughing. "A freeze'll come and the earth will be hard as a rock again, so the seed can't break through. Or the rains will rot the seeds first."

"I'll take the risk," said Marvell, rather pitying this bleak man who didn't look as if he'd ever known what a risk was. He didn't waste any more time listening to further advice, he went right ahead and harrowed and sowed the seed. Their future crops were a sample of his and Kit's appetites: strawberries, raspberries, asparagus, with a few basic supplies thrown in. He got a boy from the town to help him and he had no idea how the town followed his every order and purchase with guffaws and winks. Everyone knew how high he'd paid for pullets, how he had been lured into the purchase of two "black Jerseys" and one, lazy, stumble-footed white horse. But Marvell was satisfied. Here was a farm he had bought and he was a farmer.

Nor had he neglected Kit. He had hired a woman through Brewster, a Mrs. Crane, who came in daily to clean and cook. And he thought he had cheered Kit up immensely by announcing there was to be no school until fall. She hadn't responded with the same exuberance he remembered having had, as a boy, under similar circumstances. She was as subdued as a lamb following him or Mrs. Crane around part of the day and for the rest never out of sight of the front door, walking up and down, bouncing a ball against the gray shingled sides of the house. Of course they had to get used to one another, he assured himself. That was why he kept her at home. That, and his fierce determination that nothing in this new life should resemble the life that was past. No restrictions, no "when-you-are-older-you'll - see - I'm - doing - this - for - your-own-good" schedule of Proctor's.

"You're to do just as you want," he told her, "get up when you wake, go to bed when you're sleepy, picnic outside, play anywhere you like. Only, you must drink lots of milk..." And when her face grew more solemn with each word, he added hastily, "Because we have so much of it." It troubled him that she was so different from the talkative child at the Parker House or the tender, confiding one at Fanny's. But there were two promising signs, he thought. She had picked out an old tangled flower bed in front of the house to work in, and she called him "Marvell."

Kit herself was totally unprepared for any of it. Freedom to do as she pleased meant little because she had never really disliked most of the things she had been made to do in her life. The house fascinted her—it had a smell of its own so strong that it was almost a presence. Not a bad smell, but woodsy, tangy, almost green. She mentioned it to Mrs. Crane.

"It's the wind, this house is so full of cracks the wind is rushing in and out all day. Your father's got to do something about it. This warm spell won't last and your milk'll freeze right on the table while you're drinking it."

It's not the wind, Kit thought to herself, who had smelt fresh clothes after they had blown on the line; that was the wind smell and it was white. This was like the earth itself, only much friendlier than the outdoors which stretched without limit to the mountains in the west, the woods in the east and to the wide sky overhead, dwarfing her who was used to the unsurprising Mall and Public Gardens.

Perhaps, she thought, it is because there isn't much furniture or dusty old carpets. She wandered over the house as much as she could and though the rooms were almost bare, each had some distinctive mark, left by others who had lived there before them—the burned mantel in the dining room, the small greenish panes in Marvell's room (all the rest were big and square), the initials carved in the paneling in her own room, JR to AC. She imagined a host of invisible companions who shared the house with her and she would have preferred to play indoors. But Marvell wanted her out in the sun and air and because she found it much lonelier there she started tending the flower bed. It was hard work that made her sleepy at night and she was glad of that, too. The nights were sometimes bad. The first night had been the worst of all.

Although Marvell had tried to make the house comfortable for Kit's arrival—he had gone up a few days before her—the house resented their intrusion, breathing damply upon the kerosene lamps so that they fluttered miserably at first, shifting haughtily on its beams with resounding knocks and creakings. The heat of the stove warmed only the kitchen where they had had a picnic supper and when Marvell led Kit upstairs, in a trembling pathway of lamplight, the cold dampness of the room was as menacing as a physical presence. There was little furniture—a spool bed piled high with quilts, a Shaker chest, an old-fashioned rocker—and the very bareness added to her fear.

"Start undressing, Kit, and I'll get some wood for a fire."

She heard him feel his way downstairs—as had left the lamp behind. Its flame flickered nervously. She screwed up her courage and began on her boots. Her numb fingers moved slowly. How empty it was! Her father has been swallowed up in the silence. A sudden clinking noise came from the corner where the white washbowl and pitcher sat on the chest. She stiffened and gripped the shoe she had removed. The lamp sank lower for a moment and a huge wavering shadow started out from the door. In dumb horror she thought she saw the door opening slowly and shutting her eyes, she screamed with all her might, "Mother! Mother!" The silence that followed was emptier than ever. Still clutching her shoe, she ran into Marvell's room which was dark, and, crying now, she stumbled over the foot of the bed, calling, "Marvell! Marvell!" the name that must have an answer. He was up the stairs by that time, a wood basket and a hot water bottle in either hand. He threw them down on the bed and picked her up. "Kit, Kit, it's all right, I'm here. I didn't go far and I brought something up to warm your toes." He had been startled immeasurably by the sound of his own name. After that she never called him by any other.

He built a quick fire, helped her undress and then, drawing the rocker up to the hearth, took her on his lap. Kit was lulled by the motion of the chair. She sniffed a peculiarly sweetish smell. "Sing" she commanded. "Mother always sung."

That was a poser, he thought helplessly, but warmed by a glass of apple brandy he began with "Tenting Tonight." His voice was deep and resonant, and, pleased with his success, for she had curled up more closely as the song progressed, he sang softly "'Poor Nellie Gray, they have taken her away...'" dropping his voice to what he considered a sad, tender effect. Suddenly Kit was shaking with sobs again. "Good Heavens, what now? Have you got an ache?"

"It's so sad. Didn't she ever see anybody again?"

He was furious with himself. He should have been more careful not to bring to mind the way she, too, had been hauled off. Hastily he tried another tack. It was a song he always broke out with when he was feeling especially good. "A short time ago, boys, an Irishman named Dougherty, was elected to the Senate by a very large majority." It had always annoyed Proctor, but Elizabeth had always liked it and had laughed in spite of herself when he got to the lines: "There were meat balls, mush balls, cannon balls and cartridges, ice cream, cold cream, vaseline and sandwiches." When Kit burst into giggles, he felt he'd won an extra round in the old, ever present contest with Proctor.

Joe Martell Says . . .

"If It Please The Court," Or "Is Brutal Assault My Fault"

Your honor: The other morning my wife looked over at me and said: "'Stinky', what you need is a new suit!" I felt rather flattered for the moment that she thought of my interests so suddenly and a warm glow went through me as I heard the name "Stinky" mentioned. When she is in an especially lovable mood, that's what she always calls me. So piling the breakfast dishes in the sink, putting Rover out in the yard, and pinning a note to the front door informing the insurance man to call tomorrow, we were off to town.

Department stores, especially big ones, have always seemed rather frigid to me with their austere clerks and their more or less regimentalized regime, but I anticipated a new suit, perhaps a hat and some shoes, and the visit to a big store with a feeling of good expectations. The feeling, however, was short-lived.

After we got into the "clip joint", we were informed how to get to the department that carried the men's wear. For the customer's benefit, a compass and road map were supplied so with the cry of "mush, mush", we hit the trail. As usual, my wife took charge of the expedition and, as usual, we ended up in the "toddler's ready-to-wear". After timidly suggesting that we ask somebody the correct route, she hotly denounced the suggestion and we ended up in "pots and pans". Here she stopped and bought a pressure cooker for her dear mother with "yours truly" parting with $18.50. My wife was so happy with the cooker that she couldn't suppress the desire to tell the clerk that she couldn't wait to see her mother fry in it. And I couldn't suppress the desire to say that I'd be happy to see the old hen fry in it OR boil in it. To this last remark my wife promptly threw a rabbit punch at me.

After I got my breath back she pulled me through an archway into "men's suits". We were met by a gentleman who appeared to me to be wearing a dress suit and to my query "Who's dead?" she nudged me in the ribs so hard my watch stopped.

The ball and chain was ushered into a soft chair and served tea while I stood in the center of the salon being appraised by what I later learned was the master floorwalker-designer and NOT an undertaker. After not more than five minutes of surveying he announced: "You're type number seven. Oh Mr. Snodgrass, we've got an H. T. F. and B. L. A. B. over here for you! Snodgrass legged it over, scanned me once or twice and, looking over at my wife, said: "My sympathy, madam, but we all have a cross to bear." This last crack went over my head as I was still working on that H. T. F. and B. L. A. B. business.

Finally we got down to cases and I started "putting them on and taking them off". After trying on about one hundred three suits, more or less, I was allowed to rest and was about to join my wife when I saw her walking into the joint wearing a new fur coat, ridiculously priced at $795. After they revived me, my darling told me that we had been extravagant enough for one day and I could buy my suit in the spring.

Mr. "White Tie and Tails" sidled up and reported that it was just as well I decided to wait until later and when the spring did roll around, would I kindly go to another store.

Well, a guy should know when he's licked, but "Sir," I said, "just for curiosity's sake, what does that H. T. F. and B. L. A. B. stuff stand for?"

"Smothering a smile, he replied, "Oh you noticed? Well, if you won't give away our store secrets, it stands for 'Hard To Fit' and 'Built Like A Blimp'!"

Your honor, that's when everything went black. And, sir, you kind old soul, if you say so, I'll have his teeth replaced!

Words of the Wise
It is one thing to wish to have truth on our side, and another to wish sincerely to be on the side of truth. —(Richard Whately)

Hilltop YMCA Basketball Loop Begins In Dec.

The first meeting of the managers of the basketball teams that are to participate in the Hilltop YMCA Intermediate and Junior Basketball Leagues was held Monday evening at the Y office.

Present at that meeting were representatives of the following churches: Highland Avenue Friends, Hoge Memorial, St. Paul's Evangelical Congregational, Hilltop Church of Christ and Burgess Avenue EUB. The two leagues are to start play at the John Burroughs School gymnasium on the first Monday and Wednesday evenings of December and will continue through the winter until the middle of March.

The Intermediate League will be open to boys 17 years of age and under while the Junior League will be for boys 15 years of age and under. Entry fees of $15 for the Intermediate League and $10 for the Junior League were set to cover the cost of the referees. All other expenses will be sustained by the Hilltop YMCA.

Churches that wish to enter a team in either or both of the leagues are urged to contact Mr. Thorn at the Hilltop YMCA office, JO. 4641, for their team entry blanks and further details concerning the play.

Hilliards Speech Class Presents Armistice Talks

The speech class of Hilliards High School presented the Armistice Day program Nov. 9.

Emmalou Nunnamaker reigned as hostess and introduced the speakers. Music for the Armistice Day program was presented by Jack Flickinger, the scripture by Rosella Brown and the "Prayer for Peace" by Elizabeth Stratton. Victor Reusch and Nick Tornick bore the flags.

Charlotte Toy, Don Patterson and Rosamond Petrick, the committee to choose the judges, selected Rev. Rose of Rome, O., Rev. Noethlich of the Hilliards Methodist Church and Miss Bright of the Hilliards Grade School.

The four contestants elected at an elimination contest were Jack Flickinger, Jeanie Vagnier, Howard Crispin and Jack Winkler. The winner will receive a bronze medal and go to the district contest.

A reminder—Glenwood Recreation Center offers a baby sitting service for the convenience of Hilltop parents. Just call Pat Matthews at RA. 7416 any time after 2 p. m. Monday through Friday and between 9 a. m. and 12 noon on Saturday. Miss Matthews will be glad to locate an experienced baby sitter for you. On short notice these girls will be at your service: Carolyn Holman, Jane Conrad, Wilma Russell, Doris McCracken, Alvada Clarke, Nyla Grabill, Skip Wolfe, Donna Theisen, Rita Elliott, Nancy Moss, Karan Griffiths. There is no charge for finding a baby sitter for you. The only cost is for the time each girl spends sitting.

Golden Age Club

The first meeting of the Golden Age Club was held at Glenwood Center last Wednesday afternoon from 2 to 4:30. Thirteen members attended and enjoyed the program provided by the square dance group composed of 13-year-old boys and girls. The girl dancers are as follows: Judy McAndrews, Mary Ellen Miller, Mary Jo Snyder and Arlene Snyder. Their partners were David Snyder, Albert Scales, Danny Krites, and Bill Kirwin. Dick Brenner played two piano solos and assisted in the community sing that followed the program.

The Golden Age Club welcomes any one over 50 years of age who wishes to come to Glenwood and enjoy checkers, chess, bingo, crafts, sewing and outside entertainment. Watch the Record for the next meeting date of the Golden Age Club.

Girls' Basketball

Girls' basketball will begin Nov. 28. Any girl interested in being on a team please contact Pat Matthews at Glenwood.

Special attention — Glenwood will have a free dance Nov. 25. Music will be provided by the recording fund of the Columbus Federation of Musicians. The Dance will be held in the gym at Glenwood and will begin at 8 p. m. It's free to the public.

Glenwood's recreation basketball league for boys has begun to draw the attention of the local neighborhood. Every night is a good night to see basketball at Glenwood.

Glenwood girls spent a weekend at Indian Village camp. The girls planned their own meals and cooked over an open fire. Saturday evening the girls square danced, gave music charades and sang around the campfire.

St. Aloysius football team also spent a week-end cooking out and hiking at Indian camp.

Many of my readers must have heard of the Better Business Bureau. It is an institution which may be found in every important city in Canada and the United States. Its members are the great business and industrial organizations of the nation who have combined to destroy all dishonest trading practices, rackets, and any shady attempts to deceive the public at large. It is a non-stock, non-profit organization designed to increase public confidence in making purchases and to protect the public by exposing and prosecuting to the utmost limits of the law any who seek quick returns from rapacity and falsehood. This institution which is independent and will not endorse or recommend any product or concern, has this to say about life insurance. I quote:

"Life insurance as an institution is of immense benefit to society. The question — What kind and how much life insurance should I have? — is one that cannot be answered in generalities. It can be answered only by you yourself after you have consulted responsible life insurance agents, have studied what they offer, and have — equally important — made at least a general plan of your own for the protection of your dependents and your own old age. Your life insurance purchase should become a regular part of your budget. In the purchase of life insurance, the intelligent, convinced purchaser is likely to be not only the most satisfied customer of the life insurance company, but the most convinced supporter of life insurance as an institution. If and when you have made a decision to buy life insurance, it is risky to postpone action. One cannot foretell the future. Tomorrow may be too late."

A DOG'S LIFE . . .

Canine Housing Is West Students' Project

Pictured with their two ultra-modern dog houses under construction in the wood-working shop at West High School are Dean Baker, 2860 Fisher-rd; student teacher Lee Baxter; and Delbert Graves, 672 N Hague-av.

• • •

You've heard of the figurative expression, "In the doghouse," but perhaps you don't really know what it means literally until you've built one—and been in and out of it many times during its construction.

Two West High boys, lover of dogs, have actually been in their respective doghouses—and out again—so many times it is now a habit.

Nothing is too good for "man's best friend," and came winter, these two carpenters are sparing no effort to see that their dogs are comfortably housed.

As an industrial arts project West High junior class students Dean Baker, 2860 Fisher-rd, and Delbert Graves, 672 N. Hague-av, under the supervision of Instructor Arthur Miller and student teacher Lee Baxter of Kent, O., are making wood-craft history at the Hilltop school. Both students are skilled at the carpentry trade, and hope to eventually qualify as master-carpenters.

"Babe," a three-year-old bull terrier, will occupy the house built by Delbert, while "Curly," 2½ half-year-old cocker, will be housed in Dean's doghouse, now nearing completion.

Both unique houses are almost identical in dimensions and style, save for the porch. "Babe" will have a porch and swinging doors, owner Del said.

Cost per house is about $2.50. Material was salvaged from different mills, or donated to the boys.

Proficient in laying floors for homes the past couple summers, the boys are making certain their pooches have good solid, oak flooring, with tongue and groove construction. Sheathing, wire-cut nails, California Redwood lapsiding and Johns Mansville roofing are used in building the doghouse, with dimensions of 36 inches in length, 24 inches wide, and 32 inches in height each.

Time spent on each domicile, when completed, will total approximately 30 hours each.

Both doghouses will be insulated with rock wool just like the house in which you live. Dean contemplates plastering his interior walls so that "Curly" gets the benefit of an ultra-modern home.

"Bab" and "Curly" are proud canines too, for they "scent" a surprise is in store for them, the boys say.

The boys have done extensive jobs requiring carpentry knowledge.

They have helped to lay hardwood floors for more than 50 homes, and asisted in insulating many others.

Building two complete garages themselves, and setting-up precut houses, are additional achievements of the two youthful construction workers.

Making cabinets, shelves, concrete forms, pouring concrete footers—in fact every phase of the construction jobs — are on the building agenda of these two boys.

Both boys built and finised a home in Maumee, O., two summers ago.

With the experience of the two boys, "Curly" and "Babe" are bound to fare well in their home. Moral—"A dog's life is not so bad after all!"

West Drops Final Game To Aquinas 19-7; Ends Season With 3 Win, 6 Loss Record

By Dave Miller

West High footballers concluded their 1949 gridiron season by dropping a 19 to 7 verdict to Aquinas Terriers under the Magly Field arcs last Thursday evening.

The Cowboys concluded their current season with a three-win, six loss record. They defeated South, Linden and Cleveland Garfield Heights, while dropping decisions to Marion Harding, Upper Arlington, North, East Central and Aquinas.

The Hilltoppers, who were city defending champs for this season, being undefeated throughout their loop campaign in both 1947 and 1948, had the spirit but lacked experience. That point was brought up even before the current season got under way.

In a talk with Football Coach Mack Pemberton he disclosed that his team had plenty of spirit, but he thought lacked experience throughout other years for this season's enagements. In the first place, the Cowboys had only four returning lettermen around whom to build their '49 team. They were Jim Rudolph, end; Bob Epps, center; Bill Thrush, back, and Cliff Voss, tackle. The latter quit school midway in the season.

Two other men were eligible for play this year who were regulars in 1948. However, they both quit school.

Pemberton has some good prospects coming up for next year's play, namely Tackles Dick McDermitt and Jack Bowen, End George Crissinger and Backs Carmine DeMatteo, Ronnie James and Jerry Johnson.

In the encounter last Thursday it was a good, clean ball game all the way, with only six penalties being nailed. Referee Claude Christman said after the game that it was one of the cleanest games he had ever officiated.

Although not much depended on the outcome, both teams were keyed to a high pitch for the ball game, the main reason being that most of the Terriers live on the Hilltop and look forward to the West game. In fact, six of the Aquinas starting lineup are from the Hilltop.

Aquinas received the kickoff and in 12 plays marched for the first score of the game in exactly five minutes of playing time. The Terriers moved out in front by a two-touchdown margin in the second period with another six-pointer, but midway of the fourth quarter the Cowboys moved up to within five points of the ultimate winners. However, with only seconds left in the game, Aquinas stopped a West threat to retaliate, and came up with another touchdown on the last play of the game.

Dave Lazenby kicked off to Russ Reckling, sophomore quarterback of Aquinas, on the Terrier 13, who returned to the 33. Consecutive runs by Halfbacks Tom Kearns and Jack Schmidt netted Aquinas a first down on their own 43. Then Kearns took off on an end-around jaunt, going through at least three or four would-be tacklers to the West 23, before being pulled down by safety man Ronnie James.

Reckling's pass, intended for Tony Eramo, fell over the goal line incomplete. Then Schmidt raced off-tackle to the West eight for a first down and goal to go.

Kearns plowed to the three, from where he banged over on pure strength on the next play through the center of the line for an Aquinas touchdown. Tom, trying to make it a one man show, attempted the conversion for the extra point, but the kick was wide and to the right. Kearns, also a great baseball player, was easily the star of the game throughout the evening with the beautiful show of running, his most potent point of playing being his ability to shake off would-be tacklers.

Two exchangs of punts later, the quarter ended with Aquinas out in front, 6-0.

Midway of the second period, a Bob Birle to Jim Rudolph pass was complete on the Aquinas 16, and it looked for sure that the Cowboys were going to break the ice, having first down and 10 yards to go. Fullback Clarence (Skoots) Golden drove to the Aquinas eight, but a clipping penalty on the Cowboys put the ball back on the 20.

Then three passes from Birle fell incomplete and before West fans knew what had happened, the Hilltoppers had lost the ball on downs.

From there, the visitors scored their second touchdown of the game. Tom Kearns drove to the Aquinas 24, and on the next play Reckling uncorked a 17 yard aerial to Jack Schmidt on the Terrier 41. A Reckling to Kearns pass was dropped by the latter, but on the next play, Fullback Bernie Melchiorre drove around end to the West 45 yard stripe. Reckling then unleashed his capable throwing arm and tossed a 35-yard pass to End John Masdea on the West 10 yard line, from where he trotted over for the second Aquinas touchdown of the game. Kearns' attempted kick was blocked by Center Bob Epps.

Nine plays later the half ended with the Cowboys trailing their "neighbors" 12-0.

The Cowboys' touchdown was a climax of a 80-yard drive. A pass from Ronnie James to Bill Thrush was completed from the Cowboy 10 to their 34. James ran off tackle to the 44, and Binkley drove to the West 47, where the third quarter ended.

A Thrush to Birle pass was complete on the Aquinas 49, and another aerial from Thrush, this time to End Jim Rudolph, was completed on the Aquinas 36 yard stripe.

Consecutive runs by Sophomore Halfback Charlie Hunter moved the spear to the 30. After two incomplete passes, Birle tossed a pass to Thrush that was complete on the 25. After two running plays by Binkley and Hunter that failed, Birle tossed a pass to Rudolph on the 12, and Binkley and Hunter drove on successive runs to the Terrier two, Birle plunged into the end zone for the lone West score of the game. Bob then proceeded to make it 12-7 with his conversion.

Everyone knew at this point that it took just one touchdown for the Cowboys to turn the ball game into a win, and things began to look bright as Aquinas was stopped on their drive to hold onto the ball when defensive back Don Natzger intercepted Reckling's pass on the Aquinas 45.

However, Birle threw three incomplete passes, and trying to pass on fourth down, his aerial was intercepted by Tony Eramo on the West 38, thus setting up Aquinas' third touchdown. The running of Masdea, Melchiorre and Schmidt brought the ball to the West four, from where Schmidt plunged over for a touchdown. Kearns passed to Masdea in the end zone for the extra point and the game ended 19-7.

Scores by periods:

Aquinas	6	6	0	7—19
West	0	0	0	7— 7

Aquinas touchdowns — Masdea (pass); Kearns, Schmidtt. Point after touchdown—Masdea (pass). West touchdown — Birle. Extra point—Birle.

Officials: Referee, Claude Christman (Ohio U.); umpire, Stanton Jones (Rio Grande); head linesman, Joel Burghalter (Heidelburg).

Breckenridge Man Of Week With 678

They say "Better late than never," so here's where I put it into practice. Trying to start writing after eight weeks of bowling have gone by is like going into the tenth frame eight marks down but I'll try and catch up and stay even after this. Before going into this week's scores I would like to put in a word of praise for the Hilltop business men who have come through again, as always, when they were needed.

The business men are sponsoring the two high school teen-agers leagues that were started by Bill Wolfe and Paul Leighninger. Paul and his Seiller's Dept. Store have sponsored the kids for the last three years but this year the sponsoring was taken on by the business men. Sponsoring the girls are Shroyers Funeral Home, McGurer Auto Parts, Robinson Electric, Fox Food Shop, Hilltop Recreation, Fay Shop, Seiller's Dept. Store, and Wolfe Electric, while the boys are sponsored by Sheskey's 5 and 10, Hilltop Jewelers, Hilltop Record, Thrift Finance, Georgiton's, Bob Strope Auto Service, Spears Funeral Home and Westgate Electric.

Carl Breckenridge was the big man of the week as he rolled games of 226-237-215 for a series of 678. Carl was rolling as leadoff man on the Schmelzer Restaurant, currently in second place in the league.

On the ladies' side it was all Helen Neeshan as she blasted a 247 game in a beautiful 553 series while rolling in the anchor spot on Stewart Black Top team of the Hilltop Ladies' League.

Milt Banning, one of the city's top bowlers for the past several years, was in town over the week-end. Milt is living in New Jersey, where he is bowling in a city traveling league. That is where each week the teams bowled at different alleys in the city.

Other good scores this week were Howard Fox, 242-627 (his first 600 series ever) in the Commercial League; John Murnane, 245-60; Kenny Shaw, 626; Seiller's, 964, and Kent Builders, 2746, in the Recreation.

Ladies' Pastime featured Edna Staley, 184-500, and Mike's Carry Out, 755-2143. Charles Neeshan's 222-582 and Protexcar's 915-2590 led the Tuesday Nighters.

Thursday night found Helen Neeshan's 247-563, Feil Funeral Home's 891 and Stewart Black Top's 2408 as tops on the earlier shift while Wally Nichols' 225 Herb Awe's 593 and Husch and Hersch's 959-2703 led the late Business Men's League.

Mack Pemberton Wins Subscription Contest

Sightless Pianist Wins 'Stars' Contest

Sightless young pianist Paul Zavatsky (center) won top prize of $50 and an engraved plaque in the Hilltop YMCA "Stars of Tomorrow" final at the Old Trail Theater Wednesday night. Other winners pictured above are acrobatic dancer Susan Ann Vince, 410 Cherry-dr; and ballet dancer Marilyn Shroyer, 289 N. Burgess-av, who tied for third place, winning $10 each; and Scheila and Sonya Albery, 2834 Elliott-av, a sister dance team.

Behind the winners are Lee Koontz, MC, and C. Carlton Hartley of the YMCA board.

Newscaster Addresses High Ridge Group

Paul Frank, WHKC news commentator, was the speaker at the High Ridge Civic Association meeting Tuesday night at the W. Mound-st School. Pictured with Frank are officers of the organization. They are, left to right: C. M. Herb Bumfield, 630 Butler-av, secretary; Frank; H. T. Van Ness, 854 Whitethorne-av, president; (standing) Bert F. Kirby, 849 Butler-av, vice-president; and Lloyd V. Ross, 2078 W. Mound-st, treasurer. Van Ness announced that street lights will be installed on Butler-av. A resolution on traffic regulation on streets running north and south of W. Mound-st, was referred to the civic committee. A committee was appointed to cooperate with the PTA in school improvements.

Noble L. Allen Named SW Dist. Chairman

Seated at the speakers' table are Clifford Matthews, William Boyd, speaker, M. E. Sensenbrenner and Noble L. Allen.

Noble L. Allen, 2486 W. Broad-st, was elected to serve as chairman of the Southwest District of Franklin County Boy Scouts at the annual scouters' dinner held Wednesday evening at the Glenwood Methodist Church. He succeeds M. E. Sensenbrenner.

Elmer Hegenberger, 106 Binns-blvd, was named commissioner for the district.

Allen's scouting record dates back to his boyhood days as an Eagle Scout in Columbus. He later became the first scoutmaster at Hillcrest Baptist Church, serving in that capacity from 1923 to 1937. During this five-year period he actively participated in all district and local council affairs. He is a holder of the Scoutmaster Key, awarded to those scouters who worked diligently to meet certain training requirements.

In 1937 Allen helped to organize and became skipper of the first Sea Scout ship in Columbus. The ship was known as the Admiral Byrd and was given the highest rating from 1937 to 1940.

During the war years he worked actively as chief of the Civilian Defense Board and also served with the transportation corps of the National Guard.

The newly elected district chairman is an active member of Masonic Lodge, West Gate 623, the Scottish Rite, Aladdin Temple of the Shrine, Glenwood Methodist Church, National Funeral Directors Association, Ohio Funeral Directors Association, is secretary of the Hilltop Kiwanis Club, and president of the Buckeye Walking Horse Association.

Mack Pemberton receives the keys to the new Dodge from Ed Planck of West Side Motors. Looking on are C. Carlton Hartley, publisher of The Hilltop Record, and Phil Stout, chairman of the judges in the contest.

Opening Game Two Weeks Away For West Hoopsters

By Dave Miller

With the 1949 football season ended, thoughts around West High are now centering upon the coming '49-'50 basketball season, which is only two weeks away.

The Cowboy cagers open their season on Dec. 2 at Newark, and on the following night visit Bexley. Following that, they have 18 more games to fill out.

Head Cage Coach George Williams has had the boys not participating in football out on the court getting in "shape" since early October. He formed an intramural cage loop then and of those 60 boys, he cut his squad down in three separate cuts.

Friday, the day after the final football game of the year, he had all his basketball players finally rounded up, and from then up until the first basketball game will drill them every night.

Williams, who has been without the service of an assistant, was aided on that point after football also. Fred Heischman, who is backfield coach in football, and reserve mentor in basketball, also entered the scene last Friday, and immediately Williams cut the group into a "Williams group," and a "Heischman group."

Williams has 16 in his group and Heischman's includes 13. Williams has Captain Jim Rudolph, Bill Thrush, LeRoy Hood and Phil Young, all lettermen from last year's team. Also Paul Ellingsworth, George Crissinger, Jerry Johnson, Bill South, Frank Carson, Paul Thompson and Dave Caton, all from last year's reserve team; and Jack Winnestaffer, Jim Rile, Jack Gammon and Bob Epps, from last year's varsity team. Tommy Wright, who didn't play last year, is also in this group.

In the "Heischman group" are Ted Fladt, Jim Long, Earl Potts and Dave Lazenby, all from last year's reserve team, and Warren Stevens, Morris Dobbs, Dick Wray, Ed Gleibs, Russ Friend, Kenny Anderson, Jim Koontz, Charlie Hunter, Jim Hall and Bob Wilson. Gleibs and Anderson played on the West Junior High varsity last season.

Safe Crackers Get $383, Papers At Coal Co.

Safe-crackers entered the Jones Lumber and Coal Co., 57 N. Sylvan-av, Tuesday night, stealing $383, an unendorsed $700 check, and company insurance policies and property deeds.

Richard Nash, 31, of 717 S. Eureka-av, credit manager, discovered the theft. He said the thieves took the money in a money bag and the policies and deeds in a small wooden box.

The intruders smashed a padlock on an outside gate and jimmied open a window into the office building. They then knocked the handle and combination from the safe.

Mrs. Grace Merrick Dies In Toledo

Mrs. Grace Merrick, 75, formerly of 586 Hilltonia-av, died Tuesday in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Leland Barr of Toledo after a short illness.

She is survived also by another daughter, Mrs. Robert Samson, Louisville, Ky.; one son, Robert L. Merrick, Columbus; two sisters, Mrs. James M. Stevens, Columbus and Mrs. Charles Davis, Painesville, O.; six grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Services will be at 3 p. m. Friday in the Jerry Spears Funeral Home, followed by burial in Sunset Cemetery.

Ask Repair Of Rt. 40 Milestone

A resolution requesting that the National Road milestone, located on W. Broad-st near Schultz-av, be repaired and reset, was passed by the Camp Chase Post, American Legion at its regular meeting on Nov. 14.

Letters have been sent to the state highway department and to the city service director.

"These old milestones," Michael Austin, member of a special Legion committee, stated, "have great historical value."

5 West Gridders On All-High Team

Five West gridders were placed on the Ohio State Journal all-high city league team.

Center Bob Epps made the first team; tackle Dick McDermitt and guard Dick Will made the second team; and backs Bill Thrush and Ronnie James were given honorable mention.

Publisher C. Carlton Hartley issued this statement today: "The circulation drive just ended was a big success in every respect. It exceeded the goal we had set for both new and renewal subscriptions and today The Hilltop Record has the best paid circulation list it has ever had.

"It was a great pleasure to work with the group of contestants and we want to thank them all for their hearty cooperation. Our thanks also go to all the many Hilltoppers who have subscribed or renewed their subscriptions in this drive. While there were many people called on by several contestants we feel that most everyone entered into the good spirit of the occasion."

Record circulation manager Robert Maxwell advises that all subscriptions will be entered by next Tuesday and anyone not receiving their paper after that date should call the Record office.

Hilltop Man Shoots Girl, Kills Self

Joseph Lambert, 17, of 2398 Ray-st, shot and killed himself with a shotgun late Wednesday night after shooting Mable Thomas, 24, of 207 S. Burgess-av, his "girl friend", in what appeared to be the result of a "lovers' quarrel."

Miss Thomas was in fair condition at Mt. Carmel Hospital suffering from gunshot wounds in the face, neck and chest from a blast by a .12 gauge shotgun.

Lambert attempted to kill Miss Thomas when he fired the gun from the sidewalk in front of her house as she opened the door. The storm door frame shielded her from the center of the blast.

Carl Butler, 625 Butler-av, told police he was sitting across the street in his automobile when he heard the shot that hit Miss Thomas. He said he did not see Lambert fire the shot.

Had Been Hunting

Stacy W. Lambert, 22, of 362 S. Terrace-av, a brother of the dead boy, heard of the shooting and went to the scene. They had been hunting during the day. But Stacy said the boy did not have the gun with him when he saw Lambert last.

Private rites for Lambert will be held at his home at 10 a. m. Saturday. Friends may call at the home Friday evening. Burial will be in Mt. Calvary Cemetery by the Jerry Spears Funeral Home.

Joseph Leach, Ohio's Youngest Mayor, In Again

Joseph Leach, 1941 graduate of West High School who was elected mayor of Sharonville, O., two years ago to become the youngest mayor in Ohio, was re-elected over three opponents in last week's elections.

Leach is now 26 years old, and it is believed that he may be the youngest mayor in the United States.

Leach is a World War II vet and is attending the University of Cincinnati law school. He is a Mason, a member of the Shrine and the VFW.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Leach, formerly lived at 30 N. Eureka-av.

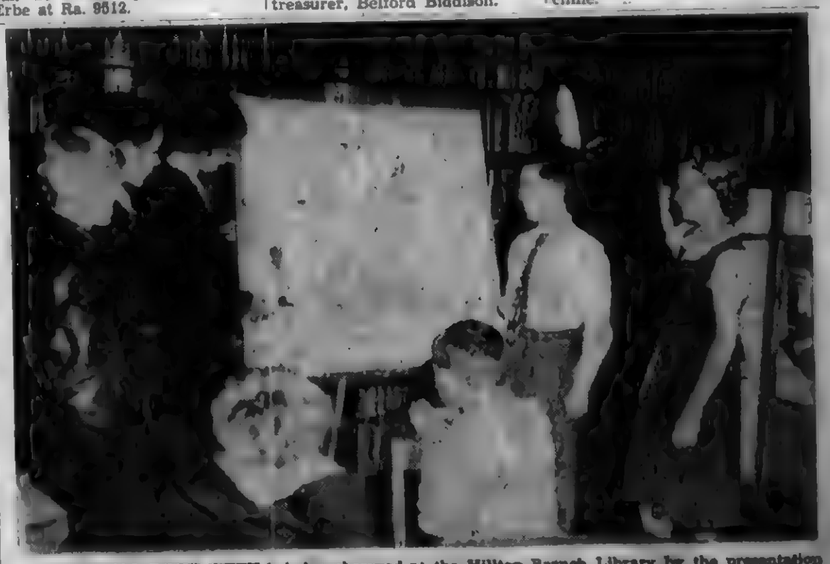
Officers of the Brotherhood are president, A. B. Lewis; vice president, Floyd Badgley; secretary, Lawrence Proper; and treasurer, Belford Biddison.



Thieves Set Up Shotgun Guard At Riebel Co.

Thieves set up a shotgun for protection while they looted Reibel's Implement Co., 5580 W. Broad-st, Tuesday night.

Sheriff's Deputy Fred Selby said the 12-gauge automatic belonging to a firm official was found in the rear of the building, pointed toward a door which the thugs had broken open. With it were two boxes of shells.

Herb Reibel, 35, of 3181 W. Broad-st, a partner in the firm, said he had left the gun and shells in the front office after a Tuesday hunting trip.

The intruders ransacked files and desks in the office and obtained $25 from one office machine.

NATIONAL BOOK WEEK is being observed at the Hilltop Branch Library by the presentation of a "Flannel Graft" skit to children from the Hilltop schools. The poem "McElligot's Pool" is read, and at the same time the characters are displayed on a flannel background. Six classes a day are attending the library for a period of eight days. A group of students from St. Aloysius School are pictured looking at the graph. Standing are Howard Heddow, Ted Roberts, Mildred Phalor, librarian, George Motil, Sister Anne Lucille, principal of the school, and Judy McAndrews.

The Spectator By C. C. Hartley

Thanks . . . To All For A Successful Drive

Over eight weeks ago we stuck our necks out when we announced we would give away over $3000 in prizes in a circulation drive. Many a Hilltopper wondered how we could do it.

But we were certain we had a sure thing. We knew there were a lot of Hilltop folks who were not readers of the Record who were willing to subscribe if they were called on by an adult salesman.

We set up a goal of both revenue and new subscribers and renewals we would shoot for.

Now that the contest is over we are happy to anncunce that the drive was a success in every respect. We exceeded the revenue and circulation goals we had set and today the Record has the best paid list we have ever had.

We say "Thanks" in a great big way . . . to a mighty fine bunch of contestants who cooperated in every way . . . and to a lot of fine folks who entered into the spirit of the thing and supported their favorites in the drive. It was a lot of fun.

Towns Tell A Story

Sometimes very strange and wonderful are the things you can find in an atlas, and most unusual of things of this nature is the story pieced out by a railway express official using towns in the United States. It follows:

"Take the CHRISTMAS (Miss.) HOLLIDAY (Texas), which Frenchmen CALL (Texas) NOEL (Mo.).

"It's a LIVELY (Va.) time of year, which ONLY (Va.) takes place in WINTER (Wis.) and is MANNS CHOICE (Pa.) to EXCHANGE (W. Va.) a BLESSING (Texas) with a FRIEND (Neb.). The PROMISED LAND (N. Y.) yields up a BOUNTIFUL (Utah) supply of TURKEY (N. C.), which the HUNTER (Kans.) gets with his RIFLE (Colo.) BUTTE (Mont.) the NOVICE (Texas) ARCHER (Fla.) no KETCHUM (Ida.) with Broken BOW (Nebr.).

"ALGOOD (Tenn.) things happen in those WEEKS (La.). The FARMER (S. D.) and the COOK (Minn.) ORR (N. D.) JASPER (Tenn.) the BUTLER (Ga.), EXCHANGE (W. Va.) MONEY (Miss.) for a TURKEY (N. C.) and all the trimmings, such as CRANBERRY (Conn.), CHESTNUT (La.), ALMOND (N. C.), CARMEL (Ind.), BUTTERNUT (Wis.), ORANGE (N. J.) etc.

"In a PECULIAR (Mo.) but EARNEST (Pa.) EXPERIMENT (Ga.) the LACKEY (Ky.), who is DAFTER (Mich.) than some of the GENTRY (Mo.) in a SANITORIUM Md.), SLAUGHTERS (Ky.) the SUFFERN (N. Y.) BIRDS (Ill.) with a BLUNT (S. D.) BAD AXE (Mich.), And that's NUTTALL (W. Va.) because toward the CLIMAX (Ga.) MABEL (Fla.), the COOKS (Mich.), HELPER (Utah) told him a BIRD-IN-HAND (Pa.) is WORTH (Mo.) a HUNDRED (Wa. Va.) in the FOREST (Me.).

"Growing WILDER (Vt.) by the MINOT (Mass.) the LIGHTFOOT (Va.) TURKEY (also Texas) made a CAT SPRING (Texas) right into the BARNSTABLE (Mass). It didn't have a FAIRCHANCE (Pa.), however, for KEENE (N. H.) BLADES (Del.) sent it to OLD GLORY (Texas). Thus the OUTLOOK (Mont.) for Christmas EVE (Mo.) as a WELCOME (Minn.) DELIGHT (Ark.) to all.

We said GRACE (Idaho) drank GOOD WINE (Ill.), ate a SANDWICH (Ill.) sang a Christmas CARROLL (Ohio) in HARMONY (Pa.) with MOOSIC (Pa.) until MIDNIGHT (Miss.), when the BELLS (Tenn.) tolled.

"Finally, with a SLEEPY EYE (Minn.) our KINSMAN (Ill.), the BAKER (Calif.) donned his BLUE JACKET (Okla.) and FEDORA (S.Dak.) said GOODNIGHT (Texas) and went ONWARD (Miss.) toward Home (Pa.) SWEET HOME (Ark.) to his SCENIC (S. D.) RED HOUSE (W. Va.) for an EARLY (Ia.) KNAPP (Wis.)

"OKAY (Okla.) now, didn't that ENDWELL (N. Y.)?"

MISS ESTELL, MR. CAMPBELL ARE UNITED IN MARRIAGE SEPTEMBER 24 AT IMMANUEL BAPTIST CHURCH

(Photo by J. Curtis Allen)

Mrs. James R. Campbell

Mr. and Mrs. James Lee Estell, Sr., 227 N. Eureka-av, announce the marriage of their daughter, Ethel, to Mr. James R. Campbell, son of Mr. James M. Campbell of Portsmouth, Va. The double ring ceremony was performed Sept. 24 at 2:30 p. m. by Rev W. Howard Schoof at Immanuel Baptist Church before an altar decorated with ferns and palms.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a wedding gown of heavy white satin with a circular train, sweetheart neckline edged in lace and long pointed sleeves. The veil of illusion was also edged in lace and was held in place by a half crown of seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white baby mums and white rose buds with a gardenia center.

Miss Annabelle Jones, maid of honor, wore a pale yellow taffeta gown with matching mitts and a pale yellow half hat edged in lace. She carried a colonial bouquet of orchid baby mums and yellow rose buds with orchid streamers.

The best man was Mr. James Estell Jr., and seating the guests were Mr. Harold Estell and Mr. Fred Horn.

The bride's mother wore a gray dress with black accessories and a pink mum corsage to receive her guests at the reception held at her home following the ceremony. Mrs. Ethel Owen, Mrs. Helen Fairchild, Mrs. Ida Haag and Mrs. Ada White were hostesses.

The bride and groom went to South Carolina for their wedding trip.

The new Mrs. Campbell is employed by the H. J. Heinz Co., and Mr. Campbell is associated with the Lee Shell Station. They are temporarily making their home at 227 N. Eureka-av.

The Phalors Celebrate Fifty Year Mark With Reception At Glenwood Church Sunday

The golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Phalor, 125 N. Powell-av, will be marked Sunday, Nov. 20, with open house from 2 to 5 p. m. at Glenwood Methodist Church, 64 Highland-av.

Married in Canal Winchester on Nov. 16, 1899, they have lived in Columbus 49 years.

Mr. Phalor was an artist and designer for the Craft-lite Company until his retirement 14 years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Phalor have one daughter, Mildred, who is branch librarian at the Hilltop Branch Library.

When Dr. Charles E. Turley was pastor at Glenwood Methodist Church in 1913 Mrs. Phalor organized a class of high school girls into the CIC's.

COLD SPELL DUE

Weatherman Says.

BEFORE IT HITS HERE, let us check over your heating system. Perhaps all it needs is a good cleaning and some adjustments. Or if you need a new furnace, you'll be money ahead to get it now and have plenty of heat all winter long.

For real comfort and better heat, you'll find the Rheem Winter Air Conditioner hard to beat. It gives you plenty of clean, warm air heat—blower-filtered and circulated, humidified for comfort—and it's fully automatic. Works on any kind of gas fuel. Sizes for any home.

Whether you need a new furnace or some minor repairs, we'll give you the same cheerful service. So call or stop in today.

By Jack Galbreth

Hilliards' basketball team held its first basketball practice Nov. 7. Returning is one letterman, Woody Anderson, from last season's first team.

Bob Shaner and Charlie Flynn are returning boys who saw a lot of action but not enough for a letter. Dick Hansen, Kenny Massie, Paul Evans, Chuck Foster, Don Patterson, Bernard Geyer, Allen Hunt, Fred Barrett, Buzzy Christensen, Owie Miller and Jack Galbreth back from last year's team, are expected to make the squad.

Two hours' nightly practice are scheduled until the first game with South Solon, on Nov. 29, at Hilliards. Dublin on Dec. 2, at Dublin is the first league game.

"WE SHOOK THE FAMILY TREE," a three-act comedy, will be presented by a stellar cast of 9A West Junior High students at the school auditorium, Friday at 8 p. m., Nov. 18. Mrs. Velma Milhone, dramatic director, said today.

Many humorous life-like situations intersperse the rapidly moving class play.

How would you feel if YOU had a date with a boy who wore SHORT PANTS? Well, this situation appears in the life of HILDEGARDE DOLSON, a teen-age girl who is trying desperately to get a date for the prom.

This play is full of witticisms. Take for instance the time that Hildegarde discovered a bass in the bathtub.

But this play also has a serious side. How about the time when MR. DOLSON was accused of being a drunkard.

Girl Scout News

The Grove City Girl Scout Neighborhood Committee held its monthly meeting at the St. John's Lutheran church, Monday, Nov. 7. The by-laws were set up and approved. Plans for the Christmas party were discussed. District Chairman Mrs. H. C. Booth was guest speaker. Mrs. K. L. Martindale, district publicity chairman, spoke on "Advantages of Publicity." Mrs. Geo. Almon taught the new leaders Girl Scout and Brownie songs to be used at their meetings. Grove City Troop 204 is making table decorations and favors for the Lutheran League convention.

In the St. Mary Magdalene's neighborhood, Mrs. John Koyro is the new Brownie leader of troop 205, and the co-leader is Mrs. Margaret Heiser. The new troop committee chairman is Mrs. Chas Bans. Weekly meeting of the Brownie troop is every Monday at 2:30 p. m. in the hall of St. Mary Magdalene's school. A Christmas party will be held at the school on the 12th of Dec.

Sewing classes under the supervision of Patricia Mathews will be held at the Glenwood recreation center.

Eleven girls from St. Mary Magdalenes troop 203 spent the week end at Camp Ken Jockety. The girls were given an opportunity to work on their outdoor craft badges which were started at day camp last summer. Those who enjoyed the outing were June Jo Badge, Carole DeDhl, Marjorie Eyerman, Margaret Hauck, Caroll McDevitt, Joanne McDanich, Mary Julin O'Keefe, Joyce Parks, Mary Helen Scheverz, Barbara Schmitan and Judy Kanderer. The girls sang, did folk dancing and went on a routine hike. They were accompanied by Mrs. Martin Meisner and Mrs. Ray Eyerman.

The St. Aloysius neighborhood committee meeting will be held at 1:30 p. m. Nov. 21 in the school annex.

On Nov. 12, troop 249 went on an all-day outaing and "cook out" at the Hilltop Conservation grounds, west of Darbydale. The girls were accompanied by leaders, Mrs. Fay Close and Mrs. Pauline Rowe. The St. Aloysius Brownie and Girl Scout troops joined all parochial school children on Nov 9, at 8:30 a. m. to greet the Apostolic Delegate, Archbishop Armleto Giovanni Cicognani and to receive his blessing at the St. Joseph Cathedral.

The Brownies of Troop 250 visited the displays of National Catholic Rural Life Conference at the Neil House. They were especially interested in the festive tables showing traditional meals for special occasions and described in Miss Florence Beiger's new book, "Cooking for Christ." They were accompanied by Mrs. Jack Andrews, Mrs. Jaquay and Mrs. Lynch.

St. Aloysius Wins

The St. Aloysius football squad beat St. Mary Magdalene 7-0 in the final game of the season at the Columbus State School grounds Tuesday.

St. Mary Magdalene wins the championship, this being their only loss. St. Aloysius is in second place, having lost one game and tied one.

Briggsdale And Brown Road

By Mrs. Harry C. Downing

Mrs. Logan Watts, Mrs. Wilbur Watkins, Mrs. Harold Reber, Mrs. Alvin Martindale, Mrs. Wilbur Gantz and Mrs. Mattingly, members of the Briggsdale WSCS, attanded an all-day meeting of the Columbus district Monday in the Bryden Road First Methodist Church. The speaker, a Japanese lady, was formerly the head of a girls' school in her native land. Music was furnished by two soloists, Japanese students from Capital University and Ohio State.

Elbert Becker, 1261 Stimmel-rd, is in Indianapolis this week attending the National Vegetable Growers' Convention.

Mrs. Kathryn King, 2066 Eakin-rd, and Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Connelly of Akron were week-end guests of friends in Cincinnati.

Mary Jane Borror, a first grade pupil in Briggsdale School and daughter of Harold Borror, is confined to her home with scarlet fever.

Mrs. Freda Landon, formerly of Frank-rd, now of Columbus, has returned to her home from a local hospital where she had been under observation.

Briggsdale Room Mothers' Club met Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Rife, Frank-rd. Sixth grade mothers were assisting hostesses.

The W. W. Class of Briggsdale Methodist Church met Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Charles Nardin, 1029 Brown-rd.

Briggsdale WSCS is meeting Thursday at the home of Mrs. I. N. Borror, 249 N. Warren-av.

The November meeting of the Briggsdale PTA was held Tuesday evening at the school house.

Words of the Wise

Popularity is a crime from the moment it is sought; it is only a virtue where men have it whether they will or no.
—(Sir George Savile)

The Low Down On High Ridgers

By One of Them

Poor MRS. CALDWELL! She practically wrung her hands when her husband (BILL) brought a deer back from his hunting trip. She said she wasn't going to see the poor thing cut up and put in her pressure cooker. "No siree," she said. But the next day she changed her tune and was praising her husband to the neighbors. "It was his first deer," etc., etc. Congrats to BILL.

Speaking of sport game—when EARL KEMP goes fishing he could use a gun instead of a rod and reel. Yes-sir! The last time he went on a fishing trip he brought home a rabbit. He's really not bad at fishing though. Catfish are his catch, generally.

The next time CARL (SMITTY) goes to a high school game when it rains, he's not going to take his umbrella. He couldn't use it when he had it up because it obstructed everyone's view; and when it was closed he was always either poking it in someone's ribs or dropping it in the mud. So next time "Let It Rain," eh, CARL?

JOE MAHONEY over here on Belvidere thinks there's nothing like television. They sit and enjoy it by the hour. "A movie at home, and he doesn't have to dress up and shave to go see it."

One of our lady neighbors was invited to a home to see television for the first time—and what did they have tuned in? A WRESTLING MATCH! Grr! She's the sweet type, though. She sat and smiled.

DON BIRDEL fell and broke his "specs", which we were sorry to hear had cut his upper lip to such an extent that stitches had to be taken. As a result, too, he had to shave off his mustache temporarily. We hope we recognize you, DON, the next time we see you, but it won't be long before you'll be CLARK GABLE again. Or does your wife like it better this way?

Typing is the work that MRS. ROSS WILLIAMS does all day long. But that isn't enough. She comes home and tries to teach her husband how. She is about ready to give up, though. He still persists in using the "hunt and peck" system.

BERT LYONS got squirted in his eye in eating his grapefruit Saturday morning. He jumped so fast it jarred the table, spilled his coffee and frightened the baby. He thought it would be a bad-luck day for him—but that afternoon he won the football pool at work. So he didn't do so bad after all.

GRIND, GRIND, GRIND went the pencil sharpener as DALE HENRY was sharpening the point of his pencil and trying to sharpen his wits at the same time. He was arguing his point, at the office about how he voted. When he finished—his pencil was it to. He should have started with one of those foot-long pencils.

Say, did any of you readers ever eat one of those foot-long wieners? The only bad feature about one of these hot dogs is that when you start in on them they're only merely warm (at least mine have been). And by the time you take your last bite you're chewing a COLD hot dog. A little red pepper or some mustard might keep it hot until you get to the end; or it might be a good idea to keep a cup of hot coffee handy and drink it once in a while.

Getting hungry, folks? I am. My wife just announced that "soup's on," so here I go to satisfy my hunger. See you next Thursday.

New Ford Goes On Display Here

The 1950 Ford will go on display tomorrow, Friday, Nov. 18, in the showrooms of the Beasley-Grove Co., 747 W. Broad-st, L. K. Fishinger, sales manager, announced today.

Visitors, who will observe the improved automobile, will have an opportunity, with no obligation, to receive a 1950 Custom Deluxe V-8 Tudor Ford, at no cost.

The car will be awarded by Beasley-Grove, and other Franklin County Ford dealers, on Saturday, Nov. 26, at 1:30 p. m. at the Memorial Hall entrance.

Rehearsals Begin On 'Suspect' Next Show of Hilltop Little Theater

Rehearsals have commenced on the Hilltop Little Theater's latest production, "Suspect," a three-act mystery, to be presented Sunday evening, Dec. 4, at John Burroughs School auditorium.

The play, directed by Belford Lane, 149 S. Sylvan-av, was first staged in London in 1937, followed by a long run on Broadway. This is the sixth production put on by the amateur theater group.

Cast in this latest dramatic effort are Robert Price, 261 Letchworth-av; Barbara Loechler, 629 Columbian-av; Barbara Donavan, 681 Bedford-pl; Katherine Belhorn, 410 Reinhard-av; Howard Moon, 203 S. Westmoor-av; Dr. Erle H. Wildermuth, 2546 Sullivant-av; C. Wilbur Hatch, 1606 Bryden-rd; and Charlotte Alexander, 2551 Sullivant-av.

Rehearsals show the play to be full of tense situations. The action keeps the audience in suspense until the curtain goes down on the last scene of the mystery.

Joe Hague, 44 Binns-blvd, is president of the Little Theater. Other officers are Dr. P. L. Corderay, 2563 Sullivant-av, vice-president; Howard Moon, treasurer; Dorothy Hague, 44 Binns-blvd, corresponding secretary; Betty Moon, 203 S. Westmoor-av, recording secretary; and D. Knight Finley, 733 S. Hague-av, business manager.

Tickets may be obtained at the office of The Hilltop Record, 2465 W. Broad-st; Spang's Drug Store, 2785 Sullivant-av; and Finley's office, 30 E. Broad-st.

A General Electric Home Freezer is a food bank that will pay you a handsome rate of interest! This is how:

Instead of paying a high price for a sliver of steak or a patty of hamburger every day—you buy only when you get a "break" on meat prices—as during a sale!

You buy your fruits and vegetables in season when prices are lowest, and quality highest. Then you just bank your food in your General Electric Home Freezer and enjoy it day after day, when most other folks have to pay high prices for the same food.

A WASHER at a NEW LOW PRICE with General Electric "Activator" Action!

There's real quality and dependable performance in this General Electric Washer—now available at a new low price to meet the most careful budget.

It has the famous Activator®-action that gets clothes really clean, everytime! It has the Permadrive mechanism, that needs no oiling. And it is a full 8-lb washer. Come in and look at the many features of the G-E "Economy" washer—then let us show you how it helps make washday a breeze.

Tom Sulzberger Awarded Degree

By Myron T. Seifert

Tom Sulzberger, former Hilltop resident, son of the late Dr. Fred L. Sulzberger and Mrs. R. W. Hughes, 92 N. Roys-av, was awarded a Bachelor of Science degree in Electricity by virtue of completion of a four year course in three years from the American Television Institute of Technology, Chicago.

Commencement rites were held at Medina Masonic Temple, Chicago, and his mother, Mrs. Hughes, and sister, Mrs. Betty Frost, were in attendanie.

A West High graduate, class of 1942, Tom made a splendid record at the Hilltop school.

Starling Junior High News Notes

STUDENT TEACHER

By Norma Bartlow

There is a student teacher in the science class at Starling Junior High School. His name is Nick Janowitz. He is a student at Ohio State University and will graduate this March. His home is in Cleveland and he attended Rhodes High School there. Mr. Janowitz plans to be a science teacher and his hobbies should go hand in hand with his work. They are photography and radio.

Mr. Janowitz came to Starling Sept. 28 and will be there until Dec. 9. He is enjoying his work there and the students hope he will continue to do so.

ONE DAY VACATION

By Alvin Funk

The students of Starling Junior High, along with those of all the Columbus public schools, enjoyed a long week-end last week. School was not in session on Friday, Nov. 11, in commemoration of Armistice Day.

HI-Y AND Y-TEEN PARTY PLANS

By Daryl Poston

The Hi-Y and Y-Teens of Starling Junior High School are planning to have a party Nov. 17, from 6:30 until 9. There will be a movie, followed by dancing. These activities will be held in the gymnasium of Starling and all members of both organizations are invited to attend.

BAND ELECTS OFFICERS

By Jim Mussey

On Monday afternoon, Nov. 7, the Starling Band elected officers for the club. Those chosen were Vera Adams, president; Roger Horch, vice-president; Nancy Williams, secretary; and Bob Kesselring, treasurer. The band is under the direction of Mr. Dale.

CHEERLEADERS CHOSEN

By Joyce Hackney

On Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 9, the cheerleaders for Starling Junior High School were chosen. The committee in charge consisted of Miss Krumm, Miss Gaughran and Mr. Pace. Two of the girls who were chosen have had previous experience. Judy Kaiser has been a cheerleader for the last two years and Betty Feeman was a member of the group last year. Newcomers this season are Yvonne Brewer, Pat Hinton and June Doerfeine.

PAPER DRIVE

By Gene Carpenter

Every spring and fall Starling Junior High School sponsors a paper drive. The one for this semester was held Thursday morning, Nov. 10. Two periods are set aside for collecting, sorting and typing the papers. The grade with the most paper in the neatest condition is rewarded with a free period.

The teachers who supervised the seventh grade were Mr. Pace and Mr. Naylor; those who helped the eighth grade were Mr. Peck, Mr. Pittenger and Mr. Birkphrey. Mr. Walsh and Mr. Rader were in charge of the ninth grade.

The winner of this contest was the ninth grade. The total amount of paper collected was twelve and one-half tons.

BASKETBALL SQUAD CHOSEN

By Joe Delbert

Fifteen boys have been chosen for the basketball squad of Starling Junior High School for this season. They are Jack Fleming, Gary Robinson, Bob Fiffick, Wayne Lee, Eugene Tinsley, Howard Knowles, Jack Buck, Ralph Scoles, Glenn Jordan, Dan Bargdill, Tom Hanley, Ronald Eaton, Earl Gates, Charles Mateon and Larry Myers.

CAFETERIA

By Donna Hamler

There is a staff of students who work each day in the cafeteria at Starling Junior High School. It is through their efforts to cooperate with the official staff that the efficiency of the cafeteria is maintained. Those who are working this semester are Sallie Moore, Carol Ann Roby, Jacquelyn Stumbo, Shirley Stone, Nancy Weber, Dorothy Johnston, Juanita Shaffer, Jean Deming, Annabelle Clifton, Doris Pangborn, Alice Kamer, Nellie Miller, Shirley Waters, Oretta Ashton, Carol Maxson, Juanita Mills, Shirley Tucker, Mary Jane Kidder, Eleanor Tucker, Alice Deistchle, Betty Harrow, Lester Chittum and Joretta Looker.

"Mr. Fixit" of Faistl House Makes Own Bicycle Trailer

Bob Faistl

By Myron T. Seifert

To expedite the delivery of newspapers, ingenious Bob Faistl, 14, West Junior High student and son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Faistl, 31 N. Wayne-av, has built his own bike-trailer.

Bob figures that this innovation will pay off both in money and service to his customers.

Resourceful Bob, dexterous hands that he has, blue-printed his 1950 vehicle and when school opened this fall he decided to make this his term project in his wood and metal shop work at West Junior High.

Both Arthur Miller and Gates Trent, his wood and metal teachers respectively, look upon the hand-wrought cart as a worthy achievement, and Bob's fellow students admire his workmanship as they watch his methodical progress in building this unusual vehicle.

Every piece used by Bob is precision made.

"I got the idea from another boy who bought a delivery cart for a large sum of money," Bob said.

"I vowed then and there," he said, "that I could make a better and more useful vehicle at a much lower cost." To date Bob has spent only $3 on his cart. However, he has devoted time of four school periods a week for the past two months to his project and it still needs paint and the necessary finishing touches.

Metal brace on the six-foot square-bedded cart were wrought by him and the wagon bed, which has portable sides, can carry a tremendous level of paper or anything else he carries.

Around home Bob is Mr. Fixit. He takes care of minor repairs in a very satisfactory manner. Handy with carpenter and metal tools he is able to contribute much to the Faistl household when improvements are needed.

First experience in mending, Bob recalls, stems from an accidental breakage of a china vase in the Faistl home, when he was four years old. The many pieces of broken china were glued together and reinforced with a rubber band, restoring the object to at least a "reasonable facsimile thereof."

Serving tray for tumblers when company comes is an art object of Bob's that mother Faistl likes to use. Metal letter openers, hammered brass combination matchholder and ash tray, book ends, wood and metal wired lamps, broom and mop holder, bird feeders, model airplanes, wooden water towers and tanks for his erector set, bookcase, and a host of other articles are found in and about the N. Wayne-av homestead. He has also made an unusual cabinet to hold his tools.

He is also a musician, taking violin lessons from Lowell Drum, Hilltop musician.

'Think This Over'

By William "Doc" Campbell

'Tolerance'—That Bandied Word

The other day while basking in the sunshine, a truly wondrous thing happened. You speak of that word TOLERANCE—that much handled word—well, here I beheld it come to life. Why? Because I do not hate anyone in my heart, but I fear thousands do. Therefore they use that word hypocritically, or in other words, they "do not love their neighbor" in their hearts.

But today, the story is so real, so humane, so convincing, about TOLERANCE, that I pass it on to you.

Along the walk, to pass me, came a fine, well built Negro lad of, say, 16 summers. My vivid imagination immediately jumped to Africa. He looked so like a Nubian savage—hair curled tightly over his head an on a finely shaped skull. Over his right shoulder was flung a flat coat, and indeed all he needed to complete the jungle picture was a spear and shield. But NO! this was Columbus, Ohio, U. S. A. So I thought I would try an experiment in TOLREANCE. As he came abreast of me, I sang out a cheery "HI". Then the miracle happened! Was it America speaking? For from that lad's mind came "God's grandest smile" across that lawn to me, and I returned to him my sweetest smile. He passed. I knew that he knew that in my heart he was a "friend" though he was as black as coal, and probably of the third generation and I was only first descent Scotch, on both sides!

We were bound together on something that must survive if we surely are to survive. Tolerance, TOLERANCE! TOLERANCE! Over one hundred years ago, little attention was paid to tolerance. It was not needed. We, as a nation, had to grow up side by side with all kinds. But today education has given all races, creeds and colors the RIGHT to live and to be tolerated. Our gadgets are bought with money, but a truly educated soul is not measured by a money standard. We—all of us—can be decked out in finery, but do we let the "other fellow" have it too, in our minds and hearts? I fear not. So why be a hypocrite? Put yourself in the other fellow's place and say "Love my neighbor, as I LOVE MYSELF" or, as a young minister preaching in Sugar Grove about 24 years ago said: "Love thy neighbor" . . . (then in a caustic tone) "as YOU LOVE THYSELF"—more realistically than I had ever before heard it! It surely "got me." And you know what people THINK of THEMSELVES.

So, to be tolerant you must go "half way"—forget SELF and be UNselfish!

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

ONE SUNDAY morning in May, different from other mornings only in the sound of church bells that rose from the southwest corner of the valley where the town lay, Kit, finished with the beds and dishes, changed into one of her best dresses and sought out Marvell. She found him on his knees in the kitchen mending the copper boiler that had given out last night after their tub baths.

Hearing her step, he called without raising his head, "Now that we have got the house to ourselves today, I thought I'd get this job done."

"Look at me," she begged.

He turned around with difficulty, one shoulder caught under the lower pipes. He whistled appreciatively. She was a straight little figure in a yellow smocked dimity that did not cover her grimy knees.

"Watch out below!" he said with a grin. She looked down at her scuffed brown shoes.

"I didn't know what I was going to do," she explained.

"Where are you going?"

"Nowhere."

She shifted uncertainly from one foot to the other. This was the one day marked off from the others in the week—hence the dress and the air of expectation He didn't realize this, she knew. but she sighed, wishing he did.

They should be going off to church. this morning to show off that dress. but there wasn't time now, he supposed. He said matter-of-factly, "As soon as I finish here, we'll take our lunch somewhere in a basket. Why don't you go out and spot us a place now?"

She nodded. "I guess I'll go up to the big meadow."

The big meadow was seven acres lying to the east of the house. It sloped up to the highest point of their land and standing there Kit could see. over the gray stone wall and the fringe of trees. the thin wavery blue line that was, Marvell had told her. where Boston began with the Blue Hills. She walked diagonally across to a thicket of birches. Cut into the thicket was a track. half concealed, made by wagon wheels She followed it willingly, bending down to avoid the scratching twigs, and came out at a muddy water hole. This was an old unused entrance to an apple orchard that now stretched out before her in full blossom. The dazzling whiteness of the trees against the naked blue sky pressed painfully against her eyeballs. When the first shock of splendor wore off, the single branches with their pink buds ripening into white flower detached themselves from the mass. She wished Marvell were with her. But she would bring some proof back to him that she had found the enchanted spot for lunch. She picked several of the lower branches with difficulty, tugging at their tough stems with her teeth. It was always dull, she had found, to return the same way one came, so she walked out into the dirt road that would take her back to her lane and, if she followed it further, down to the village. It was not empty as it usually was—not more than a dozen feet away stood a white-footed horse on whose back sat a lady in a long green skirt.

Kit shaded her eyes to make the figure clearer and dragging some of the longer branches behind her in the dust went up as close as the dancing white feet would allow her. She smiled, first in honest admiration of the nervous quivering animal and then at the rider.

The lady's pale oval face showed no response. "What have you got there?" she asked sharply.

"Apple blossoms," said Kit, rescuing the trailing stems.

"You shouldn't pick them—you have destroyed the little apple in each bud."

Kit examined the dusty buds in her hand. She didn't see any little apples and was about to point out this discrepancy when the lady spoke sharply again.

"That is my orchard you are pilfering, little girl. What is your name?"

"Katherine Coomes."

"Oh. you're the people in the old Houghton house, aren't you?"

"My father and I live over there," she said, pointing in the general direction. Then she added, "I don't see any apples."

"Nor ever will, now. You don't know much about the country, do you?" She had taken in the handmade dress at a glance. "Do you ride?"

"No, but I could. I am sorry about your flowers." She gave her an uncertain smile.

"Walk along with me, not too near, it's dusty. I'll take a look at your house Perhaps I can find something there to replace my apples?"

Kit had never seen such frank greediness. She stared at her for a moment and then made for the stone wall. Straddling it, still hanging on to the flowers, she called: "I'll tell Marvell you're coming."

When Kit reached the house she could not find Marvell anywhere Two big flies were buzzing in the empty kitchen She poked into the shed but saw only the tool chest strewn with screwdrivers and a soldering tin. By the time she reached the front door, the visitor had arrived, dismounted and was standing eye to eye with her father. She could hear their voices in the foot of the lane but not their words.

The last thing in the world that Marvell had expected to see out of the kitchen window that morning was a lady on horseback skirting the edge of his lawn. He went out to meet her, supposing she had lost a bridle path somewhere or other and was arrested at the door by her cool command, "Call Mr. Coomes, please." Coatless, grease-stained, he looked like a farmhand.

Marvell laughed.

"I am he, madam," he said, half-bowing.

Taken aback, she said more abruptly still, "Sorry; you are not settled, I see. I am Edith Searle—I live about a quarter of a mile up the road from you."

"Let me tie up your horse," he said pleasantly.

She was almost as tall as Marvell and he noticed how long and white her hands were as she dropped the reins over the horse's neck. "She'll stand. I shan't interrupt your work more than a moment. Here in the country we don't stand on ceremony."

"We have come to the right place, all right," said Marvell with a grin.

"Where is your little girl? I found her in my orchard, she . . ."

Kit came up to them, interrupting the sentence, still carrying the load of apple blossoms Marvell stared at her. His good humor, faintly tinged with mockery, with which he had greeted Miss Searle was blotted out in sudden fury. All he saw was the torn branches and all he thought of was what Proctor had said to him that last interview. He was shaken with the outrage of that memory and his own silence before the accuser.

"Where did you get those?" he demanded angrily.

"From my orchard," Miss Searle replied for her. "You had better scold her for destroying those good Macs."

He had forgotten Miss Searle "Kit," he began more gently.

But she was angry now. Her eyes blazed. Half in anger, half in self-pity, she stormed, "Nobody told me. There are your old apples," and she flung them down in the direction of Miss Searle's feet. Digging her heels hard in the ground. she stomped off toward the kitchen.

"Kit," said Marvell without raising his voice. "come back here."

Miss Searle tingled with anticipation of a scene. She would have hated to stage one herself, but all the more enjoyed people who could cut loose as they fixed.

Kit came back slowly.

"Don't take it out on them. Give them a chance to breathe. Put them in water in the shed where it is cool." Kit gathered them up, her face averted. Marvell turned to Miss Searle, "In the fall. we'll send you some Macs to make up for your loss."

Miss Searle felt she was the one who was being scolded unfairly now She watched Kit's retreat to the house and then said coldly. "There's no real harm done. I had forgotten that children take to such thing naturally."

"Will you come in," he went on. ignoring her last remark, "and see how we have progressed?"

Miss Searle lifted her long skirt carefully over the threshold. The smell of fresh paint was still strong in the center hallway. A small flight of stairs, hardly high enough for a tall person, ascended sharply to the hallway above. In the two rooms on the right and left of the front entry, the proportions were equally low.

Miss Searle looked into the almost empty living room. "You found it very run down, I dare say. The people before you were sickly—they came out for reasons of health. the elevation is seven hundred feet here you know, and they were not equipped to farm at all."

"There is a lot of work to an old place," Marvell agreed, "but it is sound stuff."

Miss Searle walked into the living room. "Very pretty," she extended her approval to its bareness and freshness. She tapped a finger nail against the wall paper, a hideous floral design. "Impossible—why don't you cover it with that Chinese tea paper, the gold ages to silver. My sister has done that with her little farm in New Hampshire."

West High 12A's Plan Square Dance

By Myron T. Seifert

First social activity on the 12A West High Senior agenda is a square dance, Friday, Nov 14, at the Hilltop school, President Bill Rosenbrenner said today.

Known as the "Hillbilly Hop", the senior classmates will frolic to the music provided by the Scioto Valley Boys.

Saturday, Dec. 10, the class is sponsoring a rummage sale at 6 Mt. Vernon-av address, class sponsor A. E. Buchanan said.

PUBLIC NOTICE
Common Pleas Court, Franklin County, Ohio.
No. 178846—Homer R. Langston, 1910 Temple, Los Angeles 26, California, plaintiff, vs. Dorothy Tom Frazier, 67 Chapel Avenue, Chicago 49, Illinois; Fred Avenue, Chicago 49, Illinois; Betty J. Tom, and the unknown spouse of Betty J Tom, if any, 6708 Merrill Avenue, Chicago 49, Illinois; Fred A. Tom, 6708 Merrill Avenue, Chicago 49, Illinois; Marguerite Tom (wife of Fred A. Tom), 6708 Merrill Avenue, Chicago 49, Illinois. Defendants.

PETITION

Now comes the plaintiff and for his petition, says that he is seized in fee simple and in possession of the following described real estate; Situated in the County of Franklin, in the State of Ohio, and in the Township of Franklin: Being in Survey No. 1279, Virginia Military Land, and being also a part of a certain tract of 20.97 acres conveyed by Charles E. Tom, et al., to Emmett E. Tom, etal., by deed of record in Deed Book 284, page —, Franklin County Records, and being more particularly described as follows: Beginning at an iron pin in the north line of the P. C. C. and St. L. Railroad right of way, which point is south 86° 30' West a distance of 485.0 feet from an iron pin in the west line of Hague Avenue, and the north line of said P. C. C. & St. L. Railroad right of way; said point being also the southwest corner of a tract hereinafter conveyed by said Emmet E. Tom, et al, to the Hilltop Supply Company by deed as recorded in D. B. 786, page 195, Recorder's Office, Franklin County, Ohio; thence from said point of beginning north 3° 31' East a distance of 114.90 feet to an iron pin; thence North 86° 30' East a distance of 496.30 feet to a point in the center line of Hague Avenue (passing an iron pin at 335.00 feet); thence north 3° 29' (West along the center line of Hague Avenue a distance of 167.04 feet to a point; thence south 67° 10' west a distance of 726.08 feet (passing an iron pin at 20.00 feet) to an iron pin on the east line of 20.989 acre tract; thence along the east line of said 20.989 acre tract south 23° 29' East a distance of 10.00 feet to an iron pin; being also the southeast corner of said 20.989 acre tract, and the north right of way line of aforementioned railroad; thence north 86° 30' East along the north right of way line a distance of 246.28 feet to the place of beginning, containing 1.325 acres, subject to all legal highways. Plaintiff further says that the defendants Dorothy Tom Frazier, Fred A. Tom, and Betty J. Tom, whose present does not know if she is married or not, have or claim to have an interest in said real estate adverse to the plaintiff; that Frank Frazier is the husband of Dorothy Tom Frazier; that Marguerite Tom is the wife of Fred A. Tom; and that it is unknown whether Betty J. Tom is married or not, and if so what her name is or the name of her husband, if any. WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays that the defendants be notified of the pendency of this action and be required to set up their respective claims, if any exist, to said real estate, and that his title in the same be forever quieted against said claim and for all other and further relief to which plaintiff may be entitled in the premises.

A MEDAL FOR AH SAM

Unclaimed Award Ends Story of Arctic Tragedy

By JOHN PETERSEN
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON—In a little-used and almost forgotten naval library in Washington lies a lone, unclaimed silver medal awarded by Congress to a Chinese cook by the name of Ah Sam.

On one side of the medal is the inscription: "In commemoration of perils encountered and as an expression of the high esteem in which Congress holds his services."

On the other side is an engraving of a small steamer mauled, broken and sinking in the clutches of an Arctic ice pack.

The medal is one of 33 awarded to the officers and men of the ill-fated Jeannette Arctic Expedition of 1881. Most of the men, including their leader, Lt. Cmdr. George Washington DeLong, failed to return. DeLong was selected to command the expedition by New York publisher James Gorden Bennett. The ship, under the name of Pandora, already has made two junkets into the Arctic wastes. Some sailors say that changing the name of a vessel is an ill omen. Perhaps they can prove their case in the fate of the Pandora, renamed the USS Jeannette in honor of Bennett's sister.

The ill-fated Jeannette, claimed by an icy death in the polar seas.

• • •

THE SMALL steam vessel set sail from San Francisco, July 8, 1879. For several months the Jeannette worked her way northward through the ice packs, slipping between colossal icebergs and narrowly escaping the powerful jaws of ice jams floating southward under the summer heat.

However, on Sept. 6, 1879, in latitude 71° 35 N, and 75° W., she became lodged in an icepack from which she never escaped. For 21 months the tiny boat was held fast and drifted as the ice drifted.

The remarkable journal kept by DeLong tells of the long winter nights under sub-freezing conditions and how the officers and men kept their spirits up by steadily working aboard the ship under specific naval routine, and how they cheered themselves after their work was done by holding amateur theatricals.

On the night of June 10, 1881, the ice beside the Jeannette opened up, the ship righted itself and actually floated. But hardly had the men enjoyed this brief respite than the ice closed in again—with such force as to smash the staunch vessel. This was on June 13, 1881.

The men hastily tugged lifeboats, rafts and some food off the sinking vessel. Then they began their long, losing battle with the ice in the Arctic seas.

The little company floated through the polar seas and tugged their lifeboats on sledges over icy barriers for 45 days before reaching land, an unknown island which they promptly named Bennett's Island.

• • •

THERE WERE three small boats used in the escape attempt: The first cutter, commanded by DeLong; the second cutter, commanded by Lt. Charles W. Chipp, and a whaleboat, commanded by Eng. George Wallace Melville, who later became a rear admiral.

In a heavy gale on Sept. 12, the boats became separated and Lieutenant Chipp, with a crew of eight, was lost. Melville, with his boatload of nine, reached the Delta.

DeLong and his party (totaling 14) reached the mainland of Asia at the mouth of the Lena on Sept. 17, 1881, after having traveled 2,800 miles.

DeLong's party, on Oct. 9, 1881, came to journey's end—on the ice-bound coast of Siberia.

DeLong sent his two best men—William Nindemann and Louis Noros—on ahead for help. The remainder of the party "dug in" for the long siege which was to end in icy death.

• • •

THE DOOMED DELONG kept his diary going, but each day the entries grew shorter and shorter. The final pages of the 140-day journal read:

"Thursday, Oct. 27—187th day. Iveson broken down."

"Friday, Oct. 28—188th day. Iveson died during early morning."

"Saturday, Oct. 29—189th day. Dressler died during the night."

"Sunday, Oct. 30—140th day. Boyd and Gorty died during night. Mr. Collins dying."

That was the last entry.

The two men DeLong had sent forward, by some miracle made contact with Melville, who immediately set out in search for DeLong's party. However, the search party did not find the camp and the bodies of DeLong and his men until March 23, 1882.

The fate of Lieutenant Chipp's party never was discovered.

The Chinese cook, Ah Sam, perished with his commander, but his valor and the courage he displayed live on in the Congressional Medal awarded to him, but never claimed.

Why it was never claimed by any of the members of his family, or if they simply don't know that it exists, is something the Navy can't determine. Some day someone may claim it.

Brown, Mrs. Clarence Growdon, Mrs. Howard Breckenridge, Mrs. Donald Garnett, Mrs. I. A. Thompson, Mrs. Sheets Sr., Mary Patterson, Mabel Altherr, Mrs. Earl Foresman, Florence Weber and Mary Whalen. Previous arrangements had been made and several of the members went "back stage" and talked with Rex Harrison and Joyce Redman of the Play.

Mrs. Elwood Rose, 87 Lawrence-av, returned Monday from Sky Top, Penn., where she had been a delegate to the National Panhellenic Conference of college sororities. As editor of "The Triangle," official magazine of Sigma Sigma Sigma, Mrs. Rose was one of the national officers representing her sorority.

Mrs. Frank Cody, Mrs. A. G. Barnecut and Mrs. E. C. Sheets Sr., attended the ninth annual reunion of Avondale School, Thursday night.

John Knisely, Worthington, spent several days with his grandparents, the R. G. Barnecuts, Maple Drive.

Mrs. Joe Stormont entertained with the second course of a Progressive Dinner, Thursday, given by the Officers Club of the West Jefferson Chapter of Eastern Star.

Mr. and Mrs. George B. Barrett 268 Lennox-av, are in Detroit visiting their daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Graham.

Mr. J. L. Coulter, Pasadena-av, was given a birthday surprise party at the home of his daughter, Mrs. LeRoy Schoonover, 370 Lennox-av. The affair was well planned with two other daughters, Mrs. Sampson and Mrs. Elliott assisting, with games and delicious refreshments. The sons who attended were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Coulter, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Coulter and daughter, Kathy, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Coulter and daughter, Sue, Mr. Sampson and son, Rodger, Mr. Jack Elliott and sons Jimmy and Dick and the host Mr. Schoonover and children, Ronnie and Ann.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Gould of Dayton were Saturday guests at the Warner home, having come to attend the game with the Warners.

Mr. and Mrs. Kent Richey and family spent Sunday visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sessler, London.

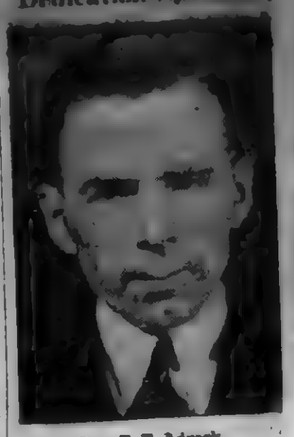
Jehovah Issues Great Invitation — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Isaiah 55: 56:6-8.

Jehovah asks all people to come to Him, promising to make a covenant with them as He made with David whom He chose as leader of his people.



Seek ye the Lord while He may be found, call upon Him while He is near; let the wicked forsake his ways and let him return to the Lord.

Jehovah promises to take strangers into His holy mountain, and to make them joyful in His house of prayer: He will also accept their sacrifices.

As He had gathered the outcasts of Israel, the Lord promised He would also gather those of other nations to Him.

MEMORY VERSE—Isaiah 56:7.

Rev. Dean Enters 10th Year At Hilltop Comm. Church

Rev. and Mrs. J. L. Dean

Rev. J. L. Dean, pastor of the Hilltop Community Church, 179 N. Huron-av, entered his 10th year as pastor of the church Nov. 10.

Mrs. Dean, pictured with Rev. Dean, is a licensed minister and occasionally fills the pulpit of the Community Church and performs other relative duties. Mrs. Dean now conducts Bible Study each Sunday night in the church at 6:30. "A real co-worker is she," says Rev. Dean.

The Community Church has been in a pay as you build program for a number of years, worshiping in the basement unit from November, 1941, to Oct. 2 of this year, when the first service was held in the new sanctuary. New pews and chancel furniture will be purchased some time in the near future.

The Community Church is supporting Rev. Dale McClain of Danville, O., missionary to India under the board of the Oriental Missionary Society.

Last Sunday Rev. Dean preached on the subject "Blessed Fellowship" in an anniversary sermon. Next Sunday morning Mrs. J. L. Dean will preach and use for her subject, "Love Slaves." The church parsonage is at 194 N. Roys-av.

OBSERVES PRAYER WEEK

Broad St. Church Sets Evangelical Series Schedule

Rev. Lewis Mikell

Evangelist Lewis Mikell of Johnstown, Pa., will begin a series of evangelistic services next Sunday morning at the Church of Christ, corner of Broad and Demorest. Preparations for the services has been under way for several weeks and, according to the local minister, T. W. Butterfield, capacity attendance is expected during the meeting.

Some of the subjects to be used during the two weeks' campaign are "The Truth Shall Make You Free," "Who Is a Christian?", "What Must I Do To Be Saved?", "The Three Places of Israel", "The Three Dispensations", "The Glorious Church" and "Heaven, and Who Is Going".

Westgate residents are urged to hear this young Bible teacher each night at 7:30. The meetings are scheduled to continue through Dec. 4.

Mr. Mikell will also speak on the regular Church of Christ program next Sunday morning at 9 o'clock over WRFD.

MISSION SOC. TO MEET

The Wenrich Missionary Society Study Group of Hilltop Lutheran Church will meet at 1 p. m. Wednesday in the church. Mrs. Clifford Coil will lead the discussion.

Hilltop Lutheran Children Present Pageant Saturday

The children of the Church group of Hilltop Lutheran Church will present the pageant "We Tell Our Story", at the festival program to be held at the church Saturday, Nov. 19, at 2 o'clock.

The festival pageant was written by Mrs. Leonard Echols and her daughter, Carol, and is presented in story-book fashion, telling the story of the work of the Children of the Church during the past ten years.

Speakers and narrators are: Diane Bergman, scripture; Thomas Ricker and Barbara Herbster, introduction; Donald Johnson, narrator, chapter I; Nina Griffith, narrator, chapter II; Roger Larson, narrator, chapter III; Margaret Jenny, narrator, chapter V; and James Heil, conclusion.

Approximately 35 other children will be the "living pictures" of each chapter.

Miss Barbara Lee Barbee is the pianist, and Mrs. John Ricker leader.

Teachers are: Mrs. Frances Conrad, nursery; Mrs. Hugh McCreight, Mrs. Mary Price, Beginners; Mrs. McNutt, Mrs. Wm. Halisteine, 1st grade; Mrs. Herbert Pfaltzgraf, Mrs. Charles Welch, 2nd grade; Mrs. Miller, Mrs. L. Wildermuth, 3rd grade; Mrs. Carl Lucas, Mrs. Karl Kruckeberg, 4th grade; Mr. Curtiss Steele, Mr. Herbert Pfaltzgraf, 5th and 6th grades, and Pastor Olson, advisor.

Refreshments will be served. Parents and friends of the children are especially invited to attend.

Dip In HCL Means Turkey Feast To Cost Less

The bulge in the housewife's shopping bag will mean less of a dent in the pocket-book this Thanksgiving. A dinner with trimmings for a family of six will be a dollar cheaper this year.

Biggest price drop is on turkeys. Last year, a survey of Record grocery ads shows, dressed turkeys cost as much as 85 cents a pound. This year a bird weighing more than 20 pounds can be had for as little as 49 cents per pound.

Trimmings for the Thanksgiving feast have gone down only a matter of a few cents, but this savings adds up in the purchase of the meal. Sweet potatoes, cranberries, pumpkin, mince meat and nuts, have all come down in price.

Some of the essentials have gone up slightly since last year. Bread is a cent higher than it was in '48.

The drop in most prices is attributed to the general drop in the cost of living the past few months. The substantial cut in the price of turkeys is due to the improved feeding programs promoted by feed companies and government agencies.

• • •

Watch the birdie: Record photographer Bill Gibbon had the tables turned on him last week, and set some sort of a record for shooting birds at the same time.

On the picture taking schedule for the day was Mrs. T. J. Taylor, 246 S. Richardson-av. Mrs. Taylor is a member of the Columbus Canary Breeders Club and has about 300 birds at her home. Also on the day's shooting schedule was the Hilltop Lions Club meeting at Schmelzer's. The club gave away 20 turkeys. Next a trip to Southworth's Poultry house and the photographing of 500 turkeys, these alive. Last stop was the Biltmore Restaurant, where the chef and owner posed with a turkey.

Unofficial score for the day was 521 birds. Eight hundred alive and 21 dead. It's enough to make a person feather-brained.

2 Hilltop Men Join Charity Newsies: Paper Sale Dec. 17

Two Hilltop residents are among the 16 new Charity Newsies to join the "100 Per Cent for Charity" organzation this year. Already they are campaigning actively and awaiting Dec. 17, when the annual street sale of special editions will be held for the 43rd consecutive time.

They are William Haire of 3107 Ellis-pl, of the Haire Sign Co., 1050 N. Fourth-st, and Otho Hayner of 787 S. Richardson-av, associated with the F. & R. Lazarus and Co.

Assignments Chairman Lee Weigand of 3181 W. Broad-st, is busily engaged in much of the advance preparations for the drive. Already he has distributed lists to solicitors, buttons, placards from his store at 47 W. Long-st. The Newsies do not wait until the street sale, but are soliciting now among assigned stores, factories, large offices and mercantile establishments.

Chairman Howard F. Foley soon will be announcing the street stand locations of the Charity Newsies.

Charles B. Margulis, the organization's second vice-president, is serving as the 1949 drive chairman. He has urged his co-workers to plunge headlong into their job, citing the appeals for aid in the way of shoes, clothing, [illegible] and fuel already registered with the Newsies.

The Newsies' store will be opened immediately after the drive. More than 4500 children were outfitted last year, and Newsie officials predict there will be an e[illegible] greater demand for assistance this winter.

Carl Latscha Jr. Is Final Pig-Skin Winner

With only three games to guess, due to the Ohio State-Michigan tie, 38 contestants reached the finals in the last Professor Pig-skin contest of the season—a record breaking number.

Hamilton Catholic's win over Aquinas was the game that caused most contestants to be eliminated. A better showing was expected of Aquinas after their win over West in the final City League game.

Carl Latscha, Jr., 211 N. Wheatland-av, wins first prize of ten dollars this week. Second prize goes to Glyndon Davis, 243 N. Harris-av. Both of these contestants, as did the majority of the others, picked Ohio State to win.

With the end of football season, Prof. Pig-Skin folds his cap and gown neatly and goes into hibernation until next season, with a slight bit of activity around the first of the year to see how the Rose Bowl game comes out.

Grover Woodin, Retired Teacher, Dies Saturday

Grover C. Woodin, 63, retired public school teacher here, died Saturday at his residence, 2911 W. Broad-st, following a heart attack. A graduate of Ohio State University, where he also received a master's degree, he formerly taught entomology at Michigan State College for three years.

Later he taught at Central High School and Starling Junior High School in Columbus. He was at Starling when he retired six years ago.

Mr. Woodin was a member of Delta Theta Sigma, agricultural fraternity, Glenwood Methodist Church and Goodale Lodge of Masons. Surviving are his wife, Bertha; two sons, Frank, and Robert J. Woodin; two stepsons, Robert K. and Richard H. Wolfe, and two grandchildren.

Services were held at 3:30 p. m. Monday. Burial was in Sunset Cemetery.

Named Lutheran League Chaplain

Rev. Albert H. Schnalke, 124 S. Powell-av, was installed as institutional chaplain for the Lutheran Welfare League of Central Ohio at 8 p. m. Sunday at Trinity Lutheran Church, Third and Fulton-sts.

Rev. C. T. Langholz, pastor of St. John Lutheran Church, will officiate and Rev. A. Bradow, director of the Lutheran Welfare League, will have the liturgy. The sermon will be given by Rev. Harold Albert, pastor of First English Lutheran Church.

Rev. Schnalke is a graduate of Carthage College and Chicago Lutheran Seminary, Maywood, Ill., and was a navy chaplain for three years in the Pacific area.

After being discharged from the navy, he attended Divinity School at the University of Chicago.

Rev. Schreiber Is Kiwanis Speaker

Rev. Norman L. Schreiber, pastor of the Westgate Methodist Church, will be the speaker at the luncheon meeting of the Hilltop Kiwanis Club at noon, Wednesday, Nov. 23, at Schmelzer's Restaurant. His subject will be "Thanksgiving".

The club will meet on Wednesday this week because of the Thanksgiving holiday.

Rev. Schreiber is president of the Hilltop Ministerial Association.

Ask Funds To Repair Fire Damage

The State Board of Control will be asked to release $143,998 to repair and reconstruct the Columbus State Hospital dormitory, 1601 W. Broad-st, which was damaged by fire Nov. 2, it was announced last week.

State Welfare Director J. H. Lamneck said he would ask the board for the amount. Half of it would be used to repair damage from the three-alarm fire and the rest to "rejuvenate" the south wing of the main building.

At the time of the fire the damage was estimated at between $250,000 and $300,000.

Thanksgiving Services

In keeping with the custom of other years and the annual proclamation from the White House, the Hilltop Ministerial Association is sponsoring a community Thanksgiving Day service. The union service, supported each year by a number of Hilltop churches, will be held this year at the Hilltop Community Church, 179 N. Huron-av. Services will begin at 8 a. m.

Band Parents To Sponsor Dance

A "Turkey Hop" dance, sponsored by the West High Band Parents Club, will be given from 8:30 to 11:30 p. m. Wednesday, Nov. 22, in the high school gymnasium.

The high school dance band will play.

Proceeds from the dance will go for support of the band and orchestra of West High School.

SPECIAL SERVICE

Rev. C. T. Langholz, pastor of St. John Lutheran Church, announced today that a special Thanksgiving Day service will be held at the church at 9:30 a. m. Thursday. The sermon topic will be "Radiant Thanksgiving."

Dance At Glenwood Park Is Friday

Friday there will be a free dance at Glenwood Recreation Center.

The public is invited to attend the Thanksgiving festivities which will begin at 8 o'clock and last until 11 o'clock. Music for the dance will be furnished by a band which is being obtained through the Columbus Federation of Musicians.

Glenwood Center is located at the east end of Fairmont-av, one block east of Lechner.

Thieves Take Parts At Service Station

Auto parts and merchandise valued at $42.05 were stolen from the Shunkwiller Sunoco Service Station, 2035 Sullivant-av, Sunday according to the proprietor, Charles Shunkwiller, 248 Nashoba-av.

The burglars stole the goods by reaching in through a broken window.

West Gate Masonic Temple Burglarized

The West Gate Masonic Temple, 2925 W. Broad-st, was burglarized early Sunday.

An undetermined amount of money was taken from a soft-drink dispensing machine. The thieves apparently failed in an attempt to force two office doors.

IN A SCENE FROM "SUNSET", three-act mystery produced by the Hilltop Little Theater, Dr. Erle H. Wildermuth, 2546 Sullivant-av, stops Barbara Donovan, 661 Bedford-pl, and is about to identify her as the star witness in the play's murder. The picture, taken at rehearsals, shows Howard Moon, 203 S. Westmoor-av, and Charlotte Alexander, 2551 Sullivant-av, watching the incident. The play will be staged Sunday, Dec. 4, at the John Burroughs School Auditorium.

Asks Use Permit For Golf Course

The city of Columbus must get permission from the county to use the new golf course being built at Trabue and Wilson-rds.

A public hearing will be held at 7:30 p. m. next Monday in the office of the Franklin County Planning Commission, Court House Annex, to consider the recreation department's application for a use permit on the 215 acre tract.

Work is well under way on the golf course, which is in Norwich Twp. As specified in the rural zoning law, the application for the use permit has been made to the Franklin County Board of Zoning Appeals.

Steel Shortage Causes Ternstedt Production Cut

Shutdowns as a result of the steel shortage will mean short work weeks for 3200 employes of the Ternstedt Columbus Division of General Motors Corp.

The plant began decreasing production Friday. Salaried employes are not affected.

Paul L. Jones, resident manager, said the cutback will gradually balance inventories. Approximately 1000 of the hourly workers were idle Friday and the first three days of this week. On Thanksgiving and the day after, the plant will be closed. More than two thousand employes will be out of work the following week. Officials would not say what the work schdule would be after Dec. 5.

Although the supply of steel and coal is low, Jones said that the layoff wasn't so much a result of the local supply, but was due to halts in body production throughout the country. "The inability to continue operation in the body divisions has caused the slack here," Jones said.

Kiwanis Issue Of Record Goes On Sale Dec. 15

The Kiwanis Christmas edition of The Hilltop Record will go on sale on street corners and house-to-house Thursday, Dec. 15. The charity newspaper is sponsored by the Hilltop Kiwanis Club.

The special edition, which will contain stories about the club's activities, and the year's highlights of community doings, will be distributed by a sales force of 200 club members.

The first copy of the issue will be auctioned at a rally at West High School on the night of Dec. 15. Funds received from the sale of the paper go to worthy charities and to other Hilltop organizations in need of financial aid.

The new Hilltop Lions Club will cooperate with the Kiwanis Club in the sale of the paper.

There will be a Thanksgiving Eve service at the Westgate Methodist Church at 8 p. m. Wednesday. Norman Roettger, student assistant pastor, will preach the sermon. All are invited to this pre-Thanksgiving service.

Thanksgiving Deadline

Due to the Thanksgiving holiday the Thursday issue of The Hilltop Record will be delivered early Thursday morning this week.

The deadline on classified advertising and news copy will be 9 a. m. Wednesday for this issue of the Record.

Rev. Russell J. Olson

Rev. Olson Resigns Pastorate

Rev. Russell J. Olson, pastor of the Hilltop Evangelical Lutheran Church, 2475 W. Broad-st, this week announced the resignation from his pastorate "for personal reasons."

The resignation was submitted to the church council. It must be passed on by the council before becoming effective. It would go into effect Jan. 31.

Rev. Olson has been at the Hilltop church since September 1945, coming here from Toledo. He is past president of the Southern Conference of the Synod of Ohio and was recently elected to the executive board of the Synod.

Rev. Olson said that his future plans were "not to be announced at this time." He lives at 104 S. Westmoor-av.

Mayer Named To Child Study, Guidance Service

By Myron T. Seifert

One of the first steps following recent passage of the fourmill school levy, included the appointment of West High mathematics instructor Ted H. Mayer, 766 College-av, to the post of Assistant-Director of Child Study in the Columbus Public Schools.

The new Child Study and Student Counseling Service, representing consolidation of two departments, allows for expansion of the present program, Superintendent N. B. Fawcett said. An additional part-time psychologist will probably be appointed to work with two psychologists now on the staff, he said, and guidance counselors may be appointed from among faculty members.

The new assistant director, Mr. Mayer is well qualified for the counseling work, Mr. Fawcett said.

Mr. Mayer, a graduate of Capital University with a Master's degree from Ohio State, had extensive counseling and personnel experience with the Navy during the war. He served at the Pearl Harbor Educational Service Center as officer in charge of counseling and was stationed for a time at Navy Pacific University.

Now a teacher at Powell-av School, his new appointment is effective November 28.

CHILDREN'S BOOK SALE

Mrs. Ruth Tooze, of Book-fairs, Inc., Michigan City, Ind., is bringing a host of books for children to the Children's Book Sale Wednesday through Saturday, Nov. 30 to Dec. 3, at the gymnasium of First Community Church, 1320 Cambridge-blvd, from 1:30 to 5:30 afternoons and 7 to 9 evenings.

To Study Annexation Petition

Sixty days having elapsed since its presentation to the city clerk's office, the petition to annex Joan Heights subdivision to the city of Columbus will go to the city planning commission and the city attorney for further study.

The petition has been passed unanimously by the county commissioners, and was not opposed at the public hearing held at the court house two months ago.

The petition was initiated in July, with the signatures of 77 per cent of the property owners. The subdivision is north of the present city limits between Algonquin and Sylvans-ave, extending to Valleyview-rd.

About 75 families live in the subdivision, and approximately two-thirds of these are freeholders.

Auxiliary Gives Furniture To Vets' Hospital

A recent presentation of furniture and furnishings to the recreation building of the veteran's hospital by the Franklin Co. Council, American Legion Auxiliary was the result of an idea presented by the Camp Chase Auxiliary.

The idea was originally presented to the Post by Mrs. Joseph Thompson for her son-in-law, Robert Konkler, a department service officer of the legion. It was then presented to the Franklin Co. Council by Mrs. Helen Kirkpatrick, auxiliary Welfare and Rehabilitation chairman.

The presentation consisted of chrome and plastic tables, chairs, davenports, and desks for the library and 500 foam rubber cushions for chairs.

Crispin Wins Speech Contest At Hilliards High

Howard Crispin, a senior at Hilliards High School, won the local Prince of Peace contest.

His selection, "What Manner of Men Are We", won over three other contestants competing for the bronze medal contest. The county silver medal contest will be held Sunday, Dec. 4.

Jack Winkler, also a senior, won the alternate. Other contestants were Jeanne Vagnier, a junior, and Jack Flickinger, another senior.

This contest is sponsored annually by the Ohio Council of Churches to further the idea of "World Peace".

Hilltop Child Injured In Fall From Car

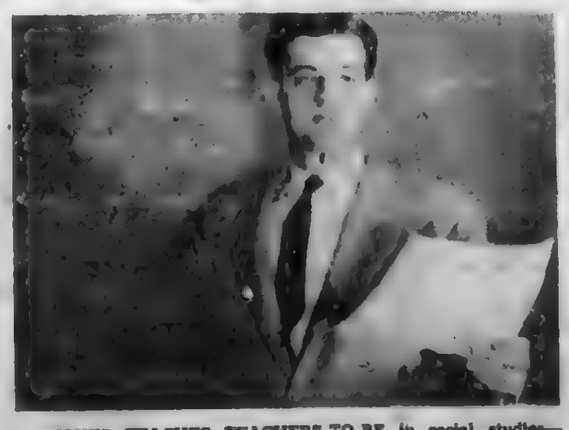
Seriously injured when he fell from his parents' auto as it was traveling about 40 miles per hour west of the city, three-year-old Robert Michaelis, Jr., 240 N Hague-av, was in Grant Hospital Tuesday.

The accident occurred in Trabue-rd, between Columbus and Hilliards, Sunday afternoon, according to the boy's mother, Mrs. Betty Michaelis.

She said the car was driven by her husband, Robert Michaelis, Sr.

SANDUSKY-ST BRIDGE OPENS

The Sandusky-st Bridge will be opened to traffic today, nearly a year ahead of schedule. The new bridge will carry four lanes of traffic. Dedication ceremonies are at 2:30.



Study For Doctor's Degree, Teaching Future Teachers Fill Day of Sam Jones

SAM "HUB" JONES of 434 S. Eureka-av, is working on his doctor's degree in education at Ohio State University. He also teaches two classes and supervises student teachers in Columbus public schools. Jones spends his week-ends and evenings preparing for his classes and reading to fulfill requirements for his degree. He received his bachelor's degree in 1947. Jones graduated from West High School in 1933.

EXCEPT FOR THE WEEK-ENDS, Mrs. Jones, Katherine, sees very little of her teacher-student husband. In the same field, she teaches seventh grade history at University High School. According to the college of education at OSU, they are the only couple to graduate with "cum laude" honors, with the wife preceding husband. Mrs. Jones graduated from OSU in 1948 and received her master's degree in 1947.

JONES TEACHES TEACHERS-TO-BE in social studies—history, political science and geography. Before becoming a college instructor, he taught history at Grove City High School. His day is taken up with visiting student-teachers in the schools, and a staff conference in the morning and teaching two classes in the afternoon.

ADVISER TO NEARLY A HUNDRED prospective teachers, Jones frequently consults with students in his office in Arps Hall, on the OSU campus. When not attending to his students' problems and activities, he must use his spare time to study in preparation for passing exams for his degree. Jones served in the 5th Division from January, 1941, to January, 1945. He was in the Pacific war area for 2½ years.

Miss Frances Exner Becomes Bride Of Mr. Rowland In Double Ring Ceremony

Mr. and Mrs. Herschel Rowland

Broad Street Methodist Church was the scene of the wedding of Miss Frances Exner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Exner, Bellaire, O., and Mr. Hersehel L. Rowland, son of Mrs. John Rowland, 287 S. Ogden-av. Dr. Walter Castoe officiated at the double ring ceremony Sept. 11.

The bride, given away by her father, wore a dress fashioned of net over satin with a lace-trimmed hem and long sleeves. Her veil of illusion was gathered to a heart-shaped tiara which was trimmed with orange blossoms. Her corsage was an orchid on a Bible with stephanotis and love flowers.

Her matron of honor and only attendant was Mrs. Edward Weekley, who wore a dress of summer green marquisette, a green matching hat, and carried a French bouquet.

Mr. Rowland's best man was his brother, Mr. Edward Rowland.

Mrs. Exner was attired in a brown crepe dress with brown accessories and a corsage of yellow roses to receive her guests at the church reception following the ceremony. The bridegroom's mother wore a grey crepe dress, black accessories and pink rose corsage.

For their wedding trip to Canada, the new Mrs. Rowland changed to a dress of green taffeta with gold accessories.

The bride is a graduate of Bellaire High School, and nurse's training at Grant Hospital. She is now associated with Grant Hospital.

Her husband attended Pickerington High, was in the navy four years, and is now employed as a locomotive fireman.

Their present address is 1438 N. Wall-st.

JOB'S DAUGHTERS NEWS NOTES

By Patti Holycross

With an excited and glad-it's-over feeling Bethel No. 3 received its grade of excellent Thursday night, Nov. 17.

Our banquet was a success and we were honored to have the Past Chief Ring Jesters. Following the banquet was the inspection which Mrs. Helena Reid, grand guardian, and Alfred Ernshaw, associate grand guardian, inspected.

Our choir, for the first time, wore its new uniforms and they made a very pretty sight to behold. Our mothers' club certainly deserves a great big thanks for all the hard work they did.

A surprise to most of us came just before the inspection and that was to see Sandy Ross, our junior princess, who moved to Youngstown. She came back to fill her station as junior princess and did a very fine job after riding 200 miles. We took in a class of nine girls who seemed a little bit afraid but made out all right.

With our inspection over Thursday night we turned right around Friday night and instituted a new bethel in Bexley and again bethel No. 3 did a very fine job. Now we can all relax for about three more weeks so we will be ready for our semi-annual installation of officers which will be held Friday, Dec. 9, at the YWCA.

We do have one more meeting Dec. 9, and that will be our farewell meeting of all officers and we would like to see a big crowd there that night.

In closing, I'd like to wish everybody a very happy Thanksgiving Day, and don't eat too much turkey.

. . . is a time to think of all the good things that have come your way. We'd like to think we've added our bit with service that keeps you looking poised, attractive, and well-groomed.

Household Hints

WITH kitchen space at a high premium these overcrowded days, you might look favorably at these two suggestions for utilizing the blank areas on the inside of cabinet doors.

You can, for instance, tack screen-door springs horizontally across the inside and below them glue on grooved wood cleats. The purpose? To hold those unsightly pot lids, pie tins and similar flat utensils.

You can store glass tumblers on the inside of a cabinet door, too

Just attach two or three shelves in which a row of holes have been cut so that the glasses will nestle inside them. Shelf sizes will vary with each job, offering an opportunity to exercise some ingenuity. The shelves probably can be supported best by small metal brackets screwed onto the door.

That delicate movement of your watch is an open book to us. We can repair it to work precisely. We just ask one thing . . . please don't ask for a rush job if you want a really fine job!

Wagner-Rice Rites of Nov. 13 Announced

(Columbus Citizen Photo)

Mrs. Donald C. Rice

Cathedral candles highlighted the foliage arrangement and seven-branch candelabra which adorned the background for the wedding of Miss Wanda Marie Wagner, daughter of Mrs. Nicie J. Gatterdam, 884 S. Eureka-av, and Mr. Donald C. Rice, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Rice, 135 Cambridge-blvd, Sunday, Nov. 13, at First Community Church. Dr. Roy Burkhart officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by Mr. Gatterdam, was attired in a dress fashioned from an eighteenth century Italian museum piece. The princess lines, in ivory Italian silk satin, extended from the neckline to a three-yard train, together with the corresponding panels of Venetial lace. The veil was made of ivory illusion, finger-tip length with the bonnet of the same Venetial lace as the dress, and touched with orange blossoms. The bride carried a white satin prayerbook clustered with white orchids from which cascaded a shower of fleur d'amour.

Mrs. Robert L. Anderson acted as matron of honor for the bride and wore a Queen Anne style dress of American Beauty satin fashioned with tight fitted jacket, a high standing collar and three-quarter length sleeves. She wore a bonnet to match, and carried a white satin muff clustered with rose petal sprays and centered with Better Times roses. Mrs. Robert J. Bodine, Miss Helen Wagner and Mrs. Albert Brose, bridesmaids, and Miss Rita Rice, sister of the bridegroom, junior bridesmaid, were dressed in gowns similar to that worn by the matron of honor. Their white satin muffs were clustered with shattered white carnations and Eucharis lilies.

Best man for the bridegroom was Mr. Carl J. Wagner, brother of the bride. Dr. Robert L. Anderson, Mr. Robert J. Bodine and Mr. Edward Kennedy seated the guests.

Mrs. Gatterdam wore a long chantilly petal pink lace dress fashioned with a sweetheart neckline and long, tight sleeves with matching accessories and a light hybrid orchid corsage. Mrs. Rice, mother of the bridegroom, was attired in a surf blue tissue crepe gown, fashioned with long sleeves, and a key-hole neckline. Matching accessories were used and she wore a dark hybrid orchid corsage. Mrs. Carrie Dillman, grandmother of the bridegroom, wore a long navy blue Chantilly lace dress with accessories of navy blue velvet. She carried a dark hybrid orchid.

A reception for 300 guests followed the ceremony at the Athletic Club. Hostesses were Mrs. Carl J. Wagner, Miss Virginia Neff, Mrs. William Wolfe and Mrs. Nils Linquist.

For their wedding trip to New York, Miami and Cuba, the bride changed to a brown broadcloth suit with three-quarter length jacket lined in blond muskrat fur, a beige hat and brown accessories, with her orchid corsage taken from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will make its home after Dec. 1 at 112 N. Huron-av.

Use Poppy Seed For Seasoning

By ALICE DENHOFF

HOW nice it is when shopping for the seasoning shelf to find all the spices, many of them absent for several years, all present and accounted for.

Among the old favorites we were so pleased to see again, was that beautiful blue Dutch poppy seed. Once limited just to baked goods, the crunchy little seed with a walnut-like flavor, has been discovered by homemakers for wider usage. In the Dutch province of Sealand, where most of the poppy seed is grown the mastery of the growing art is passed from generation to generation.

Sauce for Vegetables

If you want to spice up the flavor of asparagus, peas, onions, carrots, beets or cauliflower, just try this sauce, sufficient for one lb. cooked vegetable. Melt ¼ c. butter or margarine. Add tbsp. lemon juice, tsp. poppy seeds, dash of paprika and ½ tsp. marjoram. Mix thoroughly.

Lamb steaks with poppyseed noodles makes a nice dinner dish. To serve 4, have butcher cut 4 steaks from end of leg of lamb. Wipe with damp cloth and place on greased rack in broiling pan. Sear quickly on both sides in hot broiler. Place pan in oven with controls set for moderately hot (375 F.-400 F.) to finish cooking. Allow 10-15 min. for steaks ¾ to one inch thick. Spread steaks with butter and sprinkle with salt, pepper and dash of marjoram.

To prepare the noodles, cook an 8-oz. package small flat noodles; drain. Melt 2 tbsp. butter. Add ½ tsp. salt and tbsp. poppyseeds. Pour over noodles and toss together gently to mix. Serves 4-6.

Lift up a just run-of-the-mill dinner with a batch of quick poppy seed rolls. Prepare a package of yeast roll mix according to package directions, but mix 2 tbsp. poppyseeds thoroughly with flour before adding to yeast mixture. More poppy seeds may be sprinkled over top of rolls just before baking, if desired. A regular yeast roll recipe may be used in lieu of the package mix, but use 2 tbsp. poppy seed for every 3 c. flour.

A poppy seed crust will bestow something new and different on a graham cracker pie crust, especially nice for lemon chiffon pie. For a 9-inch crust crush graham crackers for 2 c. crumbs. Cream ¼ c. butter or margarine until soft. Beat in ¼ c. sugar and 3 tbsp. poppy seeds. Work in crumbs. Pat mixture firmly onto sides and bottom of 9-inch pie pan. Bake at 325 F. 8-10 min. Let stand until cold before adding filling.

The CHARLEY CRITES are invited to Newark for a free meal over the holiday. That Chevy of theirs really rolls on its wheels in travel. It goes everywhere. Maybe because it's GREEN—always giving the signal to "GO".

MR. AND MRS. L. V. TROUT are going to help eat the turkey over on Butler at the daughter's home, Mrs. CHUB WINNIE-STAFFER.

A new television set at the OGDIN residence is entertaining all the company they've been having. The neighbors in our section are always saying, "Come on over and watch the show with us."

Did you watch the Michigan game on television? Did you notice MRS. HALL and husband, ART, on the screen—jumping up and down when State made their touchdown. They screamed so loud our aerial shook. Glad you enjoyed your trip up there, folks. I couldn't go because I had to write my article here for the Hi Ridge. Pretty good excuse—no? I was forced to write it Saturday because of the holiday.

LOUISE SCHAIBERT tore off the nail of her little finger when, in the act of raking leaves, her finger caught on a bushel basket of leaves. She says she'll know better the next time. It's almost well now.

"SKINNY" HARTSOOK is a lucky fellow. He was firing the furnace one morning last week and just as he shoveled up some coal and started putting it into the furnace a greenback winked up at him. Yep! He found a whole—but wrinkled—dollar bill. How it got there he doesn't know. But he didn't stop to inquire of ALICE, his wife. Are you reading this, Alice? Finders keepers, you know.

Glad to hear ED COADY is back at work again. He injured his heel in a fall from a stepladder when he was painting a spouting.

JOE ECHOLS' wife told us her husband installed television aerials and when he goes wrapping those metal fasteners around the chimney it always reminds him of putting his arms around her. She said he teases her of being heavy, but he can't talk, she quotes: "He's bigger round than a smoke-stack, himself. They're such a happy-go-lucky people—always kidding each other about their slim figures.

We say Hi! to some new neighbors—the DAVID HESS family. Hope you like us. We like company. So come and get acquainted.

HELEN HOLT brought another Hi-Ridger to us. How she dood it? Got married. The victim was EARL SMITH. They're at home at 2188 W. Mound-st.

The MURNANE baby, EILEEN, won an 8x10 cil picture of herself in the Hilltop baby contest. Every winner's picture is displayed in Seiller's window to watch the early Christmas shoppers pass by. Are there any other contestants among us Hi Ridgers?

LAURA JONES drives her new Chevrolet about and feels like a new person. Who wouldn't be happy and proud to own a new car? I'll be satisfied to get a new pipe—maybe for Christmas. Are you listenin', Rebeccah?

Happy Thanksgivin', folks!

AMERICA LEADS— IN Quality OF MEDICAL CARE

PERSPECTIVE . . . is very important in everything we do, say or think. Sometimes we sort of lose our proper perspective, in the "confusion of tongues" going on around us. We listen to people on the radio arguing about things on which they are often not well informed. We hear conversation about "Congress should pass such and such a 'Health Bill'."

When pinned down, the majority of the loudest talkers have not read the Bill, have not the remotest idea what is in it, or how radically it would affect their lives, the quality of Medical Care, and all health services.

Keep the high standards and skill of our medical men and women. Become informed and get the proper perspective.

Fight Tuberculosis

The 1949 Christmas Seal Sale started this week. Chances are you will be getting yours in the mail any day now.

When you buy Christmas Seals you are aiding medical science in stamping out tuberculosis, helping to put the finishing touches on a job that has been carried on since the first Christmas Seal Sale in 1904.

Tuberculosis is a communicable disease, and in the early stages of the disease there are no recognisable symptoms. This means that many persons may have the disease and be giving it to others with no knowledge of the fact.

The best way known to discover the disease in time to cure it and prevent its spread is through chest x-rays. More than a quarter million chest x-rays have been taken in Franklin County. They are now being taken at the rate of about 30,000 per year.

It is estimated that there are 500,000 active cases of tuberculosis in this country. Only half of these have been discovered. Through the chest x-ray program more and more cases are being found, arrested and cured.

X-ray equipment is expensive to buy and operate. And this is only one of the many ways that tuberculosis is being combatted.

The money you give for Christmas Seals provides all the funds of the Columbus Tuberculosis Society. Please be generous.

Letters to Editor

Mr. W. D. Campbell
3000 W. Broad-st
Columbus 4, Ohio
Dear Mr. Campbell,

I was happy to see in the paper that you were going into journalism work as a side line.

Yesterday I naturally looked forward to the first "Think This Over", and enjoyed reading it very much. I feel that you will be rendering a fine service to the community and I am certain you will enjoy this new adventure in writing.

With best wishes, I am
Yours very truly,

Editor, Hilltop Record:

It will be news to your readers that the Veterans of Foreign Wars at their last national convention accepted a Columbus founded national organization of dads, as a sponsored national organization of the VFW.

Like the VFW, the Dads of Foreign Service Veterans was founded right here in the city of Columbus at 15½ E Rich-st at the home of VFW Post No. 3863, in the year 1942.

But of more interest to your readers will be the fact that three Hilltop veterans were responsible for this organization. Robert Swigert of 171 Guernsey-av was the commander of VFW Post No. 3863 at the time of the founding and sponsoring of this dads' organization by that post and it was he who instructed his quartermaster, "The Old Sarge" (R. M. Hartman), to draw up the dads' constitution, by-laws and rituals; to organize its first post, elect its first officers and secure the state charter.

Your Hilltop mail man, Carl Schumann, was elected to assist the founder and later became the secretary of the first post. He went on from there and became the first state and national secretary and is today a life member of Post No. 1 of this city.

The first treasurer, William K. Browne of this city, was moved up to the state treasurer and is at present the national treasurer.

Our first state president was that well known leatherneck (Marine to you), Timothy Bliss of Belle-st, Columbus, and the first post president has been in practically every veterans' parade, as the drum major of the VFW corps—Glen Stokes.

Your VFW post on the Hilltop is the present home of the original Dads' Post No. 1 and its president is Harry Platt. They meet at 2393½ W. Broad-st the third Monday of each month and all dads of foreign service veterans are invited to attend any of these meetings. By dads of foreign service we mean all dads who had a son or daughter in foreign service in any way. Dad can be a veteran or a non-veteran; it makes no difference. He is the fellow we founded this organization for. We realized that the dads got a raw deal from the veteran organizations if he was not a veteran, for they take every other member of the family into their organizations except the dad who is not a veteran. So we give him an organization. I sincerely hope that the dads in Columbus will use the organization we have given them, to work through it for the best interests of all veterans, as well as for their veteran children. Call me if you want any information on this organization—RA. 4549.

CHAPTER TWENTY

THROUGHOUT that summer when Marvell's hands were tied to poison sprays, cultivators, unmanageable lengths of rubber hose and all the paraphernalia of small-scale farming that he began to detest more and more, he realised that Kit was drawing more close to Miss Searle than to him. It discouraged him when he thought of the twenty odd years difference in age, to say nothing of the sharp gap between the palliatives offered by Miss Searle and the natural, simple living he himself had planned for Kit. At night, he found himself almost too tired to read aloud to her—but that, and the use of his first name, seemed to be their only bond. And at times Kit, too, seemed drowsy, heavy with dreams of a world of her own that she left unwillingly each evening when she left Miss Searle.

"What do you do?" he asked, hoping to draw her out more fully.

"We ride, then I have a sponge bath with cologne in it, and then we have our lunch in the big living room on trays, and sometimes I take a nap or she tells me stories . . ."

"About what?"

"Her papa," she pronounced it the Victorian way and Marvell winced, "and where they used to go together. When she has a headache, I rub her head with cologne . . ."

This is awful, thought Marvell. Here it is the longest, brightest time of the year and instead of running wild, barefoot, blueberrying or swimming in the pond with other kids, she pays for that one hour of riding with enervating afternoons spent in a musty house, listening to God knew what nonsense of old dreams and half-truths, stuffed with Melba toast and blanc mange.

"Rainy days, I dress up," Kit went on, her face glowing at the thought. "They're old dresses with little waists and valuable lace and she's going to give them to a museum when she dies."

"Why not now? She's dead from the neck up!"

Kit looked shocked and he was immediately apologetic.

"What is she doing up here all alone?"

"Her papa died in the spring of 1913," with so apt a mannerism that Marvell could almost count the number of times she had heard this sentence repeated. Then she told him how a few years before Miss Searle and her father had opened the house together because Miss Searle couldn't stand parties or artificial life. Nor any kind of competition in general, thought Marvell.

Her brother, sister and mother all had full, rich lives of their own. Kit went on seriously. . . . She even looks older when she talks like this, thought Marvell in despair. "Wait," he ordered, "don't you ever want to hear about me?"

"Yes," she answered politely.

"Well, think of me as Sinbad, who's always in bad," he began with a flourish, for they had been reading the Arabian Nights. Interested, she demanded examples of this boast and he went back to another world that he hoped would be closer to hers—"When I was a little boy . . ."

He had just finished one tale—how he had been late coming home from Sunday school one day and had taken a short cut by walking under the river, breathing by means of a hollow pipe that rose to the surface, and how he'd tried to dry his best suit in the boiler room of a mill and watched with horror his suit shrink up his arms and legs, the buttons popping like steam gauges—when he saw the uneasy look on her face. "Don't you believe any of this?"

She nodded, only [illegible]bering her mother's favorite phrase, "Your father has too big an imagination, dear," which covered up many a discrepancy, and brought to mind what his mother must have said.

"Didn't your mother get mad?"

"No, she never got mad. She got sad, which is worse. To pay for that suit . . ." It had shrunk, that much was true—he had fallen into the Penobscot—"she went out and sold a liniment, Dr. Oliver's Oil, from door to door." There was a great deal he wanted to tell her about his mother, but she interrupted:

"Were you her only trouble?"

He raised an eyebrow. This was the family tone, the condescending tone, which she must have picked up from Edith Searle.

"I had a brother. He wanted to become a minister, but he died in the Spanish-American War."

"Is everyone dead?" she asked with renewed interest.

"We're all that's left."

She thought a moment. "Well, on my side there's only Uncle Proctor, so we're even."

Back where I started, he thought grimly. But Proctor's out and I'm blessed if I'm not a match for one old maid.

• • •

At the end of the summer when there was a kind of false armistice between the last plantings and the final harvest, Marvell decided it was time to call a halt to the irritating relationship between the woman and the child. In a few more weeks, thank God, Kit would be going off to school, and there would be no time for sentimental lolly-gagging. He thought he had chosen a subtle method of telling her off when he sent her over a box of Early Macs to repay her, he wrote, for Kit's destruction of those first blossoms, to say nothing, he added, for her own time and trouble in making his daughter at home in Concord, a job, he assured her, which he would now take on full time.

Miss Searle was bewildered by this gesture, and took it for another proof of Mr. Coomes' lack of finesse. When she reread the note, she wondered if they were going back to their home in Boston for the winter. She had soon discovered from Kit that her middle name was Barlow and that she had lived until recently with her Uncle Proctor. By the ordinary average of coincidence, it turned out that Miss Searle had met both uncle and mother, quite a few years before. Proctor had been interested in her sister, Jennifer, and had once or twice brought his sister, Elizabeth, out to tea in Dedham. She could remember them quite clearly, the stiff, authoritative brother, the girl with a cloud of too-fine hair and almost nothing to say for herself. Miss Searle prided herself on her talent for visual detail. She hoarded every inch of life she had ever known—her own as well as another's—perhaps as a kind of insurance against the long, solitary years ahead. She could even remember the dress Elizabeth Barlow wore, a pale blue organdy with white cross-bar stripes. And she was at a loss where to place Mr. Coomes in this background—he had sprung out of nowhere, apparently, with the child in hand. It piqued her curiosity. I really should talk to him more, she thought, and she made up her mind to ride over to see him the next morning.

While she was dressing—she had a new habit, russet brown, with a rather dashing hat to match, the bronze plumage of a bird curved around the brim—she tried to pick out of the pile of ships and snatches in that ragbag she called her marvelous memory, some scrap that would match, as it were, her reaction to Mr. Coomes. She had never known anyone like him before. The way he winked at everybody! Then she was reminded of someone else—why, he was like Jennifer! She too brought that flurry of restlessness with her, she had no tact in encountering another person. She was naturally buoyant and selfish and the center of the stage. And Jennifer had married Fiske, with none of her style and energy, and Mr. Coomes had married the gentle, cloudy [illegible]. The odds always went to the ovens, she thought, except perhaps once in a thousand times. Kit was, of course, like her mother. Mr. Coomes must have made her terribly nervous. It was so unfair, unnecessary even, she complained, stroking the bird's breast, to make everyone aware of yourself, to show off.

As she turned down the lane, really pretty, really unspoiled, with the white birches dipping down gently and the early asters, ragged white stars, reaching up from the tawny leaf covered soil, she heard the dusty clop-clop of the horses' hooves rise to ringing echoes upon the air like bells. Of course, she remembered, it was Sunday, and there was always a wind that carried the sounds from the village up the hillside. How long was it since she had been to church? Perhaps she should take Kit some day. She dismounted near the old carriage shed, now converted into some kind of closed building, and stood quietly waiting. She smelt fall in the air, wild grape, perhaps, and then the sharp ring of an axe [illegible].

Marvell did not see or hear her until he stopped for a moment to get a breather. He wondered how long she had been watching him, and then thought with a chuckle that she looked exactly like a life-sized pheasant in that brown suit with her head cocked on one side.

"Good morning," he called, dropping the axe into the old stump that served as a chopping block.

Joe Martell Says . . .

All That Rustles Isn't Muscles In These Tussles

You've no doubt read, or at least have noticed, those full page advertisements in the many magazines on the market today that show some man pointing his finger at you with the caption "You, too, can be a man" and he is ready, willing and able to prove to YOU that he can make you into an Adonis for a reasonable fee.

For years this particular article attracted my interest and even though part of the advertisement stated that all replies would be "strictly confidential" and all future correspondence directed to me would be sent in "plain wrapper", I just couldn't get up the nerve to fill out the application blank. But—just the other night, the worm turned. So drag up a keg and I'll tell you all about it.

My wife, "Dimples", and I were at an open air movie and just as the detective was about to announce the name of the murderer, my wife got hit on the face with a rotten pear. This object, no doubt, came from the occupant (s) of the car parked beside ours and, of course, I protested violently over the confusion which the incident caused. (I never did find out who the killer was).

"Dimples", however, started an argument with the missle thrower (s) and before you could say "the American dollar is shrinking," who hopped out of the next car but some six-foot-four football player wanting to know if "I wanted to start something?"

Putting the car into motion as fast as I could, "Dimples" and I were back on the highway in nothing flat, headed for home. My wife has a heart of gold and teeth to match but cowardice she cannot stand so she beat her gums all the way home about my cravenly instincts and finally went to bed to again compete with the whistle on the Cleveland Express. It was at this point that I carefully penned a letter to a Mr. Percival Entwhistle of Hercules, Inc., enclosing a check in payment for a six-week course that would develop me into a man of "mighty strength and brawn".

In due time I received a letter from Mr. Entwhistle telling me how glad he was that I finally realized that I was a puny, underdeveloped, self-conscious weakling and wanted to do something about it. Under separate cover I received, also, a set of dumbells. To you men who are now interested enough to send—for this body-building course, my advice to you is NOT to use these muscle builders in the living room for $86.00 easily replaced a large vase, one large bay window and two floor lamps.

The next week I graduated from dumbells and received a long chain with a ring at the end. I was to suspend this chain from the ceiling, and hang by both hands from the ring for forty-five minutes. I noticed that my feet were unable to reach the floor but Mr. Entwhistle wrote that "that was the whole idea." He went on further to say that if at the end of this suspension period I felt fatigued, I was "getting muscles" and it was a perfectly normal symptom. After this lesson I was in bed two days.

Each week the exercises got more and more strenuous and I was ready to give it all up but "Dimples" had other ideas. She caught on to my aspiration of becoming a brute with but few hints (she's no fool, you know) and she had visions of The Hilltop Record carrying headlines six inches deep, LOCAL MAN GIVES SIX ROWDIES TERRIFIC BEATING AT DRIVE-IN THEATER. HOSPITAL AUTHORITIES SAY ALL WILL SURVIVE.

The next lesson was more or less of a beaut. No appliances or equipment were needed. An illustration came with the instructions showing a man who looked as though he were tied in a bow. Mr. Entwhistle, however, called it the "human pretzel relaxer" and with the aid of my wife and her dear mother (who now lives with us permanently) they managed to make me look like the fellow in the picture. They simply tied my right hand to my left ankle and twisted my left hand behind my back which grasped my left knee. This made sort of a loop and through this they poked my head and bound my head and feet together. In this position I was so relaxed I passed out and when I came to I asked the nurse for a pen and paper and again wrote to Mr. Entwhistle, saying: "I have completed your course; please send me the muscles"

Hereafter, if "Dimples" and I are ever at a drive-in movie and somebody decides to throw rotten fruit at her I'll merely toss them a set of Mr. Entwhistle's muscles, of Hercules, Incorporated!

Mrs. Edward Webster, Independence, Mo., and Mrs. Roscoe Barnett, Kansas City, returned home Sunday after being house guests for 10 days of Mr. and Mrs. Harley O'Day and Mrs. Kathryn King, 2066 Eakin-rd. Mrs. T. F. Gregory, also of Kansas City, spent the week-end here and made the trip home with Mrs. Webster and Mrs. Barnett.

Mrs. Elmer Smith and son, Richard, of Greenfield, and Mrs. Dale Thomas, Dayton, spent Monday with Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Downing and family, 2050 Eakin-rd.

Odd Fact

When a man, playing shortstop on a local baseball team in Salem, N. H., leaned down to scoop up an easy grounder, a black snake slithered out of his glove, causing him to miss the ball and lose the game for his club.

POEM IN THE PARIS

Always pity old men
Winter in their faces,
Tattered wrists and broken
shoes,
In parks and homeless places

For pain lies light on woman,
Designed for serving others . . .
For suffering with fortitude;
For martyrs and for mothers;
But old men on the benches
Bent forward with an air
Of waiting and of listening,
But seeming not to care

Are symbols of futility,
And break the very heart of me.

But where you are, my heart is there,
My hand to yours is clinging.

City Bred Lou Grooms Likes Life 'Country Style'

Lou Grooms atop "Penny", spirited young mare show horse.

By Myron T. Seifert

It's the country life for city-born Hilltopper Lou Grooms, 16, of 113 N. Powell-av, who is a lover de-luxe of the great out of doors.

Her mechanical vocabulary bespeaks a thorough knowledge of farm machinery. She can operate combines, tractors, rotary balers, side delivery rakes, in a manner befitting the modern farmers.

Instead of reading a best seller she prefers scientific articles on horses, cattle, dairy farming and animal husbandry.

While many West High students are proficient in the three r's, she occasionally, by her own admission, dreams of Spotted Poland China hogs and Buff Minoncas, during class periods.

"Horses are the main passion in my life," Lou avers.

Right at present she is riding a sorrel filly in show events at fairs and rodeos in Ohio. This winter she plans on learning to rope and bronc ride; and is a member of the Capital City Riding Club and the Ohio Western Horse Association.

Her choice of music and dancing also runs to country style—to the extent that she took up the electric Spanish guitar and learned to yodel.

Edgar Weaver, 36 Schultz-av, a sophomore at Central High School, is the owner of the mare show-horse. Lou rode Penny to win second place in the pleasure horse class at the Plain City Fair this fall. They keep the horse in a stable on a lot that adjoins Weaver's Market, 1783 N. Hague-av. This is the seventh horse that young Weaver has owned and trained. He started when he was 10 years old.

$200,000 Sent To Yule Clubbers

Christmas shopping will begin in earnest for a number of Hilltoppers this week.

Herb Deems, manager of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association, 2369 W. Broad-st, announced that the two First Federal offices have sent out $200,000 to the members of their Christmas Clubs.

The clubs for next year opened Monday. Entrants will be accepted up until the first of February. Weekly deposits of from 50c to $20 are made throughout the year, and checks are mailed out in time for Christmas.

'Improve Public Relations' Tavern Owners Advised

Speaking at a county-wide session sponsored by the West Side Tavern Owners' Association, E. M. Tharp told the group that theirs is a gigantic industry and they remain in business only by the will of the majority of the citizens of their community.

"If your industry is to continue to have the respect of the people in your community, it is necessary that a broad and sincere effort be made to reduce the number of abuses and alleged abuses to the laws of the State of Ohio now charged to the neglect of tavern owners," Tharp said.

"It is only the thread of public favor that keeps you in business. That thread can hold only as long as the use of good common sense enters into your business practices every minute you are open. You have a vital responsibility to the public," Tharp added.

The meeting, which was called by the West Side group, included more than 100 representatives of the alcoholic beverage industry from all parts of Franklin County.

Kiwanis Shows OSU Game On Kid's Day At BJR

In observance of National Kids' Day last Saturday, the youth service committee of the Hilltop Kiwanis Club provided two television sets for youngsters at the Bureau of Juvenile Research to watch the Ohio State-Michigan game.

The sets were also displayed before and after the game, so that the younger children could see some of the programs.

Dr. R. J. Miller is chairman of the youth committee. Herb Deems and Averille Thorn were in charge of this project.

The television sets were donated for the game by the Better Home Center, 2775 W. Broad-st, and the Wolfe Electric Co., 2427 W. Broad-st.

Crosley Contest Nears End

There's only two more weeks for Hilltoppers to enter Crosley's Two Million Dollar giveaway contest," according to Ed Witherspoon of the Better Home Center, 2775 W. Broad-st, as he posed with the local prize some one on the Hilltop will win.

Better Home Center, with two locations on the West Side, is the Crosley representative, where Hilltop and West Side residents may obtain entry blanks to compete in the huge contest for thousands of dollars in prizes and a beautiful local prize of a new 1950 Model CB-9 Shelvador refrigerator.

Mr. Witherspoon pointed out that there are two contests, one sponsored nationally by the Crosley Corporation and the other locally by Crosley dealers. The contest closes on Nov. 30, 1949, with the prize awards to be made Dec. 10. Local judges have not as yet been selected but will be announced in next Thursday's edition of The Hilltop Record.

No Action Seen On Ballot Mixup

Matters on the missing ballots of voters in Precinct C of Prairie Township, and the Norwich Township School District on candidates for the district school board, are still up in the air.

According to Frank Marsh, clerk of the Franklin County Board of Elections, the board can take no further action unless one of the four candidates for school board calls for a recount. The board of election stated that nothing illegal occurred in the ballot mix-up.

"Only six residents," Marsh said, "who live within Prairie Township, but in the Norwich school district, were registered to vote."

The Record was wrong last week in stating that the votes were cast in New Rome. Mrs. Walter Stauch, New Rome council member, announced that the village is not a part of precinct C. The village has a separate voting place, and until it was incorporated recently, it was precinct D.

Petition Against Booklet Filed

The first section of a petition, containing 53 names, was submitted to the county prosecutors office last week by Harry C. Downing, 2050 Eakin-rd.

The petition protests the "preparation, publication and issuance by the Planning Commission of the pamphlet "Rural Zoning" on the opinion that there is no legal sanction for the use of public funds or public facilities for electioneering."

This Is A Story For Newsboys

Sometimes newsboys get careless. The following little story should be of value to them:

Tommy Larkin is a newspaper boy, according to a story told by Dr. George W. Crane. Tommy is 14 years of age, carries a route, and does his own collecting. This is what is called the "small merchant" plan, and is good for teaching boys business methods, and those other sterling methods typical of our "free enterprise and the American way of life."

"I've come to collect the 25 cents for the paper," remarked Tommy one morning when Samuel Murkins, one of his customers, came to the door.

"Fine," smiled Mr. Murkins as he took five nickels out of his pocket. Then, without a word, he threw one nickel out upon the front lawn. The second nickel he tossed on top of the porch. He threw the third one under the steps, and the fourth behind the bushes. The fifth nickel was handed to the newsboy.

Tommy looked astounded, and when Mr. Murkins just looked at him, Tommy exclaimed, "What did you do that for?"

"Well, Tommy," Mr. Murkins said, "That's where I find the papers you deliver to me."

And thereafter Mr Murkins' paper was deposited squarely in front of the door—where Tommy expected to collect his money.

$5.76 Investment Brings $200 Sales

Previous to her insertion of two Record want ads on consecutive Thursdays, Mrs. John Rife, 2455 Clime-rd, had not enjoyed a very brisk business in the sale of apples and cider.

The main reason for this, she explained to us, was that the Rife home is not located on a main highway.

Those two Record ads brought about a sudden change. On each of the week-ends the ads were published, the Rifes cleared approximately $100—$200 in all.

Whatever you have to sell, don't keep it a secret! Tell the folks in your own community about it—with a thrifty, result-getting Record ad. Call RA. 1125.

Hilltop Man Severely Injured In Truck Wreck

Roy Hyer, 59, of 292 Columbian-av, was seriously injured shortly before noon Tuesday when the pick-up truck he was driving went out of control and crashed into a tree in Wilson-rd at Valleyview-dr.

He was taken from the smashed truck by Sheriff's Deputies Clyde Mann and Shepard Edmonds, who said the motor of the truck was pushed into the front seat of the vehicle

Hyer, superintendent of the W. Broad St. Standard Oil Co. plant, was traveling south in Wilson-rd when something went wrong with the truck, Mann said. Prairie Township emergency squadmen and a fire truck were called to the scene after deputies were told that the truck was carrying oil. However, it was a pick-up truck and was not loaded with oil or gasoline.

Hyer was taken to Mt. Carmel Hospital in a Jerry Spears ambulance and his condition was regarded as serious. He suffered compound fractures of both legs, internal injuries, a severe head injury and shock.

Illness Fatal To Frank B. Strauser

Frank B. Strauser, retired grocer of 211 Haldy-av, died Tuesday in a local hospital after a year's illness.

A native of Hallsville, O., he was a member of the Baptist Church and the Masons. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Grace Strauser, daughter, Mrs. Ethel Lee, Columbus, three grandchildren and five great-grandchildren. Friends may call at the Jerry Spears Funeral Home after 7 p. m. Wednesday until time of services at 2:30 p. m. Friday. Burial will be in Union Cemetery.

Beats Polio

Michael Boyd, age four, is winning a battle with infantile paralysis. He will spend Thanksgiving with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George R. Marshall, 83 S. Princeton-av. The son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Boyd of Benton Harbor, Mich., he was recently discharged from the Grand Rapids Polio Hospital.

NAMED CONTEST JUDGE

C. Carlton Hartley, publisher of The Hilltop Record, has been named judge of makeup division of the annual Osman C. Hooper Weekly Newspaper Show. The show will be held in Columbus in March in conjunction with the annual meeting of the Ohio Newspaper Association.

Thanksgiving Day

IN KEEPING WITH THE SPIRIT OF THE SEASON, these youngsters went "hunting" this week for the main course of their Thanksgiving dinners. The "hunters" are Freddie Williams, 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Williams, Sr., 52 Powhatan-av, and Virginia Ann Cross, 11, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Cross, 2858½ W. Broad-st. They "caught" the turkey at the Southworth Poultry House, 1510 Sullivant-av. Virginia and Freddie are sixth-grade students at West Broad Street School.

Kitten Moves Into Model Home

(Picture on Page 7A)

By Myron T. Seifert

"Tootles," a stray kitten, walked into room 217, West High drafting room, and took up her abode in the model house planned by students in the architectural department at the Hilltop school

Using the new domicile for both living and sleeping quarters, "Tootles" was content with her new stream-lined home.

Judy Ward, junior, enrolled in the course, is now keeping "Tootles" at her home, 31 Haldy-av.

Last year a new project was begun by the architectural students at West High School—original purpose not to house pets however.

The project, a model house, was started in order that the boys enrolled in architectural drawing might have a chance for practical application of the theory they learn in class. The present and future classes will use the model, too, for the demonstration of proper building techniques.

For this reason the small house will never be completely finished inside and out. A single section will be left semi-complete to allow a view of the basic structure of the house, said C. S. Kennedy, architectural instructor.

An actual house has been built to scale with one inch equal to one foot of the original. The large house has recently been valued at $15,760, while it is difficult to appraise the model. Although the cost of materials is negligible in the model, the time and effort expended by the boys in building is invaluable.

The model complies with all city and county building codes. A western frame type dwelling with six rooms, it has been designed to equalize all shrinkage of timbers. It has double floors and double walls. Because the real house is 54 feet wide and 26 feet deep, the house inside West High School's drafting room is just four and one-half feet wide and two feet and two inches deep.

Police Seek Owner Of Starved Dogs

Police were attempting this week to find the owner of a car in which two starved dogs were found Monday. One of the dogs was dead and the other emaciated and almost lifeless. It was theorized they were kept in the abandoned car about a week at Goodale and Park-sts.

The license for the car was issued to a person giving a non-existent Midland-av address, and the dog license was issued to a N. Central-av resident who could not be found.

LEGION AUXILIARY MEETS

The regular meeting of Camp Chase American Legion Auxiliary will be held in the post club rooms, 10 S. Burgess-av, Friday, Nov. 25, at 8:15 p. m. Mrs. Ray McVay, president, will preside.

West High School Holds Thanksgiving Services

By Myron T. Seifert

The traditional Thanksgiving services were held in the West High School Auditorium for Junior and Senior departments, respectively, on Tuesday and Wednesday. Juniors assembled first thing Tuesday morning and Rev. Allen, in charge of young people's work at the Broad Street Presbyterian Church, was guest speaker.

Other sections of the Junior Thanksgiving service included "America The Beautiful", by the audience; "Pledge of Allegiance", led by Judy Schulz; talk, "The First Thanksgiving", by Patty Henry; and the Girls' Intermediate Glee Club singing "America My Own", "Give Thanks", "Come Ye Thankful People, Come"; and Bible reading, Psalm 100-103, by Ann Cockfield.

The West Hi-Y sponsored the services on Wednesday morning.

Following is the program of the Wednesday service:

Invocation by Dick Briggs.
Music—Solo by Betty Smith, accompanied by Bolin Ashbaugh, Ohio State School for the Blind.
Scripture reading—100th Psalm, Roger Horn.
Thanksgiving Hymn.
Thought for the Morning—Rev. Leon Sanborne, director of the Westminster Foundation Student Center at Ohio State University. "A Modern Pilgrim's Thanksgiving for America."
Music—The Lord's Prayer—Joyce Ours.
Benediction—Rev. Sanborne.

Highland-av PTA Holds 'Open House'

An open house was held by the Highland Avenue PTA at Motter Hall in Glenwood Methodist Church Nov. 18.

Bob Cline, scout for the St. Louis Cardinals, was the speaker, and the fathers saw movies of the 1948 World Series. Rev. James Lorenz, pastor of the Community Christian Church, delivered the invocation.

Following the meeting, the members adjourned to the school where they met the teachers. Refreshments were served.

Mrs. Eleanor Evans Taken By Death

Mrs. Eleanor Evans, 76, died Wednesday morning. She resided at 3433 Fisher-rd.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Robert Foster and Mrs. I. V. Hines; two sons, Earl and Richard; six grandchildren; one great-grandchild; and three sisters.

Friends may call at the Floyd Born Funeral Home until time of service at 2 p. m. Saturday. Rev. D. S. Mills will officiate. Burial will be in Sunset Cemetery.

Townsend Club To Install Officers

Townsend Club No. 7 will meet Friday evening at 7:30 in the VFW Hall at 2393½ W. Broad-st to install officers for the new year.

Marion Rose, 44 S. Richardson-av, will be the delegate to the fall conference of Ohio Townsend Clubs Saturday and Sunday in the Deshler-Wallick Hotel.

Friday's meeting will be open to the public.

High Ridgers Christmas Party To Be December 16

The High Ridge Civic Association will hold its first Christmas Party Friday, Dec. 16. There will be presents, candy, pop corn and fruit for the youngsters of the community, and Santa Claus will be on hand to reign over the festivities, Pres. H. T. Van Ness of the H. R. C. A. announced.

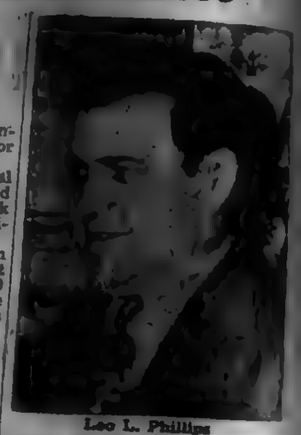
Due to the party, the December meeting of the association will be held on the second Tuesday of the month instead of the third Tuesday.

Activities for the grown-ups at the party will include a quiz contest, fortune telling, a fish pond, a giant grab bag, and an old time auction. And of course there will be the traditional Christmas tree.

Ladies interested in attending the "Listen Ladies" at WCOL broadcast when the High Ridge group appears Dec. 14, are urged to phone Mrs. Van Ness at Ra. 3005 for reservations.

Full reports of the standing committee chairmen will be made at the December meeting of the association. Guest speakers for the meeting will be announced later.

PASTOR LEAVES CHURCH



Rev. J. C. Jordan announced this week that he is no longer affiliated with the Hilltop Church of Christ. Guest ministers have been conducting services at the church since Nov. 6. No plans have been made for a new pastor.

Blue Star 'Mamas' Hold Bake Sale

The West Unit Blue Star Mothers of America will sponsor a bazaar and bake sale at the C. C. Robinson Electric and Appliance Store, 2403 W. Broad-st, Saturday, Nov. 26.

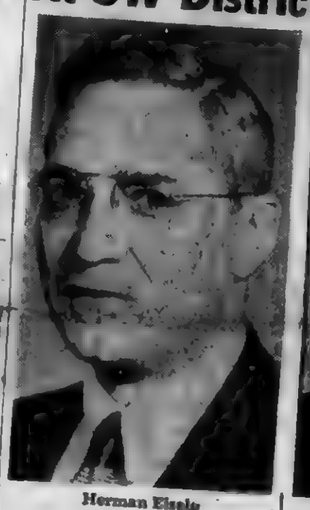
Leo Phillips To Be Mayor Candidate

Former Chief Of Detectives To Run In 1951

Leo L. Phillips

Leo L. Phillips, 617 S. Ogden-av, will be a candidate for mayor of Columbus in 1951.

While he has made no official announcement yet it was learned by the Hilltop Record this week that he is certain to be a candidate.



Phillips, 46, is well known in this community and throughout the city, having served for 19 years on the Columbus police force, five years of that time as chief of detectives. He was retired from the department in December, 1947, because of a physical disability.

During the past two years he has been urged by several groups to become a candidate for various offices, including city council and county sheriff. At present it is understood that a city-wide group is being organized to support his candidacy for mayor.

While there have been no official endorsements from local groups yet, it is believed that Hilltop organizations will give him hearty support in his campaign. He is a Republican and believed to be in good standing with the county organization.

Phillips is a member of Glenwood Methodist Church and numerous organizations throughout the city. He has one son, Leo L., Jr., a first year law school student at Ohio State.

Three Scouters Honored At SW District Banquet

Sanford Gets Key; Eisele, McCready 5 Year Awards

Three scouters from the Southwest district of Franklin Co. were honored at the recent district banquet at the Glenwood Methodist Church.

Vernon Sanford, 277 N. Ogden-av, became the first scouter in the district to be awarded the scouter's key under the new three year training program.

Herman Eisele 156 S. Algonquin-av, and James McCready, 81 N. Wheatland-av, received awards for meeting requirements of the five year training program.

The three year program will replace the five year training program. Completion of the program is based upon the scouter's performance after he has met the requirements outlined for his specific job.

Sanford has met the requirements for the skipper's key. He completed the senior leader training course, participated in round-table discussions, lead a

The concert which is for the benefit of the IOOF convalescent home's new hospital in Springfield, will be held at Central High school auditorium.

Education, case finding, rehabilitation and medical research are the four cornerstones on which the campaign of the National Tuberculosis Association and its affiliated associations to control tuberculosis has been built in this country.

Miss Ailsa Armour and Mr. Donald Burke Are Wed Oct. 29 Before Rose-Adorned Altar In St. Mary Magdalene

Mr. Ray and Homer Burke, Keith Helber, the new Mr. and Mrs. Burke, Miss Doreen Armour, Betty and Eva Burke and Faye Armour. (Photo by George Armour)

Mr. and Mrs. David Armour, 136 Letchworth-av, announce the marriage of their daughter, Ailsa, to Mr. Donald T. Burke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Burke, 163 Whitethorne-av.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Raymond Bauschard on Oct. 29 in St. Mary Magdalene Church, before the altar decorated with huckleberry foliage and white roses.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was gowned in candlelight satin fashioned along classic lines. Over the very full, flared skirt was a peplum encrusted in Venice lace and pearls and flowing into a scalloped cathedral train. Her full length veil of tulle, an import from Scotland, and previously worn by Mrs. E. Stouffer, the former Elaine McLurg, was held in place by a Tudor cap of tulle and matching lace.

Miss Doreen Armour was maid of honor for her sister, and Misses Betty and Eva Burke, the bridegroom's sisters, acted as bridesmaids. The gowns of the attendants, styled like the bride's, were made of heavy taffeta in bronze and green respectively. Each wore similar shades of ostrich feathers in her hair and carried muffs of matching taffeta covered in bronze baby mums.

The flower girl, Miss Faye Armour, youngest sister of the bride, was clad in similar satin as the bride, made colonial style, and wore a poke bonnet underlined in blue satin, and carried a basket of white carnations.

Best man for Mr. Burke was Mr. Keith Helber. Seating the guests were Mr. Homer Burke and Mr. Ray Burke, brothers of the bridegroom.

A breakfast at the Virginia Hotel for the bridal party and close friends followed the service and a reception was held later in the evening at the bride's home.

When the new Mr. and Mrs. Burke left for their trip east the bride was wearing a fitted coat of of midnight blue wool, a white fur felt bonnet-hat trimmed in flowing blue nylon. A corsage of white roses and white gloves completed her outfit.

Mr. Burke, a veteran of World War II, is associated with the U. S. Post Office while Mrs. Burke was formerly of the Central Ohio Paper Company.

The couple is residing at 56 S Roys-av.

One of the insidious aspects of tuberculosis is that it has no symptoms at first. Thus, people may have the disease without knowing it. But TB can be discovered early by means of a chest X-ray.

About Folks You Know

While sitting around the breakfast table for a few minutes' relaxation before starting in on the fixin', cookin and eatin' of the big dinner coming up, have you been wondering what your friends and neighbors were doing on this Thanksgiving? Well, we made a small survey and talked to a few Hilltoppers to find out for you.

Over two hundred friends, relatives and neighbors streamed into Glenwood Methodist parlors to offer their congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Phalor Sunday on the occasion of the couple's golden wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Phalor were married Nov. 16, 1899, at Canal Winchester and the following year moved to Columbus. They have lived on the Hilltop for 36 years, residing at 16 Midland-av, 73 S. Highland-av, 2583 W. Broad-st, and presently at 125 N. Powell-av. The officers and members of the CIC class at Glenwood Methodist, organized and taught by Mrs. Phalor, sponsored the reception for the 25-year married couple.

Songs by the Glenwood choir highlighted the afternoon. The numbers they chose were "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings," "Holy Lord of All", and "My God And I". Mrs. C. W. Walton directed the choir while Mrs. Clyde Moore accompanied it. The Phalors themselves were members of the choir from 1913 to 1943.

Among the guests were Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Turley, former pastor of the Glenwood church. Mrs. Turley is Mrs. Phalor's sister. It was during Dr. Turley's pastorate that Mrs. Phalor organized the class. One of Mrs. Phalors' former teachers during the days of the "little red school house", and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Motz, Brice, O., also attended the reception. Also present were Mr. and Mrs. Parley Rawn and Mr. and Mrs. Noah Bery, friends for over 50 years.

The Phalors have one daughter, Mildred, who is branch librarian at Hilltop Library.

Mr. Phalor formerly was an artist and designer for Craft-lite Company.

Do Your Christmas Shopping at SEILLERS

Mother and Dad holding secret conferences . . . Junior being very well behaved . . . Christmas is definitely on its way!

We think that this Christmas will be one of the biggest and happiest ever. And to make it extra merry, we've stacked our shelves to the rafters . . . filled our showcases 'til they're fairly bulging with nationally known brands of "just what you've always wanted."

Now the only question is, how to take the hustle and push . . . the fatigue and short tempers, out of our annual Yuletide shopping tour. We've a suggestion.

Shop at home, where you will be served by friends and neighbors . . . where you will be served best, because your salespeople know you! Shop at home because you save time and money—and still can obtain anything and everything that's available anywhere else. Shop at home because you are supporting the merchants who are supporting YOU . . . through their interest in better schools . . . better churches . . . better public services.

And on Christmas Day, let's all go to church . . . rich in the knowledge that this Christmas, by shopping right here, we've contributed to a better Holiday Season for ourselves —and a better commuity for all!

News of Rome

By Mrs E. C. Sheets

Mrs. Carl Schultz, 5041 W. Broad-st, formerly of the Hilliards community, entertained with a party Sunday in honor of her husband's birthday. It was a genuine surprise, when he went to the basement and found about 25 guests were present to wish him greetings of the day.

Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Patterson, 374 Maple-dr, have left to spend the winter months in Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Adams, 560 Wrexham-av, visited Sunday afternoon with their cousin, Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Barnecut, Maple-dr.

Bill Heingman, 5035 W. Broad-st, and Sam Rings, near Amlin, visited relatives of Bill last week in New Martinsville, W. Va.

Smiley Mannering and Iva Bailey visited Mr. and Mrs. Sam Heinzman Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Miller, Maple-dr, entertained the Monitors Saturday evening. There were 16 members present, to make final plans for the annual bazaar.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Miller and family will spend Thanksgiving at the home of his mother, in Clintonville, attending a family party.

Mr. and Mrs. Kent Richey and children will spend the Thanksgiving season visiting in Detroit with his brother, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Richey, and family.

Harold Hart and Mildred Johnson were married Saturday, afternoon at 1:30 in the Glenwood Methodist Church, by Rev. J. B. Shellhaas. They will live on Rome-Hilliards-rd.

Mrs. A. B. Sampson spent several days with her mother, Mrs. J. L. Coulter, last week.

Mrs. J. H. Stormont and Mrs. Oscar Baker attended the funeral of Mrs. Monford Smith's uncle in Mt. Vernon.

Mrs. Robert Rumfield of Waverly spent several days visiting her mother, Mrs. Howard Breckenridge, Maple-dr.

Of the funds raised through the sale of Christmas Seals, 95 per cent remains within the state where raised to finance state and local tuberculosis control work. The remaining 5 per cent is forwarded to the National Tuberculosis Association.

Jacob A. Rils, born in Denmark 100 years ago, wrote an article in 1907 urging a Christmas Seal Sale to raise funds to fight tuberculosis. His idea was adopted later that year by the late Miss Emily P. Bissell, who put on a Seal Sale in Wilmington, Del.

Seven Sets of Twins At West High

By Myron T. Seifert

"What's my name?" might be the game 14 students (seven sets of twins) at West High are playing with their teachers.

Ages of the twins enrolled at the Powell Avenue school range from 11 years (Ronald and Donald Ireland, who are 7B's) to 17 years (Marion and Malcolm Ator, who are seniors).

Junior members in this extraordinary set, Ronald and Donald Ireland, 2778½ W. Broad-st, are sons of Mrs. Betty Ireland. Both are identical twins and have ambitions to become professional baseball and football players.

Jean and Jan Sullivan, 97 N. Powell-av, are 14, and children of Mrs. Lena Sullivan. Favorite food of Jean is hamburger, while Jan goes "all out" for fried chicken.

Then too, Mary Jo and Jimmy Miller, 12, of 415 S. Ogden-av, are 7A's. Mary Jo has designs upon becoming a registered nurse, while Jimmy is undecided about his future.

Bill and Wilma Vawters, 16, who live with their parents at 2185 Springmont-av are interested in horseback riding. Bill plans to become an accountant or engineer, and is interested in football and skiing, while his sister, Wilma, has a yen for collecting school pennants. Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Vawters are the parents.

Identical twins, Joy and Jean Wright, daughters of Floyd Wright, 1708 Walsh-av, have aspirations in the musical world. Ice-fishing and horseback riding constitute leisure time pursuits of the Wrights.

Oldest among the twins are Mariam and Malcolm Ator, 265 S. Richardson-av, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Ator, are interested in sports. Mariam is adept at sewing and Malcolm plans to join the navy or attend college upon graduation.

The Ringer duo, Charles and Margaret, 16, are children of Charles Ringer, 2684 Elliott-av and are in the 11A grade. Margaret hopes to become a physical education teacher. Charles aspires to become a coach in college athletics.

Knipfer, Seams, Barok Crack 600 Mark

Only three men keglers were able to crack the coveted 600 mark as compared to eight of last week. Several others came close but only three were over. Dick Knipfer was tops for the week with 620 on games of 199, 206 and 215. Rolling anchor for the Bey Brew Beer team in the Monday Recreation League, Dick struck out in the 10th frame of his first game after striking in the ninth to give his team a 906-901 victory over Seiller's.

Ardlo

In the second game he repeated his effort, Ben Brew again winning 857-853. Seiller's managed to take the last game, 898-873, to end one of the closest matches of the year. Clay Seams broke through in the early Monday Commercial League to collect 611 on games of 191, 200 and 220. His good scores helped his team to a two game victory over Gearhart's and enabled them to take over undisputed second place. Bob Barok was the third man of the "600" trio as he put together games of 202, 189 and 212, to top the Business Men's League with 603. Bob Barok rolls with the V D Rs and by winning two games advanced to within two games of the league leading Spires Shell Service and Hirsch and Hirsch teams, which both suffered two game defeats at the hands of Fox Cafe and United Refrigeration.

Helen Galle, rolling in fourth spot on the Seiller's team on Thursday night, topped the women with 531 on games of 172, 191 and 168. Helen Rose had 505 and high single of 230 and Jerry Hausfield 501 in the same league. Wednesday night found Marion Ferguson leading her Tanner's Figure Control to a three game victory over last place Ferguson's State Auditors with 196-513. The three game victory enabled the Tanner team to go nine games up on the second place Esquire Men's Shop team as they lost three to Hilltop Van and Storage. Laura Steele had 512 and Lillian Nance 504 the same night.

Wednesday night found an oddity as Kent Bros. Const., who had lost but four games all year, met their match in last year champs, Hilltop Van team, as they found themselves on the short end of all three games, 889-839, 816-798, and 845-820. The defeats still left the Construction team four games ahead of Schmelzer's Restaurant, who found easy pickings in the last place Columbus Plastic team.

Other good scores during the week were Bernie Deems' 219-586, Midwest Roofing, 915; Nast, 867; Stewart Black Top, 2334; Paul Kauderer and John Murnane's 226; Allen Milk, 964-2772; Joe Warton, 234; Protexacar, 915-2569; Vee Dee Ers 996-2832 (high for the week); John Kennedy, 586; Hamerl's 897 and Broadview, 2562; Gene Urban, 228 (Thursday night) 224-576 (Saturday Morning Boys' League).

LEGAL NOTICES

PUBLIC NOTICE
Common Pleas Court, Franklin County, Ohio
No. 178860—Homer R. Langston, 1910 W. Temple, Los Angeles 26, California, Plaintiff, vs. Dorothy Tom Frasier, 67 Chaptel Avenue, Chicago 49, Illinois; Frank Frasier (husband of Dorothy Tom Frasier, 67 Chaptel Avenue, Chicago 49, Illinois; Betty J. Tom, and the unknown spouse of Betty J Tom, if any, 6703 Merrill Avenue, Chicago 49, Illinois; Fred A. Tom, 6703 Merrill Avenue, Chicago 49, Illinois; Marguerite Tom (wife of Fred A. Tom), 6703 Merrill Avenue, Chicago 49, Illinois, Defendants.

PETITION

Now comes the plaintiff and for his petition, says that he is seised in fee simple and in possession of the following described real estate: Situated in the County of Franklin, in the State of Ohio, and in the Township of Franklin; Being in Survey No 1279, Virginia Military Land, and being also a part of a certain tract of 45.87 acres conveyed by Charles E. Tom, etal., to Emmet E. Tom, etal., by deed shown of record in Deed Book 284, page 429, Franklin County Records, and being more particularly described as follows: Beginning at an iron pin in the north line of the P. C. C. and St. L. Railroad right of way, which point is south 86° 30' West a distance of 485.0 feet from an iron pin in the west line of Hague Avenue, and in the north line of said P. C. C. & St. L. Railroad right of way; said point being also the southwest corner of a tract heretofore conveyed by said Emmet E. Tom, etal., to the Hilltop Supply Company by deed as recorded in D. B. 786, page 198, Recorder's Office, Franklin County, Ohio; thence from said point of beginning north 31° 31' East a distance of 114.90 feet to an iron pin; thence North 86° 30' East a distance of 406.30 feet to a point in the center line of Hague Avenue (passing an iron pin at 385.00 feet); thence north 23° 29' (West along the center line of Hague Avenue a distance of 167.04 feet to a point; thence south 87° 10' west a distance of 726.06 feet (passing an iron pin at 20.00 feet) to an iron pin on the east line of 20.989 acre tract; thence along the east line of said 20.989 acre tract south 23° 29' East a distance of 10.00 feet to an iron pin; being also the southeast corner of said 20.989 acre tract, and on the north right of way line of aforementioned railroad; thence north 86° 30' east along the north right of way line a distance of 245.20 feet to the place of beginning, containing 1.325 acres, subject to all legal highways. Plaintiff further says that the defendants Dorothy Tom Frasier, Fred A. Tom, and Betty J. Tom, whom plaintiff does not know if she is married or not, have or claim to have an interest in said real estate adverse to the plaintiff; that Frank Frasier is the husband of Dorothy Tom Frasier; that Marguerite Tom is the wife of Fred A. Tom; and that it is unknown whether Betty J. Tom is married or not, and if so what her name is or the name of her spouse, if any. WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays that the defendants be notified of the pendancy of this action and be required to set up their respective claims; if any exist, to said real estate, and that his title to the same be forever quieted against said claim and for all other and further relief to which plaintiff may be entitled in the premises.

Said defendants are further notified that they are required to answer said petition on or before December 24, 1949, or judgement may be rendered as prayed for therein.

Pemberton Thanks Aides In Contest

Mack Pemberton, winner of the new Dodge sedan in the Hilltop Record subscription contest issued the following statement this week:

"I would like to sincerely thank all my many friends who were responsible for my winning the Hilltop Record Subscription Contest last week. Especially I want to thank my good neighbors, Fred and Mary Duelner. They, along with my wife, did most of the work. It's fine to know you still have friends after a losing football season. Thanks again to everybody who helped."

By Edward Green

Miss Hortense Mohr, an English teacher at Starling Junior High School, took part in the program that was presented by the Theatre Productions, Inc., at the Art Gallery Thursday evening, Nov. 17. Miss Mohr directed the one-act play entitled "Thanksgiving Beats the Dutch" and took part in "Julius Caesar" and "Trial by Jury." In the former she played the part of Portia, Brutus' wife; in the latter she was one of the spectators in court.

ORCHESTRA ELECTS OFFICERS

By Vera Adams

The Starling Junior High Orchestra elected officers Thursday, Nov. 17. Those chosen were: Dorothy Jones, president; James Wills, vice president; Joe Piccione secretary; and Glenn Jordan, treasurer. The orchestra, which meets on Tuesdays and Thursdays, is directed by Mr. Dale.

STUDENTS PRESENT PTA PROGRAM

By Dorothy Jones

The instrumental and vocal music departments along with the dramatics department of Starling Junior High School combined their efforts to present the program for the November PTA meeting which was held Tuesday night, Nov. 15. The production was also given for two assembly programs at the school that morning.

The theme of the program was a mock television show. The performance began with the Starling school song, to the tune of "Sunflower", played by the Starling orchestra. The announcer for the program was Larry Parker, who introduced the various numbers interbringled with imaginary commercials. The chorus sang "Green Cathedral" and "Czechoslovakian Folk Dance", under the direction of Mrs. Gross. For the instrumental part of the program there was a saxophone solo by Carl Baby, a clarinet quartet composed of John Shafer, Nancy Williams, James Mouser and Richard Agresti, and two numbers by the orchestra "Old Dan Tucker" and "Vacation Days", under the direction of Mr. Dale.

The dramatic classes, in charge of Mrs. Mentzer, presented a skit entitled "Subscribe Now", with Yvonne Brewer, Gene Carpenter, and William Schwartz playing the parts. A pantomime, "The Spy Story," was enacted by Helen Dickson, Warren Nast, and Joe Delbert, with Dorothy Jones doing the reading. The last part of the program was an original quiz show entitled Dr. I. C. Crooked. Jack Buck played the role of the doctor with Mary Miller, Glenn Stoll Franklin Williams, Eugene Tinsley, Shirley Anne Lewis, Johnny Jones, Patricia Statsberv, Carol Maxson, Janet Grim, Evelyn Cuckler, and Bob Fiffick as contestants and studio aides.

The program ended with the orchestra playing and the chorus singing the theme song, the Starling school song.

NEW TEACHER

By Joyce Douthitt

Lately the Starling students have been noticing an attractive, new face around the school. It belongs to the new music teacher, Mrs. Dean Gross. She has replaced Mrs. Rowlen who moved to Cleveland the first of the month.

Mrs. Gross is now living in Westerville, Ohio, and is a graduate of Otterbein College. Last year she taught at Worthington, Ohio.

All the teachers and pupils at Starling hope that Mrs. Gross will enjoy her work here.

NATIONAL BOOK WEEK

By Evelyn Foster

National Book Week was celebrated from Nov. 13 through Nov. 19 in schools and libraries all over the country. At Starling, the students marked the occasion by giving book reports in classes other than their own. One hundred and forty-seven pupils participated in this program.

Mrs. Wiseman, the librarian, was greatly pleased with the results. She said that more children have been coming to the library and requests have been made for many of the books on which the reports were given.

With each book that was issued from the school library during Book Week there was a book mark which presented the theme of the week, "Make Friends Through Books."

STARLING BASKETBALL SCHEDULE

By James Mouser

Starling's first basketball game of the season will be with Barrett on the 9th of December. The rest of the schedule is:

Dec. 16—Mound.
Jan. 6—Roosevelt.
Jan. 13—Franklin.
Jan. 20—Crestview.
Feb. 3—Linden McKinley.
Feb. 7—Indianola.
Feb. 10—Everett.
Feb. 17—West.
Feb. 24—Champion.

The students are going to be cheering for a successful season.

SHOE REPAIR CLASSES

By Charles Wilson

At the beginning of each semester at Starling, Mr. Gubsch visits the study halls to find the students who are interested in learning how to repair shoes. He teaches these boys the different things they must know in order to repair a shoe properly. They learn how to put on new soles and heels, what nails to use for different things, the harness stitch for sewing belts and other pieces of leather. He has a chart of the different grades of leather and shows them which kinds should be used. The students learn to use shoe laths, the sanding and polishing machines and how to make a very good grade of glue.

Mr. Gubsch aims to have a different class every six weeks, but one of his classes was so interested in the work that he let them continue two weeks longer. Mr. Gubsch should be congratulated for the fine work he has been doing when he helps these boys learn the art of shoe repairing.

PRACTICAL MECHANICS

By Jimmy Sabo

There is a class at Starling in which "around the house" repairs are taught. The class is under the supervision of Mr. Brula. The pupils learn how to repair screens, fix light sockets and cords, to put in windows, and to use the basic tools.

The class is open to both boys and girls and meets twice a week. Already it has proven beneficial for the students who are in it.

INCREASING TREND TOWARD DIESEL POWER HASTENING END OF COLORFUL 'IRON HORSE'

By JOHN P. SEIBOWER
Central Press Correspondent

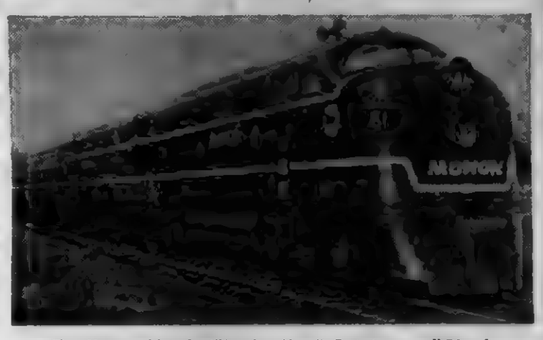
EVANSTON, Ill.—Take a long, lingering look at those puffing steam locomotives which still roll the rails across the countryside, for they are the last of their race. Diesel engine production totals just revealed here indicate that the "iron horse" now is hastening toward extinction.

For more than a century one of the spectacular sights of the modern industrial world, the coal or oil-burning railway steam engine rapidly is giving way to the sleek, modern streamlined Diesel-electrics, both for crack passenger service and heavy-duty freight hauling.

Soon they may be as rare as Mark Twain's steamboats on the Mississippi river. And as if the wholesale shift to Diesel streamliners were not enough of a change all at once, other new ultra-modern designs in light-weight trains are about to make their entry as the next revolutionizing period of railway locomotion.

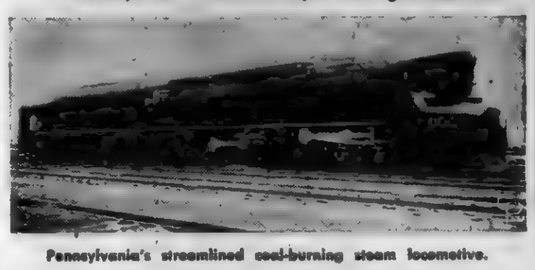
Stanley Berge, transportation authority on the faculty at Northwestern university here, has deeply stirred railway circles by announcing results of a detailed study showing that radical new train designs built recently in American shops for European lines may hold the answer to the riddle of unprofitable passenger service.

The requiem of the steam locomotive is being drummed out in the engine shops across the country, for scarcely a single new steamer has been built in the last 12 months.



• • •

ROBERT R. McCOLL, president of the American Locomotive company, reveals that his firm has not had an order for one in more than two years. This caused a complete conversion of his company, which for years was a leading builder of steam rail power.



In another 10 years the steam locomotive will be "as dead as a dodo," McColl added. He said that the steam era would be over now if the railroads could figure out what to do with their steam equipment and could get enough Diesel replacements.

New York Central's giant Niagara type steam locomotive.

The Monon, historic "Hoosier Line," first to go all-Diesel.

Pennsylvania's streamlined coal-burning steam locomotive.

Bearing out his prediction, the Gulf, Mobile and Ohio railroad this month pulled down its last coaling and sanding chute, marking its complete Dieselization. It is the first major line to make the full conversion, but the historic Monon, which splits Indiana in two—north and south—was first under the wire three years ago.

The General Motors corporation's Electro-Motive division is using automobile assembly line methods to roll off its production line five and a half giant Diesel units every day. A typical day now will see three gleaming streamliners for the New York Central and a couple for the Rock Island standing outside the shop ready to go.

• • •

THE ROCK ISLAND passed a milestone here when a few weeks ago it transformed its commuter service out of Chicago into an all-Diesel operation.

Electro-Motive has celebrated the production of its 6,000th Diesel railroad engine, a 1,000-horsepower switcher built in the Cleveland plant for the Chesapeake & Ohio.

Not all the feverish production is for American railroads, either, for the Whitcomb Locomotive company at Rochelle, Ill., is rushing 75 Diesels for the Argentine state railways. It is a subsidiary of the Baldwin Locomotive works, for nearly a century a leading exponent of handsome steam locomotives.

However, the end is not yet for the steam behemoths. The Diesel era is just dawning, and as proof of the fact the Burlington road can point to its pioneer Denver Zephyr, still in active service and with a new endurance record for self-propelled land vehicles of 3,695,482 miles.

Of the 39,299 locomotives of all types in service, about 7,000 now are Diesels, or 18 per cent, an increase of 4,500 over 1944 when the Diesels accounted for only five per cent.

• • •

THE CLIMAX of the steam locomotives, the New York Central's tremendous Niagara type for both fast passenger and heavy freight work, will be running for a long time, although the last one was built two years ago. It is so big that the driving wheels are half again as tall as a man.

How do the engineers feel about the changeover? Well, they are as sentimental about the old-timers as are any of the multitude of "rail fans" over the country who shed a tear at the thought of the thundering giants being on the way out.

When the engineer of one of the last crack passenger trains still using steam power climbed down from the cab at the end of the engine's last run from the east into Chicago, he shook his head ruefully at the panting pile of iron and steel and said the Diesels never will match it.

• • •

THE ENGINEER was ready to ease into the cushions of the driver's seat of a shiny new Diesel, but there in the comparative quiet, comfort and luxury he was homesick for the "iron horse" with all its soot and grime. There is a reason, for steam power is smooth, powerful, and nobody ever did find out how fast they would go; the rails just would not hold them.

Economy of operation has cast the balance in favor of the Diesels. Their chief new rival in this country is the gas-turbine locomotive which still is in the experimental stage and to outward appearances looks like a Diesel.

Professor Berg's prediction is that lightweight trains such as the low-slung Talgo, built for the crack Madrid, Spain-to-French border run by the American Car and Foundry company's Wilmington, Del., shops, will get a big fling here in the near future and further [illegible].

Only 13 inches above the road bed, as compared with 51 inches for the conventional American train, it has a quiet "gliding" ride. The new Dutch type of train with powered wheel trucks is another suggestion as the way to cut the deficit on railway passenger service, which last year amounted to $1,500,000 a day amounted to the pre-war losses.

She has bred and raised thousands of canaries, and at present she has more than 300 birds—250 canaries, 50 parrakeets and cockatiels—in her home. Mrs. Taylor, charter member of the Columbus Canary Breeders Club, started the hobby with one canary 30 years ago. She will enter several birds in the club's exhibit to be held at the Deshler-Wallick Hotel, on Dec. 2, 3, 4. J. W. Werrel, 98 N. Westmoor-av, is manager of the show. Mrs. Taylor's birds have won 30 cups and trophies, and many ribbons and plaques in exhibits.

Elective Art Classes Popular At West High School

More Than 150 Enrolled In Art Courses At School

By Myrca T. Seifert

More than 150 West Senior High students are enrolled in Richard Teichert's art classes.

Room 303 is a veritable art studio with myriads of art projects and colors in the making. Exhibits of every kind adorn the walls, and students are enveloped in an appreciation of the fine arts.

The course is elective, and embraces a short or long class. By "short" is meant minor subject, consisting of five periods weekly (of 40 minutes duration daily); whereas, the major or long courses include 10 periods of work weekly.

Many students take art to "satisfy the needs of the individual," Art Director Teichert advised.

A chance for a variety of art experiences may be found in Mr. Teichert's classes. All are given an equal chance to display their abilities. Many, who show promise, are encouraged to study professional viewpoints.

Many segments of the fine arts are worked out by the students, including general appreciation, mastery of many basic techniques in wood carving, painting, drawing, sculpturing and silk screen projects.

Art instructor Teichert, successor to W. D. Campbell, retired, attended Columbus Art School and Columbus University, and holds an M. A. from Ohio State University. Before coming to Columbus he was county art supervisor, Pike County, O., and taught art at Everett Junior High prior to 3½ years in military service.

Irma Andersen poses for budding artists John Kunsi, Jack Hagan and Bill Hill.

TWO GI'S, NOW SENIORS AT WEST HIGH SCHOOL, talk over their school program with Principal I. F. Young. They are Kenneth C. Scranton, 2725 W. Broad-st (on the left in the photo), and William Walker, 216 N. Oakley-av (on the right).

M. A. VAN ATTA, manager of the C. C. Robinson Electric Co., 2403 W. Broad-st, samples a cookie baked by Frances Martin, home economist of Bard's, Inc. Baked goods—pies, cakes, cookies, rolls, date and nut bread—baked in the modern G. E. Kitchen—will be on sale at the store beginning at 9:30 a. m. Saturday. The sale is being sponsored by the West Unit, Blue Star Mothers. Baking materials are furnished by Recob's Bakery, 2340 W. Broad-st.

MRS. SYLVIA CROUSE, 2615 Elliott-av, holds a huge turnip. The turnip, grown by Leo Ferro, Plain City farmer, weighs four and one quarter pounds, and is 22 inches in diameter. Ferro gave the turnip to Mrs. Crouse's husband, Clark, a butter maker at Fairmont Creamery.

West Students To Present Operetta 'Bittersweet Anne' December 7-8

By Myron T. Seifert

A stellar cast of about 100 West Senior High students will present the musical comedy, "Bitter Sweet Anne", at the [illegible] school, Dec. 7 and 8, under the direction of [illegible] music teacher, Miss Beth White.

Working constantly on this production after school hours, the students already are making rapid strides in order to bring to Hilltoppers the best in musical plays.

Tickets will go on sale soon at the school. Admission is 40 cents, reserved seats 60 cents.

The comedy follows this pattern:

On the Festival Day, in a certain kingdom, the people have planned to proclaim a republic. Princess Diane, the king's daughter, who has been summoned to his deathbed, arrives from Nice where she has been for 10 years. Because of their affection for the princess, the people decide to wait until she returns to school.

In the garden, Papa Jule's daughter, Zeta, awaits the coming of Princess Diane through an old tunnel which they had discovered when children. The tunnel leads from the castle through an old smoke house into the garden. Here they had found a mess filled with treasure, proving that their grandfathers had been pirates. Zeta and the princess never told of their find for fear of ghosts.

Captain Roger Lee arrives to do stunt flying. Princess Diane recognizes him as the man she was attracted to in Nice, but because of his remarks against royalty she begs Zeta not to tell him she is a princess; and so, unrecognized by all, she comes to the festival disguised as her maid.

Two pretenders to the throne, who arrive to steal the crown jewels, are caught, but the jewels with which the people expected to carry on the revolution are gone. The king dies; the people proclaim a republic. Diane, whom Roger calls Bittersweet Anne, refuses to give up her throne. She lies down to rest in the garden and has a dream.

Time rolls back 200 years to the time of King Gus the Pirate, his return in splendid array, bloodthirsty pirates, poets and scholars ragged and starving, slave girls dancing. The dream carries Diane down to the present time. The pretenders proclaim themselves king and queen. She and her friends are arrested and even her own people are about to do her bodily harm.

When Zeta awakens her, she cannot believe her terrible experiences have been a dream. Papa Jules is told of the treasure in the tunnel and Anne insists that he use it all for the cause of liberty. So all ends happily and as far as we know Roger never finds out that his Bittersweet Anne is a royal princess.

West Band Plans Concert, Variety Show For April

By Dave Miller

The West High Band Marching Band is now laying plans for its 1949-50 Concert Season, in preparation for the Band Variety in mid April.

The band completed its football marching season at the Aquinas-West tilt, paying tribute to the seniors in the band.

The junior high band put on a show previous to the West Seniors' entrance on the field. The theme of the show by the senior band was transportation.

First, in forming a bicycle, they played "Bicycle Built for Two," and they played "In My Merry Oldsmobile," while forming a car. From there, they formed a train to the tune of "I've been Working on the Railroad." The band then formed a sailboat to the song "Cruising Down the River," and from that made a huge block "A" for Aquinas, and played "Wearing of the Green." The band then formed an airplane, and went from that formation into a script "WEST" led by Drum Major Ray Penner, while playing the two West fight songs.

The band recently elected officers, and the committee was introduced to the Band Parents in their monthly meeting at the school Wednesday evening. The officers are Paul Thompson, president; Carl Hartley, vice-president; Betty Roederer, secretary-treasurer; and Bill Grim, librarian, with Tom Heyl as student director.

Clair Barnard, band director, announced Tuesday that the band will march in the annual Columbus Citizen Christmas Parade on Friday, Dec. 2.

WIN QUARTET CONTEST

The "Scarleteers" waltzed into first place last Friday night in the Hilliards quartet contest to the tune of "I Had a Dream Dear" and "Dry Bones." The other quartets participating were "Music Busters", "Barberettes", "Fly By Notes", "Bula-Bula Boys", and a girls' quartet.

"Pepper's Talking Again"

(Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., News)

We've been wondering for some time now why Florida was receiving nothing but the "best" in publicity. The other 47 states were not pointing their fingers at us with denouncements of "for shame." Just about the time we discovered that all of our good luck was due to the fact that Sen. Claude Pepper had refrained from going about the country "shooting off his mouth," the Florida senator stops off in Miami Beach long enough to ruin things for us.

The newspapers Monday unfortunately were forced to carry his babblings about what's wrong with the 81st Congress, because all of us are dedicated to free speech.

We could have told the senator what was wrong with the 81st back in January in three words — Sen. Claude Pepper.

In his Miami Beach speech, the senator was satisfied with nothing less than lashing out at his homeland with there is "no part of the country that needs progressive, democratic government more than the South.

Pepper wasn't helping Florida one whit when he stood before a group of visiting trainmen and told them that a bloc of southern Democratic senators are "holding up progressive legislation" while carrying the "false banner of States' rights."
